Mass Flurry Of Activity For Referendum Tomorrow

by WANDALYN RICE

All flurry of activity for and against the referendum being held tomorrow by Elk Grove Township Elementary School Dist. 59 is bringing the campaign to an end.

Polls will be open from noon until 7 p.m. at ten polling places. Voters will decide the fate of two proposals which would, if passed, increase the district's tax rate by 27 cents per $100 of assessed value — 21 cents will be in the education fund and six cents in the building fund.

Letters from the board of education to parents in the district are now in the mail urging them to vote "yes" and flyers urging defeat of the tax increases are being distributed throughout the township by Jack Roeser, head of the Concerned Taxpayers of Elk Grove Township, and his supporters.

The flyers, which charge the district with overspending and poor quality of education, appeared in Elk Grove Village on Wednesday.

Many of the budget figures in the flyer are either inaccurate or drawn from past budgets and not the budget for the current year, district officials have said.

Roeser said yesterday the campaign against the referendum is going "beautifully. We think we'll have the flyers delivered to about 9,000 homes."

Roeser said many individuals have called and offered their help and added, "We've got the muscle to get this thing through. We are finally getting to the point of a real taxpayers' revolt — a lot of people are really upset."

One of the causes of voter anger, he said, is the property tax bills which have been arriving at area homes this week. The long-delayed bills show hefty increases in many cases.

Ironically, Dist. 59 officials point out the increases are not due mainly to increases in the district's taxes, but are due to application of the state equalization factor and increased tax rates by other taxing bodies.

Dist. 59 public relations director Leah Cummins pointed out this week that for the first time in memory the tax rate for High School Dist. 214 exceeds the tax rate for the elementary district by several cents.

BETWEEN THEM, the two school districts account for more than 70 per cent of the property tax bill.

Dist. 59's tax rate increased by four cents this year, mainly due to an increase in the bonded interest fund, Supt. James Erviti said.

"I'm sure many people are saying it is because of the junior high referendum," he said, "but actually the increase is paying the schedule of bonds for schools built years ago."

In April voters approved a bond issue to build a fifth junior high school in Des Plaines. The $2.3 million in bonds for the building have not yet been sold.

Saturday's referendum is the first tax rate referendum since the district lost one in 1969. The vote that year on the education fund, the major tax fund of the district out of which teachers are paid and instructional programs are financed, was 2.246 "yes" and 2,441"no."

The rate increase would have passed except for one precinct, voting at High Ridge Knolls School in Des Plaines, which turned the measure down by more than a two to one margin.

SINCE THAT referendum, the district has added another precinct by dividing the Knolls precinct almost in half. For this referendum voters who were in the Knolls precinct in 1969 will vote at Knolls and at Albert Einstein School.

Before the defeat of the 1969 referendum, district officials indicated they would have to cut the budget for the 1970-71 school year.

After the referendum, the district cut more than $200,000, mainly in administrative and clerical salaries. In addition, the district's assessed value came in

Polling Places For School Vote

Polling places in tomorrow's referendum in Dist. 59 will be at Clearmont School, Rupley School, High Ridge Knolls School, Ridge School, Devonshire School, Forest View School, Juliette Low School, Salt Creek School, Robert Frost School and Albert Einstein School. Only registered voters are eligible. Those with questions about where they should vote may call the district administration office, 437-1000 between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. Results will be available after 9:30 p.m. at 437-7837.

Negotiators Reach Accord On 1971-72 Teacher Contract

Negotiators for Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 49 announced last night that they have reached agreement on a contract for 1971-72 school year.

The contract will be presented sometime today to the general membership of the Teachers Council, which includes most of the 523 teachers in Dist. 59, Tom Dresser, head of the Council negotiation team, said.

Al Waltman, assistant superintendent of personnel and head of the negotiating team for the board of education, said a special board meeting will probably be called "as soon as possible" to ratify the contract.

Dresser and Waltman said they would with hold details of the agreement, which includes a salary schedule for teachers for the coming year, until the agreement is presented to the teachers and the board.

With the agreement, Dist. 59 becomes the first elementary district in the area to reach an agreement with its teachers.

High School Dist 211, which includes Palatine and Schaumburg townships, announced a contract settlement two weeks ago which included a 3.75 per cent raise in teachers' salaries.

Base pay for a beginning teacher in Dist. 59 is now $7,600. Negotiations for the 1971-72 contract began in February, immediately after a settlement was reached in this year's contract.

Negotiations on this year's contract broke down last fall in a dispute between the teachers and the board over class size in the district.

Both teachers and the board charged each other with bad faith and the Teachers Council staged a one-day strike in February.

Agreement on the contract was reached following the strike. Included in that contract was a no-strike clause which is set to expire with the 1970-71 contract on June 24.

The tax rate referendum being held tomorrow by Dist. 59 contains no extra money for teachers' salaries and will not affect the settlement, district officials have said. Last month the Teachers Council officially endorsed the referendum.

No Low-Income Housing Accord Yet

The Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA) and the Chicago Housing Authority (CHA) are still trying to iron out differences over an agreement to build low-cost housing in suburban areas.

CCHA Executive Director Victor Walchirk yesterday reported officials of the two housing authorities were reviewing a draft agreement prepared jointly by CHA and CCHA attorneys.

"Nothing definitive has happened," Walchirk explained. "We're still working on it."

Early last month, officials expressed hope a formal pact by now would have been approved by the governing boards of each authority. The delay suggested several earlier differences between the two housing groups could not be as easily reconciled as at first predicted.

THE CHA HAS been pushing plans to extend its authority beyond the city limits of Chicago since March. However, law prohibits the CHA from going into suburban area without the formal consent of the CCHA.

Key among the unresolved differences standing in the way of an agreement was the issue of who would hold title to the housing units once they were built. Each housing authority was reported to be reluctant to give up ownership rights.

Officials did not offer any estimates on when an agreement would be finalized.

House OKs Health Unit Bill

Legislation sponsored by Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, to establish a seven-member Health Facilities Authority for Illinois was passed this week by the House of Representatives by a vote of 134-0.

The bill would create an authority with power to issue revenue bonds for the construction of hospital facilities which could then be leased to public or nonprofit private health organizations. The authority would also be empowered to loan money to such organizations for construction of health facilities.

According to Mrs. Chapman, the authority's power to issue long-term, low-interest bonds could reduce by approximately half the interest rates required for hospitals to borrow money for construction of new facilities.

She said one hospital administrator estimated the per-patient cost of interest could be reduced from $9 to $5 per day through the use of revenue bonds. Revenue bonds, said Mrs. Chapman, would also make possible new hospital construction at no cost to the taxpayer.

A similar bill sponsored by Mrs. Chapman was approved two years ago by both houses of the legislature, but was vetoed by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie. The governor indicated in a recent health message to the General Assembly, however, he would now approve the measure, Mrs. Chapman said.

Timely Words To 'Quiet Class'

by TOM JACHIMIEC

Commencement exercises at Elk Grove High School Wednesday night produced some timely and interesting quotes:

"The system works," said State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

"I have just two intensely personal words — Right on!" said Leah Cummins, former high school board member.

"This class will long be remembered as a quiet class," said Bob Haskell, principal.

That was essentially it as 450 seniors received their diplomas in the high school gymnasium before hundreds of parents, relatives and friends cramped into the bleachers. The total number is the graduating class is 477, including the 22 who didn't make commencement.

The graduates may not have realized it at the time, but years from now they may remember those words and wonder: "Was it that long ago?"

THERE AREN'T too many bearded or mustached faces in Elk Grove Village, at least according to returns for the Lions Fourth of July hair growing contest. Ed Cavello reports that only 15 persons have entered though, as Ed says, "Anyone is eligible as long as they have hair on their face "

Contestants must be residents of the village and registered in the contest. Entry blanks may be obtained at the four local barber shops.

There is no cutoff date for entering and contestants need not be clean-shaven to enter. Beards, full or untrimmed, mustaches, and goatees, are the four categories for hair growers.

ALMOST 200 persons have indicated they have time to volunteer their services to organizations that need volunteer help, according to Gerry Smiley, coordinator of the Jaycees' "Do Something" project during May.

"It's a good response," said Smiley, "I'm satisfied."

This column reported on the project last month in an effort to urge residents interested in becoming active in their community to do so.

The Jaycees made it easy by cataloguing areas of interest ranging from working with the local consumer fraud office to helping at the library.

Smiley is now notifying the 30 or so agencies of the individuals who would like to volunteer their time.

A LOOK AT the past and present: Paging through some old issues of "Focus on Elk Grove," a defunct weekly newspaper, obtained from Jim Spahr, of 502 Ridgewood Rd., several stories and headlines from 1965 stood out.

One concerned a report of Trustee Eugene Keith (who now calls himself "Citizen E. V. Keith" since he no longer is a trustee) writing Gov. Otto Kerner asking for a reduction in the speed limit on Arlington Heights Road from 40 to 30 miles per hour.

Nothing apparently was ever done, because just a few weeks ago Keith still was writing a number of elected officials, including President Nixon, demanding that the speed limit be reduced along with the widening of the roadway.

Another 1965 headline stated: "Trustee Zettek presses for action to keep the streets mud-free."

Zettek was still "pressing for action" last March or so on virtually the same subject, along with threatening to close down stores whose premises were dirty. Progress has been made and will continue to be made in this area, however, as the village municipal officials this spring renewed their enforcement efforts in this area.

Letters To The Editor

Claims School Tax Increase Unneeded

Dear Sir:

School Dist. 59 is asking for a tax increase at an election Saturday. We believe they don't need nor deserve it. For years Dist. 59 has exceeded all neighboring districts in per pupil costs. They have chosen to ignore all warnings about rising costs and taxpayer resentment about paying them. Every year their costs increase well beyond the cost of living. Seventy one per cent of our tax bill goes for schools.

In our district the tax had risen over 10 per cent a year the last two years. Ten years of 10 per cent increases turns an $800 tax into a $2,072 tax. This has happened without passing a referendum. Where will it end if they give us a tax increase every year as the superintendent and board have said they will try to do?

If you read the detailed budget, you'll see education has become big business. The budget has more compartments than a beehive. The largest category is for salaries for the administrators and teachers. The average teacher makes $10,000 a year in this district, for fewer hours and fewer months than most of us work. Other salaries range up to $32,000. Perhaps this is why the Teachers Association is conducting a telephone campaign to get out their partisan vote and has officially endorsed the tax increase.

There are 528 teachers, enough for a class size of only 20 pupils if evenly distributed. They are supplemented by 234 non-certified employes full time, and many more part time and volunteers. Since 81 per cent of the education budget is for teacher's salaries they are expanding the costliest budget item in pushing for higher salaries, shorter hours, and smaller classes.

The Coleman report (largest and most authoritative yet) shows statistically that more money and small classes do not help student achievement. District 59's own records show their poor achievement compared to the large efficient classes in the parochial school which are at the other extreme in size and cost from theirs. Doesn't an expenditure of $31,000 per classroom of 28 students sound a little expensive for a grammar school? That's the figure you get by dividing their entire budget by the number of students. It is obvious that this system is running more for the welfare of the professionals than of the students if that group has high pay, short hours, and the students don't get as good an education as do those in poorer systems.

The district bases its tax need on the Dahl decision regarding corporate property taxes. Other districts have taken the advice that this loss of tax money is not permanent. The legislature is sure to deal with the problem if the courts don't. Your tax increase from this referendum will be permanent, so District 59 would then get a double boost, and be able to continue as the biggest spending district around.

Vote "no" Saturday, June 12, between noon and 7 p.m.

Better be there, the professionals will be.

Urges Casting Of 'Yes' Votes In Referendum

I have just received and read a flyer drom a disappointed candidate for the Dist. 59 School Board (1970).

Rejected by the voters, this man has appointed himself to decide what is fiscally prudent for the school district and what is educationally wise for my children. His own children, I understand, have not attended Dist. 59 schools in recent years. This means he has a personal interest only in denying other people's children the opportunities his own must have had if they attended our schools prior to the forced economies of the past two or three years.

I resent the blatant effort of this man to exercise power without responsibility.

I took the trouble to investigate the facts which are alleged in the flyer attributed to Mr. Roeser. Some of them are accurate, some are misleading and some are outright misrepresentation.

The people wisely rejected this man's leadership once at the polls. I urge them to do the same again. I intend to vote "yes" for District 59's financial health and the educational welfare of my children.

Lisa Patton Fund Now Holds $173

The Lisa Patton Memorial Fund to aid the family of five-year-old Lisa Patton of Schaumburg, who died May 13 after her third open heart surgery, now holds $173.

Roselle State Bank officials are handling the fund, established by neighbors of the Howard Patton family who live at 1735 Norwell Ln. Officials reported this week, $168 has been received since the first $5 donation was reported earlier his month, bringing the total donation to $173.

Mrs. Elmer Millard, a neighbor of the Pattons and organizer of the fund, said her faith in the goodness of others has been substantiated by the donations.

"I was not disappointed when only $5 was collected, the first month the fund was established. I am sure this is just the beginning of help for the Patton family," she said.

Lisa, born with extensive heart defects, was a kindergarten student at the Dooley Elementary School. Her mother, Marlene, said this surgery would have been her last corrective operation for a valve hole and aorta repair. Lisa was hospitalized 11 times.

Patton is a member of the Arlington Heights Masonic Lodge and is employed by the Alpha Alpha Engineering Firm of Mount Prospect, and Mrs. Patton works at the Fiddlers Restaurant in Mount Prospect.

Contributions may be mailed to the attention of bank official Eugene Ernestine or brought in personally.

450 Elk Grove Seniors Get Diplomas

A total of 450 students received diplomas Wednesday night in the annual commencement program at Elk Grove High School.

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, urged the students to change American society, but only through "the system."

"Reasonable appeals through effective political action" are the answer, she said, and offered examples of phone calls and letters which have brought action to problems.

"We want to help make your dreams come true," she told the students. She recalled she had served on the Dist. 214 school board at the time the site for Elk Grove High School was purchased.

Diplomas were presented to the class by Richard Bachhuber, secretary of the Dist. 214 board, and Leah Cummins, a former Dist. 214 board member.

Mrs. Cummins, defeated this spring in her bid for a third term on the board, received a plaque from Bachhuber for her service to the board.

She said she had "two intensely personal words" for the class. "Right on," she exclaimed, and the students cheered.

Robert Haskell, principal, said of the total of 477 graduates (27 had graduated in mid-year), 319 or 75 per cent would continue their formal education.

A total of 168 will or have enrolled in four-year college or university, while 119 will or have enrolled in a two-year college, he said.

Residents Fear Pal-Waukee Growth

A Wheeling citizens group has expressed fears that Pal-Waukee Airport may be expanded to become a "satellite airport for business and feeder line aircraft now using O'Hare" airport.

In the latest round of its battle with the airport, the group has persuaded the Wheeling Village Board to join it in asking the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to inform the public of its activities at the airport just south of the village.

The group told the village board that the FAA had cooperated with the airport in increasing the weight limit at the airport so that planes as large as Boeing 727 and the DC-7 could use Pal-Waukee.

The weight limit was reduced, after a lawsuit was filed, but the citizens group wants public disclosure to insure it is not raised again.

After listening to William Rogers and Robert Watts of the citizens group, the village board directed Village Atty. Paul Hamer to prepare a resolution supporting the group.

IN A WRITTEN speech Watts and Rogers told the board "We have been concerned about the extent of involvement by the FAA in the excessive expansion of this private, profit-making corporation. The use of federal funds by an agency whose own self-interest would be enhanced by the additional expansion should not go unnoticed."

Rogers told the board that the effort to get cooperation from the FAA is the latest move in the citizen's committee's 2½ year effort to have planes using the airport fly over the forest preserves instead of homes.

The new action is in addition to a suit filed against the airport owners by the state's attorney's fofice. That suit seeks to have the airport comply with provisions of a special use permit issued by the Cook County Board of Commissioners in 1964.

The suit charges that the permit has been violated by extending the runway and allowing heavier plans than specified to use the airport.

The resolution to the FAA regional director from the citizens group and the village asks the federal agency, as well as the airport owners, to abide by all provisions of the 1964 special use permit."

IT ALSO asks that the FAA "provide the public and local governing bodies with updated, detailed printed flight pattern information."

The request includes a demand that "prior to effecting any changes in operations or facility expansion, the FAA publicly reveal the specific details, petition the county authorities who will in turn conduct public hearings."

The village and citizens also ask that the federal agency "reveal the extent and amount of public funds expended annually for the past three years" at Pal-Waukee."

A spokesman for the FAA said yesterday that the agency could be expected to issue a policy statement in response to the village and citizen request.

The spokesman explained that weight restrictions on runways printed in the FAA "Airman's Information Manual" are provided by the airport. He also said that printing of flight patterns would be impossible since the tower controller sets the routes of planes on a minute to minute basis.

THE SPOKESMAN also said that notices of changes in operations or facility expansion are sent to aeronautic interests, but said they are not generally sent to the general public. FAA regulations do not require notification of the public, he said.

He said it seemed likely that FAA expenses at the Pal-Waukee tower, would also be made public. On all of his comments, however, the spokesman noted that a final decision on a reply to the village and citizens would be made by the regional director of the FAA.

In supporting their charges that the FAA is supporting its own interests by encouraging larger and heavier aircraft to use Pal-Waukee, Rogers and Watts gave the village statistics to show that "from the first day they (the FAA) took over the operation of the tower there has been a steady erosion of the permit restrictions."

"There is no doubt that the FAA's involvement at Pal-Waukee has provided the impetus and certainly the means for expanding the operations; for the benefit of the FAA, the special interest group, and for the owner, whose annual gross sales are now in excess of $5 million," they said.

Mass Flurry Of Activities For Tomorrow's Referendum

higher than anticipated and enrollment increases were lower than projected. Because of these things, Erviti has explained, the cuts were smaller than they might have been otherwise.

Erviti, who has been superintendent since July, 1970, recommended in September that the district hold a referendum to increase the tax rate this spring.

The idea was scrapped, however, and the district planned to get through the 1971-72 school year without a tax increase by having a "hold-the-line" budget and by increasing the district's borrowing position to the legal limit, Ervitti said.

SATURDAY'S referendum became necessary following a Circuit Court ruling by Judge Walter Dahl which said corporate personal property tax is unconstitutional, he said.

Dist. 59 is harder hit by the ruling because it has no more borrowing power left and because of the large number of corporations which pay the tax in thee Centex Industrial Park and other industrial areas of the township.

Legal advice given the district has been that they will not be able to borrow against corporate personal property tax money for the coming year, Erviti said. A decision on the Dahl ruling is expected from the Illinois Supreme Court in July but the district's attorney expects the case to be taken to the U. S. Supreme Court, further delaying the available money, he added.

If a final decision on the Dahl case is not made or if it is upheld, the district will have to cut its 1971-72 operating budget by eight per cent, or by more than $800,000 Erviti said.

If, on the other hand, the referendum passes and the Dahl Decision is overturned. District officials have promised that the increased tax rate will not be levied for the 1971-72 budget year.

Sugita: The Embodiment Of A Transformed Nation

by BETSY BROOKER

Kimiyoshi Sugita is a member of Japan's new breed — the product of a wave of industrialization that has transformed the onetime war-torn nation into the world's third most productive economy

Beneath his soft-spoken, reserved demeanor, there is an ambitious, determined young man who wants to see Japan's economy and relations with the United States strengthened

Kimiyoshi, 28, has left the traditional home of his family in a city near Mount Fuji and he and his wife Yumiko have an apartment in Tokyo For six years he has been employed at the Nippon Steel Co as a mechanical engineer He proudly points out that the company is the largest in Japan and produces more tonnage than any other company in the world

Six weeks ago Kimiyoshi arrived in the United States to continue his engineering training at the University of California graduate school He plans to return to Japan in two years with U S -taught skills in steel making and with a better knowledge of the English language and the American people

KIMIYOSHI HAS dived into the American culture with enthusiasm and is taking a crash course in the Western life style at the home of Mr and Mrs Harvey Sarner in Prospect Heights before moving to California. His visit is part of an "Experiment in International Living" program.

When he met the Sarners, one of the first things he said was, "Now you teach me and instruct me if I do or say anything wrong When I am in your home I want to do what is correct "

Mrs Sarner describes him as a perfectionist with an "avid curiosity We are impressed not only by his curiosity but also by his serene way of looking at life," said Mrs. Sarner "He becomes very involved in things and yet still remains calm "

The Sarners have tried to expose Kimiyoshi to a variety of facets of American life He has toured museums, universities, art galleries, and hospitals At his request, the family also took him through the slums of Chicago

The first night Kimiyoshi spent with the Sarners, he asked to join their 12-year-old daughter, Kyra, in her mathematics studies She taught him the English words for math symbols He also accompanied Kyra to a Girl Scout meeting and visited the Sarners' second daughter, Surah, at her third grade class at John Muir School

ONE EVENING, Kimiyoshi cooked a traditional Japanese dinner for the Sarners, using an electric frying pan and chop sticks. Following Japanese customs, the family ate from the table at which Kimiyoshi cooked and left their shoes at the front door

"Kimiyoshi has made a point to meet as many people as possible and has read every newspaper and magazine in the house," said Mrs. Sarner. "In America we have sort of lost the art of conversation. We rarely take the time to really communicate. We feel Kimiyoshi has helped us improve our communication. We have learned as much from him as he has from us "

If Kimiyoshi is an envoy of good will in America, his message is for the Americans and Japanese to "make much effort to solve our differences "

There are "many business problems" between the two countries said Kimiyoshi, commenting on the current controversy over reevaluation of the yen, their currency Fully 30 per cent of Japan's exports go to the United States, but Japan's sales to the United States exceed its purchases by more than $1 billion. Some American manufacturers claim Japan has an unfair advantage in world trade because the "yen is undervalued."

Kimiyoshi claims that Japan's economy is still not strong enough for reevaluation of the yen He believes the currency should eventually be reevaluated, but not now

According to Kimiyoshi, the United States is one of Japan's closest economic allies and "the most friendly country" on a political level He added "We have relied on the American economy for a long time We still do "

Charge Man With Train Theft

A Palatine man was arrested yesterday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and charged with the theft, and later wreck of a Chicago and North Western R R train

Nicki Fanelli, 20, of Palatine was placed under arrest by the agents on the basis of a warrant issued by the U.S. District Court following an indictment handed down yesterday by the federal grand jury.

The train wreck occured when someone took control of a Chicago and North Western engine on March 18 and took it to Lake Geneva, Wis where the train was found damaged. Chicago and North Western officials later estimated damage to their equipment at $300,000

FANELLI WAS CHARGED yesterday with violations of federal train wreck statutes and interstate transportatin of stolen property.

According to Charles Bates, special agent in charge of the Chicago bureau of the FBI, Fanelli was arrested yesterday at the U.S. Army induction center in Chicago where he was in the process of enlisting in the Army

Palatine police said yesterday they presently have a charge of unlawful use of weapons pending against Fanelli The charge dates back to an incident in October, 1970

Seek To Block Track Boycott

CHICAGO, UPI — Arlington Park operators went to federal court Thursday in efforts to block a horsemen's and trainers' boycott which would force cancellation of Friday's program.

Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprise, Inc , sought an injunction against the threatened boycott on grounds it would be an unlawful conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce

Named as defendants were the Chicago division of the Horsemen's benevolent and Protective Association and two of its officers, William H Bishop, president, and Michael Phelen, secretary

The horsemen have scheduled the boycott in protest of alleged delay by the Illinois Racing Board in changing medication rules for thoroughbreds

Some 120 owners and trainers have agreed not to enter horses for Friday's card

They are seeking controlled medication laws such as are in force in Nebraska, Colorado and California where the use of butazolidin and certain other analgesics are permitted.

The horse owners also said they are angered at state legislators who are trying to pass a bill to trim the owners' share of the mutual handle in purse distribution.

Tollway Bleeds Suburban Users

There has been a good deal of justifiable concern that the Illinois Toll Highway Authority is embarked on a grandiose plan of "empire building."

Neither in word nor deed, has the tollway authority given any evidence it is determined to abide by the 1953 legislation that created it. Under that enabling bill, the authority was pledged to use tolls to pay off construction bonds as quickly as possible. With the bonds retired, the tollways would be converted into freeways under the jurisdiction of the state highway department.

Yet, it is apparent motorists in northern Illinois can count on being charged to use the concrete creations for many years to come. Last year, the authority ironed out plans for construction of the East-West Tollway extension between Aurora and Rock Falls. And at the same time, tollway officials hinted more expansion plans were under serious consideration.

Subsequently, private citizens and some public officials began to wonder when the tollway authority would start thinking about meeting the requirements of the 1953 legislation. After all, the need for the East-West extension is highly questionable Despite official claims the users of the new superhighway will support the entire cost, there is good reason to predict tolls collected on the existing network will be necessary to pay off the extension

Fortunately, for those of us who are financing the tollway authority's expansionist designs one elected official has seen fit to move for a showdown State Rep. Harold A. Katz, D-Glencoe, has introduced a bill that would prevent the tollway authority from using fees to build new roads The measure, last week voted out of the Transportation Committee, faces a rough road in the house

Nevertheless, Katz is determined to force the issue. He sees the tollway authority's past performance, particularly the East-West extension plans, as a clear indication provisions of the 1953 legislation are being ignored.

"Toll roads in northern Illinois should not be mortgaged to build new ones," Katz contends. "There is no reason why the people should have to pay tolls ad infinitum."

We couldn't agree more. The tollway authority's quiet but deliberate effort to perpetuate itself not only casts an unfair financial burden on tollway users, many of whom are from the Northwest suburbs, but constitutes a betrayal of public trust.

The stiff battle Katz's bill faces will come from many forces in the legislature. Especially upsetting is the fact that one opposing power bloc consists of downstate legislators who seek to use tolls collected from northern Illinois motorists to finance construction of tollways in their districts.

While the injustice of that motive for fighting passage of the measure is blatantly evident, we suspect other opponents of the bill have little more to offer in defense of their positions. We cannot visualize how any lawmakers in good conscience can help but support an effort aimed at fulfilling an 18-year-old promise.

But promises and political performance often are separated by a great chasm. We can only hope Katz's bill won't wind up being kicked off the edge by a superior number of legislators who place self-serving political interests before the common good.

Whatever the fate of the measure, Northwest suburban residents, as regular tollway users, have a right to expect nothing less than "yea" from each of their state representatives when the final vote is taken.

Dubious Distinction

A rock formation in Meramec Caverns near Stanton, Mo., has for years been known as "Mother-in-law's Tongue" because of its resemblance to a huge human tongue The formation has just been renamed "Martha Mitchell's Tongue" in honor of the loquacious wife of the U. S. attorney general.

Mount Rushmore, it ain't, but fame is fame.

Proud Red Bird Needs 'Shoes'

Imagine a guy going to a party in top hat, white tie, striped pants and tails — and a pair of battered sneakers.

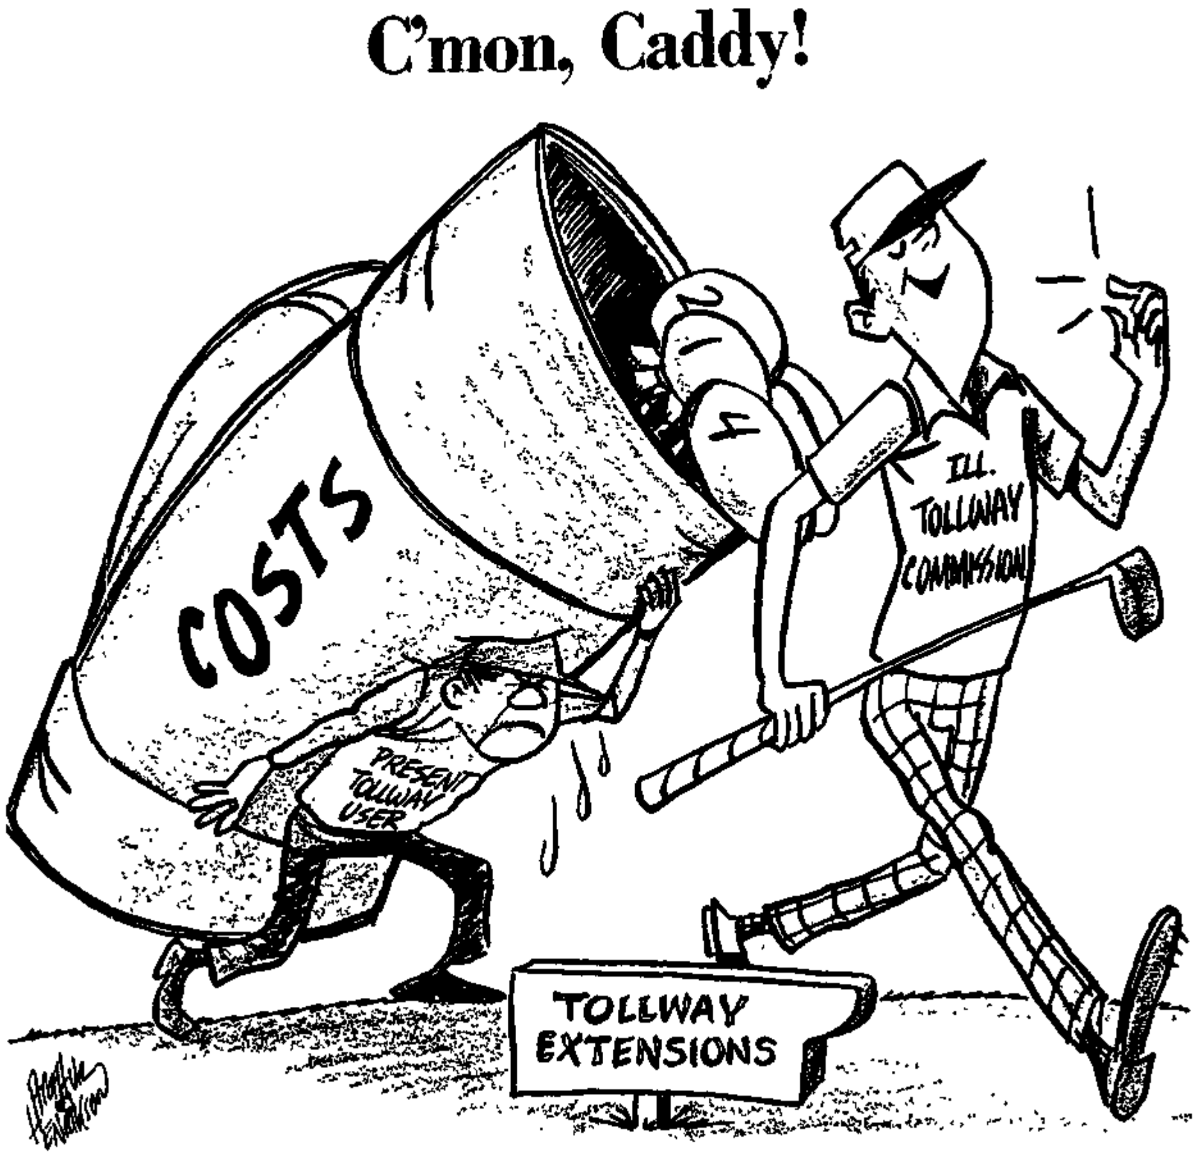
That was somewhat the impression created by Russia's Tupolev 144 supersonic transport when it landed at Le Bourget Airport for the Paris Air Show recently. Observers noted that the sleek plane, which is capable of flying 2.3 times the speed of sound, sported two large, low-pressure, soft gum tires on its front landing gear. The tires were worn down to their cords.

One French technician commented that all Soviet planes used such tires, which are designed for operating on dirt airfields. The probable reason is a lack of clean concrete runways in the Soviet Union.

The nation that produced the first commercial SST, the nation that was first in space, is in many respects still in the primitive stages of modernization.

Wonder if there is a saying in Russian to the effect that, "Any country that can land a rocket on Venus ought to be able to . . ."?

C'mon, Caddy!



Federal Budget Hurricane

by BRUCE BIOSSAT

Ten years from now, the federal budget very likely will touch an incredible new milestone: $400 billion. In government, the zero is going to be the most overworked figure on the typewriter keyboard.

On the way to that fiscal stratosphere, we probably will pass the $300-billion budget level in the year starting July 1, 1975. A new Brookings Institution budget study sees outlays for that year hitting a point just $5 billion below that level

News
Focus

The public finance experts in and out of government really haven't got around to detailed budget projections for 1981 and beyond. But their calculations for the next five years give us the astonishing clues.

For fiscal 1972, coming up in July, the U.S. budget is supposed to weigh in around the $230-billion mark. Spending trends in Congress may make that total look conservative by late this year.

If we are going to gallop past $300 billion in the succeeding four years, then a rise of another $100 billion in the following five seems a cautious forecast

What's the point of borrowing 1981's money troubles when we've got enough in 1971?

For one thing, it's a way of driving home the fact that arguments over "big government" — as measured in money terms — are largely dead. The old days are gone when a conservative might be defined as a man who wanted to spend $10 billion a year less than his liberal counterpart.

It was President Nixon, Republican, who presided over the first $200-billion budget. Should he win again in 1972, he will be the one to push us past $300 billion, and in his final year in the White House he would set the stage for the next breakthrough.

So, no realist in either party is trying to say nowadays that there is any way to get away from the sweeping money hurricane.

About all the President or anybody else can do to keep from getting dizzy over the developing figures is to put what's going on in some perspective.

The comfortable, and fortunately quite accurate, thing to say is that these enormous present and future federal budgets are not out of proportion when set against the country's economic backdrop We now have a Gross National Product of around a trillion dollars. Brookings thinks it will be close to $1.6 trillion in fiscal 1976. By 1981 it probably will be upwards of $2 trillion.

This projected economic growth is expected to produce rather lush federal tax revenues which will make the soaring budgets bearable. For instance, Brookings' new study predicts tax receipts of $312 billion in fiscal 1976. That would yield a good surplus even with $300 billion in outlays.

Bruce Biossat

With these long strings of zeroes floating around like soap bubbles, it is very difficult for some of the nation's more ambitious social programmers to realize established programs will go on getting the lion's share of bigger and bigger budgets.

Social Security, Medicare (soon to be superseded by general health insurance), education, welfare, these are the entrenched claimants — huge and growing. They all have built-in escalators based on rising population.

To talk of turning up really big money for large new programs is to talk of either substantial tax increases or very heavy cuts in defense outlays — or both. In the National Urban Coalition's energetic blueprint called "Counterbudget," both would be needed to support a proposed 1976 budget of $353 billion.

But this presumes defense slashes down to $50 billion a year outlay Sober-sided Brookings sees defense rising from $76 billion to $88 billion by 1976.

'Unborn Babies Need Your Voice'

In Springfield on May 18, the House Bill No. 1552 allowing abortion up to 12 weeks failed to pass. In the fall we will probably have to fight a similar Bill.

Is abortion the killing of an unborn child? Think about it seriously, learn what the unborn embryo looks like in its early weeks, ask questions concerning the legal atrocities committed in New York. Now if you agree it is the taking of a life, how can you say "abortion isn't for me but I don't feel as if I can impose my beliefs on another." You are allowing another to kill an unborn child who has identical rights as the mother. If the State allows abortion, then why can't one justifiably rid herself or himself of one's spouse, an elderly parent, anyone who is a heartache or nuisance.

Some say because the unborn is dependent on its mother it isn't totally human. Isn't a 9-month newborn dependent on its parent in order to develop into the human being as we know him?

You say we need to legalize abortions because there are many rape victims? There are very very few pregnancies due to rape. The law allows for procedures to be taken within 5 days after a rape in order to safeguard against a pregnancy. Better sex education would help prevent our youngsters from withholding such a tragedy.

If abortion isn't legalized, women will die having an illegal abortion, (although abortion even if done by a licensed physician in a licensed hospital is still more dangerous to her health than a full term pregnancy), a woman will be inconsolably depressed with an unwanted pregnancy, the world may have a population problem, but is part of America's answer to permit the killing of the unborn. All the wrongs in the world can't make it right.

If abortion isn't legalized in Illinois, she will show herself to be strong, positive and one that values human life above personal suffering.

We must help our neighbors after an unwanted pregnancy, or care for one of the unwanted children born today, we must look to God for encouragement, strength, and the hope we need to solve our problems in a civilized and honorable way.

The unborn babies need your voice. There are many today who are for abortion. Be vocal and write your legislators, or you may be guilty of allowing the unborn to die soon in Illinois.

Red Chinese Add To Drug Problem

As the drug abuse problem with our young people continues to grow until it is now reaching staggering proportions it should be of interest to those individuals who are promoting aid with Red China that Peking's annual exports included up to $800 million in opium and opium derivatives — chiefly heroin and morphine.

The export of narcotics is partly for the purpose of replenishing Red China's foreign exchange reserves but more important, it is aimed at destroying the anti-Communist strength in the free world, and especially that of Americans in uniform. Up to 10,000 tons of illegal opium products leave the Chinese mainland annually, by land, sea and air. This amount is more than enough for a lethal dose for the entire population of the free world.

The Red China traders should realize that their trading contributes greatly to our drug abuse problem and is playing a key role in the destruction of an entire generation in the United States.

Tenants Favored By 'Rights' Bill

In answer to your editorial (June 3) "Seek To Protect Tenants' Rights," I have a question: At what point does government stop infringing on and interfering with individual rights and property rights? This proposed legislation is but one more example of the government controlling and determining our lives.

Everybody pities the poor tenant but what about the poor apartment owners who have to contend with abuse, irresponsibility, destruction of property, and defaulting of payment? Have you ever checked into the condition of tenants' apartments, or seen how they care for them? Do you know the terrible problems faced by owners with tenants? By giving this kind of person the added power or state law backing them up in their irresponsible behavior you will only further compound the difficulty.

The answer to "tenant rights" rests not with creating a lopsided favoritism for careless and welching renters but in educating people to live in a proper, civilized manner.

Fire, Police Value Cited

Since the first of the year we have had occasion to call upon our municipal employes twice. The first was a call to our fire department to put out the fire in our laundry room. The second was for our police department when our 12-year-old son's new bike was stolen during the Memorial Day weekend.

The FENCE POST
Letters to the Editor

We cannot say enough about these two services and the cooperative men involved. Both departments are to be complimented highly for the men working in the capacities of firemen and policemen. Every one of them were courteous, efficient, pleasant, consoling, and encouraging.

Our whole family is completely enchanted with our village and it would take a complete reconstruction of our lives to move anywhere else, and when we know we can rely on services such as our fire and police departments, our enchantment is only enhanced by complete security.

Needless to say, the fire was promptly controlled and our son's bike recovered. However, in any case, the way in which both incidents were handled and the way in which we were treated was reward enough

Thank you firemen, thank you policemen — it's good to know you are around, we cannot commend you enough for your thoughtfulness. We, as a family, are glad you have chosen the professions you have and are twice as glad that you chose to perform your duties in our Village.

Bella Is 'Disgrace'

It is certainly difficult for me to understand what prompted you to print the UPI story concerning Bella Abzug in your May 26 issue. She is a foul-mouthed, anti-American disgrace to the congressional body she is part of. Any reasonable follower of today's political picture sincerely hopes her constituents will have the decency to deny her a future position in Congress.

The foolish UPI article portrays her in a politically glamorous role that is nothing short of ridiculous. I firmly believe your political editor was most unwise in permitting this article to occupy space in your paper.

Disappointed Angler

In your March 29 issue there appeared an article under the heading "Some Are So Big They'll Break A Steel Ladder On Ya'." It should have read "Steel Leader" but that's not my point.

The article is an interview with a John Schweder, park ranger at McHenry Dam State Park. It tells of the fabulous fishing experiences he has had at Lake Defiance. To quote: "Lake Defiance is perhaps the best fishing hole in the state." It's a beautiful article . . . enough to drive an avid fisherman right up the wall with desire and anticipation . . . especially in this area where good fishing spots are far and few between.

I was happy to learn about Lake Defiance, but I think it is not only cruel but almost irresponsible to print something without also warning your reader that such a Shangri-la is forbidden fruit. I drove out from Elmhurst on Memorial Day only to find the lake totally inaccessible. Even the natives of the area are forbidden entry.

Cruel . . Cruel . Cruel . . . to a disappointed reader and former Arlington Heights resident.

'Interested' Parents

Thank you very much for the coverage you have given us in the Palatine Herald during this past school year. It has been most appreciated, especially during our paper drives, Walk for Lights, Flea Market sale, etc.

However, there is one error I would like to bring to your attention in the hopes it can be corrected. The name of the parents club at Palatine High School is the "V I.P.'s" which stands for "Very Interested Parents." The Herald keeps referring to us as the Very Important Parents, which is quite embarrassing because of its egotistical ring'

If there is such a thing as a generation gap, we certainly don't want to widen it by referring to ourselves as "important parents."

Thanks again for your cooperation, and remember, we are the Very Interested Parents of Very Important Pupils.

Business Today

NEW YORK (UPI) —Although Dick Tracy has had one for many years, the two-way radio wristwatch only now is close to becoming a reality.

However it appears almost mechanically simple when compared with existing watches and those planned for the future

Henry Altorfer, president of the Watchmakers of Switzerland, predicted people in the future will press a button to get a time reading beam from an observatory. He also said watches eventually will give weather information, news flashes and stock market reports

SOME SWISS watches already on the market appear to be anticipating future events The "space watch" gives the wearer the time on other planets by moving a sliding bar The "moon watch" keeps track of the moon phases as well as giving the day, date and month and automatically knows when it's the 31st day and adjusts for leap year

Crammed on the dial of the "pilot" are movable rims that calculate air speed, fuel consumption, altitude, distance, arrival time and convert knots into miles and kilometers

For glider pilots, mountain climbers and parachutists, the "bivouac" has a barometer that indicates weather changes and an altimeter. One watch can be used in slide rule calculations. The "pulsometer" enables doctors to quickly calculate a patient's pulse and the "mareographe' shows tides and records elapsed time for yachtsmen.

THE LATEST advance in Swiss watchmaking, Altorfer said, was the quartz watch. "With accuracy up to one minute a year, it is the most precise timepiece in the world," he explained "But it is still in the early stages of production and considerably expensive"

Watchmakers also have been designing timepieces with an eye to fashions. For hotpants, the Sheffield Watch Corp. in New York is offering a jumbo watch that is strapped around the thigh Altorfer said the Swiss have fashion color-coordinated dials to match attire

Although the Swiss hold 47 per cent of the world market 97 per cent of their watches are exported, Altorfer predicted competition will push the hundreds of existing small Swiss firms into 10 or fewer companies in about 20 years.

Personal Finance

by RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

Buying a house can be a pretty emotional experience, perhaps even a little more than you bargained for.

There's the instant infatuation with the home of your dreams, the nagging fear that you may lose it to another buyer, and the developing glow as the day of actual ownership approaches.

But that glow is often dampened by doubts about that very moment when title passes from seller to buyer. There are almost as many horror stories about "the closing," as it's known, as there once were about childbirth.

This fear of the closing is compounded mostly from exaggerated truth. In some areas, the buyer does have to write a lot of checks, there are a lot of papers to sign and there may be a room full of people he has never seen before (and will likely never see again).

But there need be little mystery about it, since it follows a precise pattern that in its essentials varies little from state to state. Here is an explanation of the usual items for which fees must be paid at the closing:

• Processing Fees — These are fees you pay to the man who is lending you the mortgage money. They are to reimburse him for all kinds of things from paperwork to outside charges. Don't be surprised if they equal one per cent of the mortgage amount.

• Other Lending Charges — The lender may also charge you for the cost of a credit investigation, the fee for his attorney and a fee for appraising the property. Under some circumstances he may drop the appraisal fee, but on FHA and VA loans such an appraisal is required, and someone must pay for it

• Title Insurance — You pay this amount to a title insurer who guarantees that the man who is selling you the property really owns it. The insurer tries to make sure of this by searching all records, but if it turns out he is wrong, he will fight all suits and pay up if you lose

Be forewarned: there are two such policies. One is called a mortgage policy and covers the property for only the amount of the mortgage. If anything goes wrong, the lender gets his money back, but you are left holding the rest of the bag For an extra fee, you can get an owner's policy that provides similar protection for you

• Taxes — The usual arrangement is for you and the man selling the property to divide the year's taxes. with each paying a share based on the number of days he is the legal owner. If taxes are prepaid, this means you will have to reimburse him for what he has laid out in your behalf.

• Lot Survey — You may be required to pay for a survey of the property. This will prove that the lot lies where the documents say it does, and that all buildings on it conform to the setback requirements

• Hazard Insurance — Once you own the new place, you will want to insure it against fire and other hazards. Just to be on the safe side, the lender is going to want evidence that this little matter has been taken care of.

• Your Own Lawyer — Usually your lawyer will wait until the sale is completed before he will render his bill. This is just understatement, however, and he will be happy to get his fee at the closing, too, if you like

NEW YORK (UPI) —"With a prospect of four or five quarters of expanding corporate earnings, the stock market should perform favorably over at least the next six months," according to Halsey, Stuart & Co Although the firm says high interest rates may "siphon" some funds away from stocks, it does not expect it "to become a serious problem as long as the earnings picture is improving."

THE LONG-TERM picture for the economy, corporate earnings and monetary fundamentals "all point to further gains in stock prices," Value Line believes. The newsletter urges "100 per cent" investment in stocks "well ranked for probable relative market performance over the next 12 months." Job Hunting? This Man Can Help Flexibility is the key to many a middle management man's future, according to William A. Murphy, president of the National Employment Association.

"Right in the Chicago metropolitan area, there is a shortage of qualified applications for this type of work," said Murphy, who also is president of Murphy Employment Service, which includes a Mount Prospect office.

"At the same time, there are a number of out-of-work middle management applicants, generally around 45-50 years old, and in the $20,000 -a-year income brack-

"We say that the 50-year-old man who has lost his job is young enough to start all over again, if he is flexible," said Murphy. "To make a new start, he must first evaluate his skills, and decide who would benefit most from these skills.

"Then he should contact the industries where he would be needed, figuring that if his talent was good enough once, he can do it all over again.

"Unfortunately, many unemployed management personnel are afraid to do this — they think it was a lucky break that accounted for their earlier success. They think they are a failure," Murphy said.

A MORE reasonable approach is to realize that a man can often make a more meaningful contribution at a small company than at the large company where he was kicked out, Murphy said.

"Success is not a destination; it is a journey, Murphy counsels. "Nobody ever 'has it made.' A man who has lost his confidence when he lost his job must build his confidence again. He needs to realize that if he can carry his weight, he can get a new job.

"The best thing for the unemployed middle management man is to go to a good employment agency," Murphy said.

"Some specialize in a given field, and the applicant can tell the employment counselor exactly what he is looking for." He also advises recent college graduates to look to private agencies for job-seeking advice.

Murphy sees the current abundance of unemployed middle management personnel as a temporary situation. "There will be a tremendous shortage of these people in the next five or six years," he said.

THE CURRENT downtrend in employment will benefit the consumer, said Murphy. "There is a challenge of survival in finding a job right now," he said. "For the last 20 years we have been buying goods and services produced by people who didn't care about their jobs. Maybe this situation will make a difference, so a job will be more important and the resulting products will be of a better quality."

There are severe labor shortages in several fields despite today's generally tight job market, Murphy said. "The biggest shortage is in the clerical and stenographic help," he said. "Most of these employes are female, but there is a crying need for both male and female applicants."

Another area of concern for employment agencies is the unemployed veteran. Murphy is a member of the National Advisory Committee for the Jobs for Veterans Program. He said the national organization is forming liaisons with state employment and veterans associations to boost the hiring of veterans.

The group distributes employment information to former servicemen at separation points, and is contacting the governor of every state to assist in the Jobs for Veterans Program Illinois will be in the forefront of this movement, with new action programs slated to be effected within the next month, Murphy said.

JOB-HUNTING service is offered through the private agencies represented by National Employment Association and by the United States Employment Service, their biggest competitors. "The U.S. Employment service does a good, efficient job on a national scale, using computerized service," said Murphy. "However, we often find that this type of service is not necessary, because most job-seekers stay in a general area."

The NEA recently completed a study of the personnel departments in the 500 largest corporations in the U.S. The results indicate that the majority rely on the services of private employment agencies for their recruiting efforts.

Don't Be Caught With Estimated Tax Penalty

For the past few years, many surprised taxpayers have been receiving notices of estimated tax penalty from the IRS. These notices are mailed to taxpayers who should have filed a declaration of estimated tax the previous year but did not.

Estimated tax and estimated filing are areas that always seem to cause confusion and misunderstanding among taxpayers. Basically, estimated tax is the amount by which the total of your estimated income tax and self-employment tax exceed the expected withholding of tax from your pay. For example, if you estimate that your total income tax for 1971 will be $1,800 and your total withholding will be $1,200, your estimated tax will be $600.

You must file a declaration of estimated tax if your estimated tax is $40 or more for the coming year. Generally, self-employed persons, persons who receive large amounts of dividends, interest, pensions and other income not covered by withholding, have to file an estimate. In addition, people who have two jobs, or married couples who both work, may find it necessary to file an estimate.

One way many persons avoid filing an estimated tax return is to increase the amount withheld by their employer by claiming fewer exemptions than they are actually entitled to. An employe can also ask his employer to withhold more than the amount shown on the withholding tables.

THERE ARE A number of ways to compute your estimated tax. But essentially, determine what you anticipate your total income will be for the year, then subtract your deductions and exemptions from this amount, and apply the tax rates for that year. This will give you your estimated income tax Now, estimate the amount of tax, if any, that will be withheld from your salary; your estimated tax will be the difference between your estimated income tax and your estimated withholding.

The estimated tax is payable in four installments. The first installment is due with the declaration of estimated tax on April 15. The other installments are due June 15, Sept. 15 and Jan. 15.

If, during the year, you have any changes in income, exemptions, or deductions, you may amend your estimated declaration and adjust your remaining payments accordingly.

If you fail to pay the correct installment of estimated tax, or you fail to pay estimated tax at all when you are required to, you may be subject to a penalty of 6 per cent per year on the amount that should have been paid. Besides sending out penalty notices, the IRS also sends out estimated Tax Forms, 1040ES, to persons who had more than $40 due the previous year who should consider filing the declaration.

When you file your return the estimated tax is treated like withholding and applied against your income tax.

Don't you be caught with an ES penalty this year; check to see whether you should file a declaration of estimated tax.

The Doctor Says

Heart Murmur Can Be Caused By Blood Flow

by LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb —I am a 13-year-old girl and last year while I was having a physical examination my doctor said that I had a heart murmur Since then I have had two chest X rays and electrocardiograms because of severe chest pain which I get from running or playing active games I also have a small lump which is sometimes painful in the middle of my chest Could this be a hernia? What exactly are heart murmurs? What could my chest pain be caused from? Will I outgrow these pains?

Dear Reader —A heart murmur is an audible vibration or sound, caused by the circulation through the heart If you squeeze on a garden hose while water is running through it you can feel the vibrations caused by the water in the hose The same type of vibrations can be caused by blood flow.

Now many young people have murmurs that are perfectly normal and result from the turbulence of their normally active young circulations In other instances the murmur turbulence is caused by a defect in the heart from birth or following rheumatic heart disease affecting one of the heart valves. The normal murmurs can be ignored If there is a change or abnormality in the structure of the heart, then an operation is sometimes indicated Careful studies have to be made before an operation is advised since not all defects are benefited by surgery

Your letter tells me that you do not know if you have a problem with your heart or not. I think it is important that you do know, and also know if you need to limit your activities, have heart surgery or, in fact, have nothing at all wrong with your heart. It would be a big mistake to allow yourself to become an invalid if you had nothing wrong with your heart

Why don't you ask your parents to find out from your doctor if he thinks your murmur is just a normal finding or if he thinks you have a problem?

I assume that your doctor does not think you have had rheumatic heart disease or he would surely have given you some regular medicine to protect you from a recurrence and further heart damage as recommended by the American Heart Assn. So it is probably something you were born with — or nothing

Lumps have to be examined to determine their significance Hernias do not usually occur through the chest wall unless there is previous surgery Chest pain can be caused from a variety of problems including muscle spasms (Newspaepr Enterprise Assn)

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Put yourself in South's position You have bid three no-trump because you feel that your four aces will be worth a trifle more than their 16 points West opens the king of diamonds When you look over dummy you count only eight tricks and no place to look for a ninth except in the spade suit.

You win the first diamond because you don't want a shift to hearts and start after spades. If you could see your opponents' cards you could be sure of three spade tricks You can't so you want the play that is most likely to succeed

This play is to lead low from either hand and take the double finesse. This will give you your third trick any time both honors are in the hand you led through or the honors are split and the one in the hand you led through is not protected by more than two small cards

You can go either way, but decide to lead through West because he just might hold five diamonds and you don't want him winning that first spade trick

So South leads a spade to dummy's eight spot at trick two East takes his jack and the defense cashes three diamonds before knocking out the ace of hearts South then plays dummy's king [illegible] back to his hand with the ace of clubs, lays down his ace of spades and claims his contract when the queen drops.

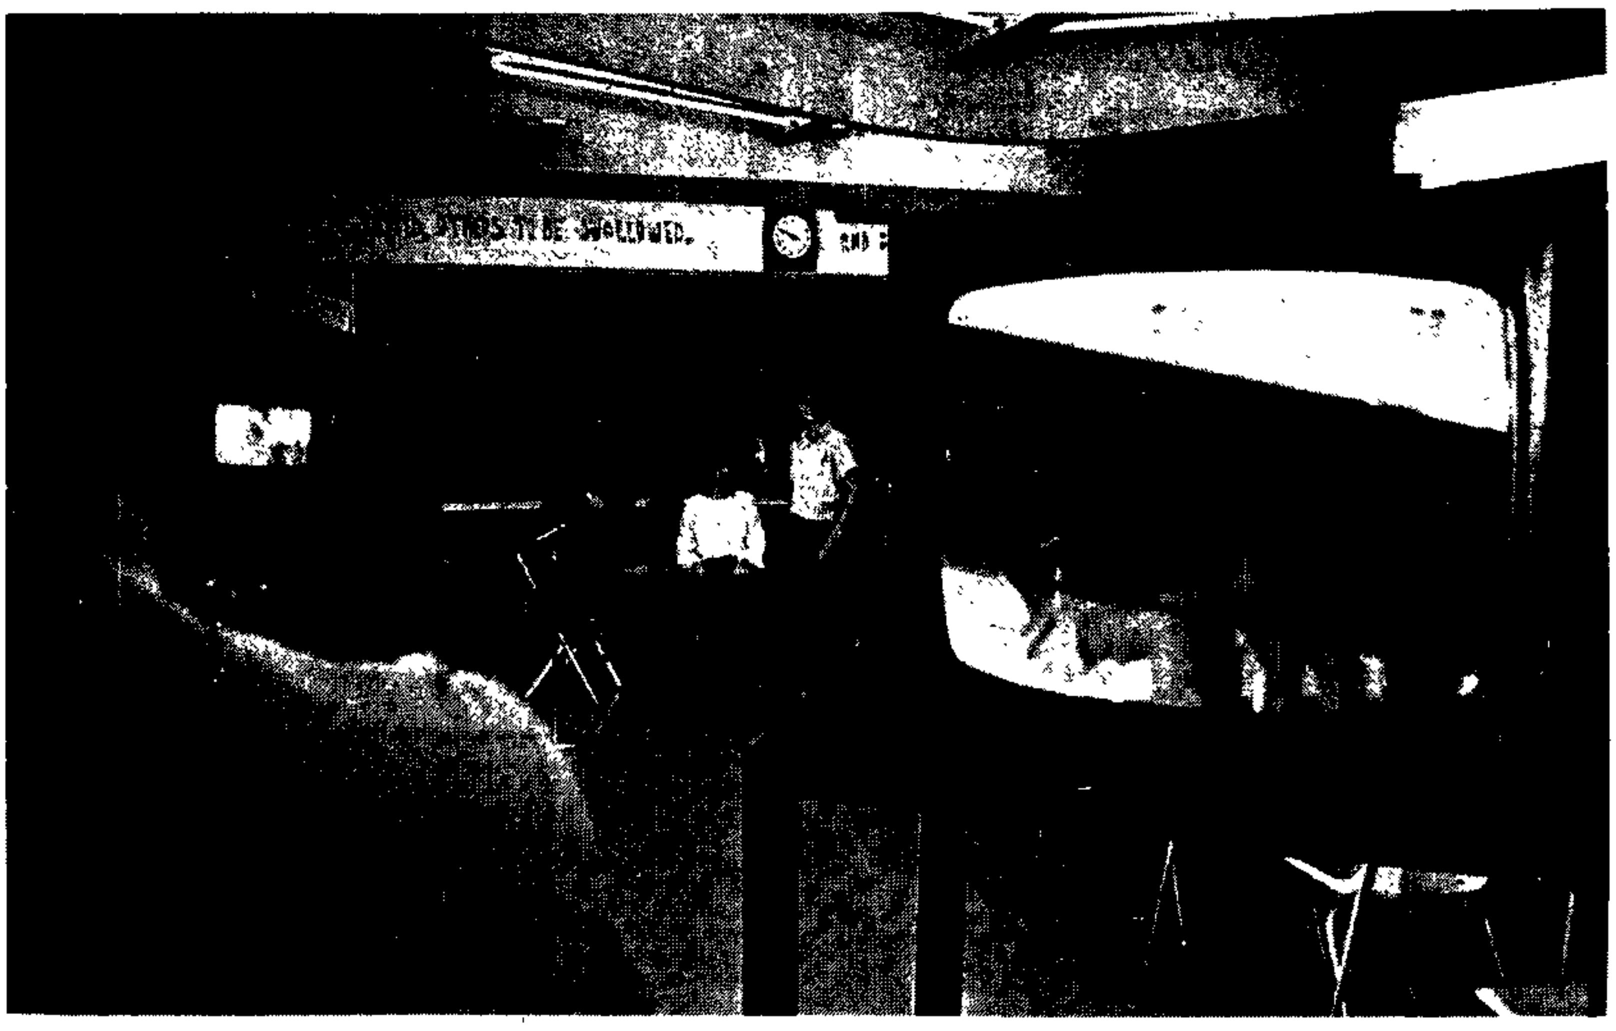
Consumerism Enters Education



EIGHTH GRADE STUDENTS at Winston Park Junior High in Palatine create a product, write, stage and video-tape a commercial for their product as part of their consumer education. District 15 is one of very few elementary districts that have instituted a formal consumer education curriculum.

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Young people have more money to spend today than they have ever had before. Government and educators are making an all-out effort to teach these eager consumers how to spend their money wisely.

Illinois law requires that 8th through 12th grade public school students receive consumer education instruction. This instruction should include, but not necessarily be limited to, installment purchasing, budgeting and comparison of prices. The law was passed Aug. 11, 1967.

In reply to the law, many elementary and high school districts in the northwest suburbs have created excellent consumer education courses. Some have inserted these courses into curricula already being taught. Others have designed units dealing specifically with consumer education. Still others are in the middle of drafting programs for their fall schedules.

THIS TYPE OF education can begin as early as first grade. District 54 (Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg) is the only district in this area with a formal consumer education curriculum that begins in the first grade.

A system, published by Nobel and Nobel, is being used in grades 1-6. With the help of transparencies, work sheets and other aids, students are taught the basic American economic system, including supply and demand, banking, and credit.

The junior high curriculum is based around "Life On Paradise Island," published by Scott Foresman. Students get a more in-depth look at economics as they follow a group of people who create a society from scratch on an island. They also learn comparative economic systems.

BY THE TIME they enter high school, District 54 students have a background in stocks, securities, bonds and all phases of consumer education. Their experience has been practical as well as theoretical: they study money exchange; they hold bartering sessions, they study banking, they set up their own bank.

Doing — rather than hearing — is extremely important on the elementary and junior high levels. When District 21 (Wheeling, Prospect Heights and Buffalo Grove) students begin their formal program next fall, they will write their congressmen for information on taxes, and budget their allowance, keeping records of what they spend.

Susan Gellersted at London Junior High, Wheeling, turned her classroom into a company this year. She created a company, sold shares of stock to her students, bought raw pop corn with the money, and sold the popped popcorn at a profit. The students then reinvested their money, bought carmel apples, sold them and wound up with a 70-cent return on their initial 10-cent investment when they finally dissolved their enterprise.

ELEMENTARY HOME economics departments give food and clothing consumer education as part of their instruction. Labeling, price comparison and quality of articles are included.

Percentages, comparative figures of measurement and pricing are incorporated into mathematics. Advertising can be studied in social studies.

Eighth grade students in District 15 (Rolling Meadows and Palatine) study the techniques of advertising in an unusual way. Classes are divided into groups and each group is asked to either invent a product or change an existing product. They write advertising copy for their product and design a television commercial. Their commercials are video-taped by teachers and played back for the classes. All this takes place after the class has had instruction on the types of advertising, what make people buy, etc.

AS SCHOOL DISTRICTS prepare to meet the state law, they survey how much consumer education is already being taught in other curricula. In most every case the minimum requirements are met.

"Our curriculum council has studied the amount of consumer education we are already teaching," said Dr. Roderick McLennan, assistant superintendent of High School District 214 (Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove and Wheeling). "We believe our students will have touched on the information in the courses they already take."

The philosophy of this district is to integrate consumer concepts rather than set up another required course for students.

"This is the time when we put the students through more required courses than ever before," McLennan said. "We will build it in rather than add new requirements."

District 214 has consumer education in its social studies, math, business and home economic curricula. McLennan added that teachers are recognizing the importance of teaching the subject and are sent to seminars to increase their skills and knowledge.

DISTRICT 211 (Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, and Palatine) plans on installing a required consumer education course next fall. A curriculum study is under way currently.

Dr. John Odell,, assistant superintendent of the district, said "The requirements of the law are already met by our courses in family living, work study programs and general business courses. We also have a course in consumer problems which deals with the basics — shopping, labels, guides and laws which affect the consumer."

"We don't feel we are giving enough," Odell continued. "Most of our students are in a college entrance curriculum which leaves them little time for additional courses. If we implement consumer education it will be given for nine weeks during the junior physical education class."

STUDENTS IN WENDY STOKES' first grade class at Brentwood School, Des Plaines (District 59), touch on consumer education during their social studies lessons. Eddie Czapla learns supply and demand and where food comes from, his teacher.

Consumer education is already required in District 207 (Des Plaines). The nine-week course delves into budgeting, installment buying and pricing. Business education and home economics teachers instruct the course at the junior level.

"IT IS A NON-GRADED, non-credit course," said William Will, chairman of the Department of Business for Maine East High School, "but it must be taken for a student to graduate."

District 207 is developing a proficiency test (something District 214 is also considering) so that students who are able to pass this test will not have to take the required course. Also, students with credits in general business or home planning and design are exempt from the course.

Lucille Stiles, chairman of the Home Economics Department at Maine West, said, "Our goal is not to make experts out of them (students) but to make them aware of their rights as consumers and to be good consumers."

By the time a northwest suburban student completes high school, he should have a practical knowledge of credit, budgeting, all forms of installment buying, insurance, comparative housing, taxes, advertising, labeling, packaging, etc. — probably more knowledge than many adult consumers.

Two Area Artists At Countryside

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Two local artists are featured in Countryside Art Center's June show. Both are men, and both are graduates of the School of the Art Institute of Chicago.

Half of the show is given over to sculpture by Joseph Burlini of Arlington Heights. While primarily noted for his antiquated looking machines that comment on man's progress and technology, Burlini is showing mainly work from an earlier phase of his career involving much heavier construction pieces.

Like his "go nowhere machines" mounted on connecting spoked wheels arranged in a circle (one example is included in this exhibit), the heavy pieces still have the illusion of movement by containing a sense of growth or branching out.

UPON CLOSER examination, one finds that Burlini's pieces molded from steel and bronze also have a great deal of interesting texture.

The remaining half of the two-man exhibition is made up of the works by an Elk Grove Village resident, Bruce Preo, who teaches art at Forest View High School and Harper College.

Regardless if one agrees or disagrees with subject matter, the female anatomy, his unusual techniques and quality of his work must be admired. His pieces involve a variety of media, including lithographs and acrylics.

A STRIKING characteristic about much of Preo's works is the detailed subject matter within each piece. This is particularly evident with his large collage entitled, "Choice not Chance — Go Army."

The present show focusing on Bruce Preo and Joseph Burlini will remain at the gallery through July 7. Visitors may view the show Tuesday through Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m. Countryside Art Center is located at 407 N. Vail in Arlington Heights.

The craft gallery, located upstairs in the gallery, is not open during the summer months. New artisans will be exhibiting again next fall.

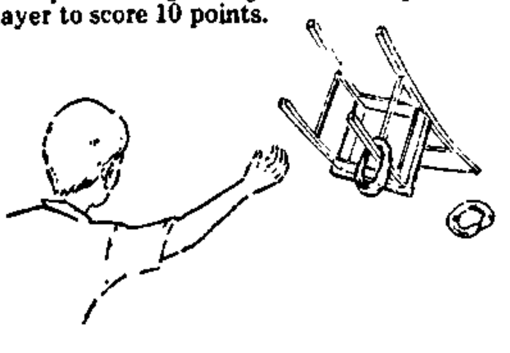
LEG LOOPERS

by Marilyn Hallman

To play this game you'll need a chair and three foil hoops. (Make a hoop by crushing an 18-inch length of aluminum foil. Squeeze one end around the other end to form a ring.) Turn a chair upside down with the legs pointing toward you. Stand back 6 to 8 feet. Try to toss the hoops over the chair legs. Each hoop that rings a leg scores one point. Winner is the first player to score 10 points.



Fun For All At The Fair

Pony rides and an outdoor auction are among attractions this weekend at a Countryside Fair aimed at raising funds for Countryside Center for the Handicapped, a nonprofit private facility located on Shirley Road, Palatine.

James Nowlin of Palatine, chairman of the parents' group which sponsors the annual two-day fair, says the project started as a fun day for the school's children "and just snowballed."

Countryside parents this year hope to raise $5,000 from the fair, open from 1 to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Fifty sets of parents will pitch in to help man the game booths, gift shop, bake sale tables and refreshment stands.

A group of Arlington Heights District 25's special education and junior high teachers will again handle drink sales and seven other civic and community groups throughout the north and northwest suburban area will also volunteer workers for the fair.

They include the local chapter of the National Council of Jewish Women, Palatine Junior Woman's Club, Palatine Jaycees, Palatine Kiwanis Club, Wheeling Lions Club, Barrington Junior Woman's Club and Girl Scout Cadet Troop 612 of Palatine.

Fair chairmen include Tom Donahue, Mrs. G. E. Goodmanson, Mrs. Stanley Hughes and Mr. and Mrs. George Van Hoorebeke, all of Palatine.

Countryside Director Ralph Walberg of Mount Prospect says the day school program offers instruction to multiple handicapped, mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed youngsters from preschool through 15 years.

The rehabilitation workshop at the center serves adolescents and adults with a variety of special vocational needs. While some of the workshop clients are too handicapped to work in a regular job setting, many of the others graduate to employment in private industry.

Spring Wedding For Jean Unander

A springtime wedding in the First United Methodist Church of Arlington Heights united Jean Marjorie Unander of Arlington Heights and Michael Robert McGuire of Deerfield. The bride is the daughter of the Clarence J. Unanders, and the groom's parents are the John McGuires.

A reception at Old Orchard Country Club followed the double ring ceremony performed by Dr. Charles Jarvis. The newlyweds honeymooned at The Abbey at Lake Geneva.

They are living in an apartment in Arlington Heights, and the groom is working for the Xerox Corporation. Both Jean and Michael are graduates of Western Illinois University; Jean is also a graduate of Arlington High School.

The Home Line

Dear Dorothy: A porcelain pot was left on a hot electric burner and some of the porcelain adhered solidly to the burner ring. Is there a way to get it off?—Mrs. J. C. Gidel.

No. Some of it might wear off, but that's it. It doesn't look good, but it won't affect the burner's efficiency.

Dear Dorothy: Overheard two young mothers on the bus complaining that their babies were allergic to plastic or rubber panties — and wondering what to do about it. It has been my experience that most mothers don't change the baby's diaper as often when these panties are worn, and with the airtight panty on, the moisture couldn't help but aggravate the tender skin of the infant. That may not be the answer for all babies, but I believe that if diapers were changed more often, there would be less of this talk about the baby being allergic to the protective panties.—Ida G.

Dear Dorothy: I had looked discouragingly at the mildewy-looking stains on the bathtub and drainboard mats without an idea of what to do. In desperation, I sprinkled on plenty of a chlorine-based scouring powder, then used a stiff brush — with plenty of elbow grease. Rinsed the mats well, then hung them outside to dry. They looked brand new.—Mrs. Edwin B.

Arlington Park Theatre

July Premiere Preparations

The new Arlington Park Theatre is in its final stage of construction in preparation for the July 1 opening.

Joan Fontaine and Ray Milland will star together in the premiere production, at the theater, "Relatively Speaking," a British comedy.

Already busy with rehearsals in New York, the two former Academy Award winners will arrive in Arlington Heights this Monday.

Douglas Seale is directing the Alan Ayckbourn play which will run through Aug. 22. He is the only director who has directed at all three Stratfordks: England, Canada and Connecticut.

From 1958 to 1960 he was associate director of the Old Vic. Off-Broadway Seale directed a revival of "The Importance of Being Earnest."

THIS SEASON SEALE, who is co-producing director at the Goodman Theatre of Chicago, directed "Lady Audley's Secret." There are rumors that David Merrick is interested in bringing that production to New York.

"Ticket sales are excellent," said David Lonn, one of two producers of the Arlington Park Theatre. Charles Booth is his partner.

While initial support is expected to be drawn from the Northwest suburban area, theatergoers from the entire Chicago area are showing interest in the new theater, according to Lonn.

"We expect to be sold out the entire run," he added. There is already an option to extend the play an additional two weeks if necessary.

THE ARENA-TYPE theater will seat 723 persons. No member of the audience is more than 23 feet from the edge of the stage.

" 'Relatively Speaking' is a comedy of errors," explained Lonn. "It is a very funny well constructed play which ran two years in London."

Ayckbourn's current play, "How the Other Half Loves," is now on Broadway with Phil Silvers.

A greater emphasis will be placed on comedy and comedy drama at Arlington Park Theatre rather than experimental or contemporary works. Lonn is most concerned with entertaining his audience.

"WE DON'T WANT people going out arguing over the meaning of what they've just seen," he said.

Future plays are still being discussed. While other big name stars have been contacted, no announcement has been made as to what play will follow the run of "Relatively Speaking."

"The important thing right now is getting the theater opened properly and developing an audience," continued Lonn.

However, long term plans for the theater do include hosting fashion shows, concerts and special programs during the day.

Further ideas include a children's theater and a special apprenticeship program to allow young talent to come in and learn.

THE NEW ARLINGTON Park Theatre is contiguous to the Arlington Park Towers Hotel and immediately west of the Arlington Park Race Track. Telephone reservations are now being accepted, 392-6800.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

The million plus readers of Rodale Publications were shocked to learn of J. I. Rodale's death Monday.

The founder of the organic gardening movement, Mr Rodale expired while taping the Dick Cavett TV show

Mr Rodale pioneered the non-chemical farming and gardening approach in the 1940s. He was undaunted by ignorant skeptics anxious to attack the method without benefit of their own experience.

Events of the last few years have changed a lot of minds Today organic gardening comes on strong again, this time with a greater impact because of increased public awareness of environmental problems.

All of us owe a debt of gratitude to J. I Rodale, who left a sensitivity to soil as a lasting legacy

HOW DOES YOUR garden grow? With aphids and ants, spittle bugs, and mealy bugs, borers and tent caterpilars, mites and moths, cottony scale and inchworms?

These are the worst problems this season. The spring cankerworms (also called inchworms, measuring worms) are so bad that area children are holding impromptu contests to see who can collect the most. I saw one child who had a bucket brimming full of the inchworms.

The total impact of the inchworm problem hit home when I went for a walk in the forest preserve earlier in the week. I saw many, many of the creepy crawlers dangling from spindly threads in the air, dropping off on my clothes.

I thought I heard the sound of rain when it wasn't raining. It finally dawned on me the sound was literally millions of inchworms eating their way through the foliage. It was an eerie and totally revolting experience.

IF WE DON'T GET the inchworms' natural predators, the ladybugs, released now in quantity, the inchworms will defoliate many, many trees this season. Tree Tanglefoot bands prevent the worms from crawling up the trunks.

If you are a homeowner, use these two suggestions as precautionary measures if you are fortunate enough to have escaped inchworm invasion thus far this season

The pathetic thing about using insecticides is just that most people are uninformed as to their use and application

The other day I walked up to a man who was using a spray in an area where it is banned.

"What's that you're using, sir?" I asked him.

"It's cucumber spray If you don't spray cucumbers when they come up, the bugs will get them," he said

"WHERE DID YOU hear that?" I asked.

"I don't know. Somebody told me," he responded.

"Have you ever tried onions, garlic or marigolds between the hills?" I offered.

"No, but I heard that was no good," he answered

"What's the spray you're using?" I asked

"I don't know Just a spray," he said

"Yes, but WHAT'S IN THE SPRAY?" I demanded.

"I don't know I don't have time to talk. I just do what they tell me."

Willow Brook Center Begins Art Classes

A 150-year-old farm near Long Grove is the setting for a creative arts enterprise, Willow Brook Art Center, patterned after the Montsalvart Art Colony in Melbourne, Australia.

Nearly a dozen different courses in arts and crafts will begin Monday, June 21, in the white barns trimmed in blue that have been renovated to provide studio space for courses in miniature rooms, macrame, painting, papier mache, metal flowers, dried flowers, decoupage, ceramics and stitchery.

A class in Cordon Bleu cooking is scheduled, and a body dynamics and figure control class will meet outdoors beside a pool in fair weather.

Bonnie and Jon Henricks created the art center four years ago. Henricks is vice president of DoAll Co. in Des Plaines. Mother of three, Bonnie teaches papier mache.

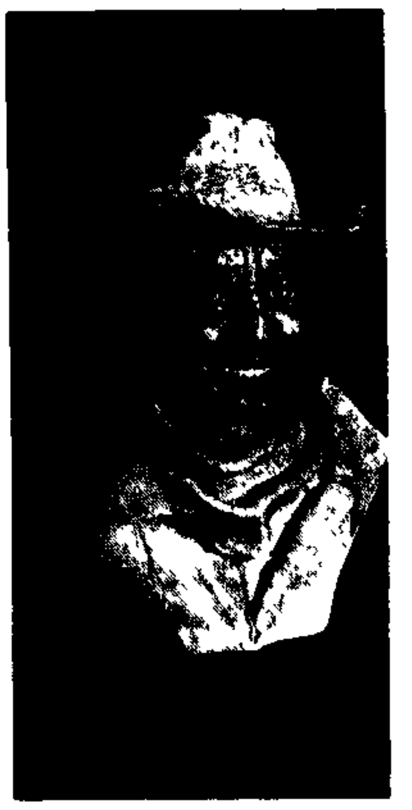
An open house for prospective students will be held this Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m., at which time the instructors will exhibit samples of their work.

Bonnie Henricks

Classes for children will also be offered in such crafts as clay, wood, sand casting and collage. A baby sitting service will be provided for students with young children.

Willow Brook Art Center is located north of Long Grove on Highway 22, one half mile west of Route 83.

Further information is available through Bonnie Henricks, NE 4-3738.



WHEN MODELING "The Trailhand," :d Rohn captured the philosophy of iving from day to day, the look of "take life as it comes."

Porcelain Art Being Shown

Busts in porcelain by Edward J. Rohn will be exhibited at Persin and Robbin Jewelers next Monday through Saturday, June 19. The artist himself will be present at the store the final day of his exhibit.

Self-taught in sculpturing and the technology of porcelain, the Oak Park artist not only creates the original, but personally does the production, china painting and firing

Rohn, at first convinced that his art interest was to remain in the background, majored in marketing in college.

DURING HIS FINAL year in school, a fellow student asked his help in doing a clay bust for a final exam. Once Rohn had worked in clay, he found the concept of three-dimensional presentation a more satisfying expression than his previous sketching and painting

Persin and Robbin is located in the Dunton Court Shopping Center in Arlington Heights.

Nostalgia Fills BOB Stage

With a hint of nostalgia, Best Off Broadway Players will open its spring musical, "Take Me Along," next weekend, June 18, at Wheeling High School.

Although the membership in the group is drawn from 15 different suburbs, the five major leads are all residents of Arlington Heights.

Bob Esvang is Sid, simultaneously the grand old vaudevillian, the master of the belly laugh and the song-and-dance man who can peddle a tune to a deaf walrus 20 fathoms below.

Charmaine Sayre creates the delicacy and tenderness of Lily. Yet she retains her dignity and grace even while her bottom is being slapped by the boisterous Sid.

Bob Hawley is the small town newspaper publisher. As the patriarch of a good and honest clan, his challenging function is to keep them both good and honest.

As Richard, the ingenuous fledgling intellectual. Don Potter insinuates that an adolescent's fondest hope is to be given several opportunities to die gloriously in the name of true love. Potter makes it seem almost a pity that Richard not only survives, but goes to Yale as well.

A family as flamboyant as the Millers must somehow be nailed in place. Kay Hawley as Nat's wife, Essie, brings hammer and spikes to the musical. Her skill as an actress is fully demonstrated in husband-doting, sister-in-law advising, son-disciplining and presiding over a dinner nobody wants to eat.

"Take Me Along" will mark the first appearance in a musical production for the Hawleys, longtime performers with Village Theatre of Arlington Heights who are husband and wife offstage as well as on.

Mark Ganzell of Chicago is director. Musical director is Bill Cotsakis of Palatine. Nana Shineflug of Glenview is serving as choreographer.

"Take Me Along" will also be presented June 19, 25 and 26. Curtain is 8:30 p.m.

Tickets, CL-3-4441 after 5 p.m.

Chintz For Today

Chintz — '70s version — is a polyester and cotton blend, splashed with color and treated to a resin finish made to withstand repeated launderings.

Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

It's almost that time, the annual migration of the beady-eyed bargain buyer and the primitive prize picker. These are rather common breeds of birds who leave the Midwest about the time school is out and head for New England to stock up and lay in a store of antiques for the winter season.

Since our country had its beginnings on the northeast coast, it stands to reason the older things are still more plentiful in that area, and I know dozens of dealers who pack the toothbrush and wash-and-wear shirt or dress and head for Vermont or New Hampshire on their vacations, leaving as much room as possible in the van or station wagon for their prizes.

Last year two teacher friends, a husband-and-wife team of part-time antiquers, really goofed. They made their first purchase, an immense cherry corner cupboard, which filled the entire back of their "wagon," and all the buying they did afterward was pushed, shoved and wedged into the little seat area remaining, practically immobilizing them for the remainder of their trip.

PRIMITIVES ARE THE goal of most dealers in New England — Shaker and Colonial furniture, tinware, woodenware, copper, old tools, implements — all those things so avidly sought by lovers of Early Americana. As one travels south and west, the trend seems to be toward what we call the "arty" antiques: colored glass, bronzes, jewelry, paintings, Oriental rugs, and the later, more ornate furniture.

Since antiques have traveled west and south with the growth of the country, it is thought there are few bargains to be found in those areas, but I disproved that in a modest way on my recent trip to Dallas. The purpose of the trip was the pleasure of seeing No. 1 son graduated from SMU law school, but since my daughter-in-law has a severe case of antique fever, we made several forays into the local antiques shops, "junque emporiums" and even garage sales.

"WE WERE LUCKY enough to happen upon an estate sale, and one of my finds was a two-pound coffee can of old marbles, covered with two generations of dust and mud. We took them home, washed them and discovered, among the ordinary glass varieties, several German swirls, a couple of "aggies" and a few "crockies." The swirls are handblown glass with twists of color inside, aggies are agates, a mined material, and crockies are china or crockery glazed marbles. The lady whose belongings were being sold had been surprised that anyone would want old marbles, and probably felt that I had lost some of mine.

Dallas shopkeepers were charming and gracious, and very interested in the antique world of the Midwest. Several said they did their buying "up North or East." One dealer asked me if I were interested in "picking" for her, which has nothing to do with crops. A picker is a wholesaler who supplies dealers with antiques. Many pickers are employed in other jobs, those which require traveling usually, and they pick up merchandise for resale on their trips.

LATER THIS SUMMER I plan to join the migration to New England and will have an opportunity to comparison shop and, hopefully, to fill the empty suitcases I always take when flying to any part of the country. Funniest thing how they are put on the plane so lightly and come home overweight!

If you have a question on antiquing, please write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Collecting Coins

Second Series Sponsored By Nation of the Hopi

A genetic force of Cherokee origin makes it a pleasure to report the Indian Tribal Series coin-medal a huge success Adopted and sanctioned by America's prominent Indian nations as a means of furthering their welfare and eduational programs, the sale of these .999 fine silver coin medals will help the participating tribes accomplish their goals

Arizona's tiny Grand Canyon nation of Havasupai led off the series with its sponsorship of the first coin medal No 2 in the series to be sponsered by the Sovereign Nation of Hopi Indian Tribes, will be released June 15, and it is probable the Apache nation will sponsor No. 3.

All of this is very interesting since many tribal customs heretofore unknown to the white man will be revealed in the book that accompanies each medal

American Indians are an extremely proud people And while they would be the first to recognize the need for a supplement to tribal funds, they are not about to sacrifice 16 to 18 centuries of culture and tradition for a fastbuck expedient.

FOR THAT REASON the tribes of each participating nation through the Tribal Council and its chairman cooperated fully with those responsible for the Indian Tribal Series coin-medal program. It cannot fail.

The obverse of the Hopi coin-medal depicts a colorful image of the "Corn Kachina" (Avachoya) in the foreground and the age-old pueblo of Walpi in the background with the inscription "Soverieģn Nation of the Hopi" arciformed in the base

The reverse pictures the morning "Kachina" (Telavai) and the word "Siva," Hopi translation for "piece of silver "

Kachinas, for those who may be interseted, are not gods but divine beings who act as intermediaries between God and man. They are present among the people, indivisible, loving, beneficent during half the year. In that half of the year they may be made visible according to instructions they themselves gave mankind in ancient times if men who have been properly trained put on the masks that represent them and dance with the required, exact and very solemn ritual.

It is not that the masked dancers are Kacinas or even intended to be. It is only believed that under proper circumstances the Kachina represented is with that person portraying a particular Kachina.

Kachina dolls are popular collectors' items. In their book, "The Hopi People" by Doctors, Dobyns and Euler, that accompanies each coin-medal, the mysteries of the Hopi life, religion, kachinas and beliefs are brought to light with many full-color photographs. Each book carries the same serieal number as the coin-medal which makes for a rather personal treasure not soon to be repeated in any form.

Interested readers can write· John I Griffin, Consultant, Indian Tribal Series, 401 E. Indian School, Phoenix, Arix 85012. The series is limited and to assure delivery it is suggested you write immediately to the above address or send a money order or cashier's check in the amount of $15 for the coin-medal and book combination.

Do-It-Yourself

There's the kind of digging you do in the garden and the flower bed and that's not digging, that's turning the ground over. Then there's real digging, honest-to-gosh digging — like with ditches or checking or installing drain tile or leveling a bank of dirt

For turning over the ground you can get by with short-handled spades and spading forks For digging you need something with reach, a tool that can carry.

So if you have some real digging in mind, get yourself a good round-point shovel with about four feet of handle on it This will double as a spade and the extra length will save stopping It's the stooping that makes digging a hard job.

Pick a good tool It will outlast several cheap ones, so it is false economy not to get quality Make certain that the blade is turned or rolled at the top This makes it easier to bear down with your foot when you dig.

Though not necessary, a square-point shovel can make your work go faster This is a scoop shovel and you cannot dig with it but you can pick up twice as much loose dirt

Trying to do it all with a shovel is almost impossible Get a good pick, one with a sharp point at one end, a chisel point at the other Use this to break up hard, compacted earth

A mattock is a good compromise tool One side is a hoe blade, the other pointed (Some mattocks have two hoe blades, get the other kind) You can use it as a pick but when you dig around a tree you will like the way the wide blade slices through roots.

Remember the limits of your tools Don't try to dislodge heavy rocks with a shovel. Getting the blade under and bearing down on the handle will just break the handle.

Use a pick to loosen the stone If you have to apply leverage, get yourself a large crowbar The crowbar also is handy for breaking up the ground in tight places.

Use your tools logically and systematically. Remove turf and topsoil with the shovel first, digging out an area the length and width of the ditch. Use the pick to break up the harder subsoil. When you have to refill the ditch it will be easier if you kept things separated.

Toss the soil well away from the ditch unless it is very shallow Pile it on the edge and it will fall back in.

Your job will be easier with sharp tools. File metal edges. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn)

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

COUNSELING IS ONE of the major functions of the modern high school. In many cases, counseling is simply not the answer to severe behavior problems which occur in school. Such agencies as the Community Counseling Center in Des Plaines provide much-needed family counseling for severe problems.

Schools See Value Of Counsel Center

by TOM WELLMAN

If you want to find out just how valuable is the Des Plaines Community Counseling Center, talk to the school officials who work directly with children.

Talk to the counselors, the social workers and the psychologists. They are the ones who face everyday the students who are discipline problems, the students who just can't seem to cope with the stresses of elementary or high school education.

Day by day, month by month, they are the men and women best acquainted with the services offered by the center, operated by the Salvation Army.

To a man, they realize the center is valuable for handling certain kinds of behavior problems which appear in elementary and high schools.

AL D'AGATA, a social worker at Prospect High School, uses the center as an agency which can handle cases that best benefit by family counseling.

D'Agata described a typical case, a freshman girl, whose mother was working, while the father was divorced. The mother had little time to give to the family, D'Agata said, and the girl had run away from home several times.

D'Agata said it was one of a dozen cases which his department referred to the center last year, and the number is increasing.

He stressed the center "is certainly needed," and that it has the unique ability of working, through family therapy, to aid children who have multiple behavior problems.

Unlike other clinics in the area, the center encourages family participation, he said.

Clarence Feiereisel, director of pupil personnel services at Prospect High said the center is one of several agencies — such as the Northwest Mental Health Clinic and Forest Hospital — which will take referrals from the school district.

A PARTICULARLY important aspect of the center is that it places no emphasis on the family's ability to pay, reports Feiereisel.

"Our most crying need is for community services in our own community," reports Dr. Jeanne McCarthy, school psychologist for Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates Dist. 54.

She estimates that the ten social workers, guidance counselors in both elementary and junior high schools, have made perhaps as many as 100 referrals to the center in the past year.

The center is valuable partly because counseling centers just aren't available. The Northwest Mental Health Clinic is one possibility, but its emphasis is too often only on diagnosis, not treatment, she said.

A special benefit from the center is that it can provide service beyond the normal working hours. "Our biggest problem is that our staff works from 8 to 4," said Dr. McCarthy.

But fathers are not home during the day, so Dist. 54 can't counsel with them. Thus, the Community Counseling Center has the ability to set up evening sessions to work with families.

"PEOPLE CAN'T afford private therapy," she declared, and asserted that a private psychiatrist is "just a little bit ridiculous" for parents of disturbed children.

However, school officials realize parents are not going to dash into family therapy to help their children. D'Agata said. "Many people can use the center, but many won't use it."

Dist. 214, however, is moving towards a greater emphasis on the kind of family counseling which the Community Counseling Center offers.

The district has hired a woman to work with school psychologists and social workers to "sharpen up their skills, and to pass those skills along to other people," in family counseling, D'Agata added.

But districts seem to prefer to avoid family counseling, and rely on the skills available in such agencies as the Community Counseling Center.

DR. McCARTHY said Dist. 54's job is "not to straighten out the marriage" which causes problems for children, but she acknowledges the schools get the spin-off from family problems.

Is family counseling the total answer? Feiereisel reports it is "very hard to measure success." The cases which his office refers to the center are "difficult cases," in which success can be expected to be low, he said.

D'Agata, like the others, agrees that the center is one important part of aiding children. "There's no question about the need" for the center, he said. It has been one way that school districts have been able to attempt to relieve severe behavior problems, the school officials agreed.

Education Advisors Named

Two area residents have been appointed to serve on a northern Cook and Lake County advisory board by Supt. of Public Instruction Michael Bakalis.

Jan Bone of Palatine and Judith Bradish of Schaumburg are two of 17 citizens serving on the council, one of 12 set up statewide.

Establishment of the citizen advisory councils fulfills a campaign pledge to involve Illinois citizens in the educational decision-making process, Bakalis said.

"Education can no longer be the domain of educators. It must be a joint venture. I would want these councils to provide me with the thoughts, feelings, and needs of their area so that I can develop plans designed to meet their particular needs," he said.

The Northern Lake-Cook County Advisory Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Highland Park Holiday Inn and Lake-Cook Road and Edens.

"I would also ask that these councils serve as a sounding board to listen to our programs and to present to me their thoughts as these programs pertain to their area," Bakalis continued. He will chair the Monday meeting and present his thoughts to the council on its function in the educational system.

Members of the Northern Cook-Lake County Council includes residents of Chicago, Lincolnwood, Skokie, Harwood Heights, Crystal Lake, Waukegan, Barrington, Evanston, Deerfield, Winnetka and Wilmette.

Harper Signup Not Limited

Summer school registration at Harper College in Palatine has not been limited to students now in the Northwest suburbs

A college spokesman Wednesday reported heavy telephone registration early this week, including phone calls from students currently located in California and Canada.

He said the calls were from students who planned to be back at Harper for the start of classes next week.

TODAY IS THE final day of registration for credit courses. Students whose last names begin with the following letter should register at the following times: Mi-Mz, 9 a.m.; N, 9:30; O, 10; P, 10:30; Q-R, 11; S-Si, 11:30; Si-Sz, 1 p.m.; T, 1:30; U-V, 2; W-X-Y-Z, 2:30, and those unable to meet the schedule, at 3.

Registration for noncredit courses is under way and will continue until Friday, June 25. Students may register from 4 to 9 p.m. in Room 213, Building A.

A variety of graduate and senior level extension courses is offered by Harper this summer in conjunction with Northern Illinois University and Ball State University.

All Northern offerings are three-hour courses and the tuition is $30 a semester hour, while the Ball State offerings are four-hour courses and the tuition is $20 a quarter hour.

Tuition charges for regular, credit courses are $10 per semester hour. A $5 student activity fee is payable at the time of registration. Students registering for the first time pay a nonrefundable $10 application fee.

The Palatine community college is at Algonquin and Roselle roads. Further information can be obtained by calling the admissions office, 359-4200.

High School Costs Up

High school education will cost suburban taxpayers a little more this year.

In High School Dists. 211 and 214, the 1970 tax rates have increased.

Dist. 211 taxpayers will pay about 3½-cents more per $100 assessed valuation, Dist. 214, 20-cents more.

School officials in Dist. 211 attribute the increase to a 2-cent hike in the Education Fund rate, and need to over-levy slightly in the Bond and Interest, and Rent Funds to make up deficits.

"In past years, we have levied for the exact amount. Since no one has 100 per cent tax collections, these funds have been slightly behind. We hope to catch them up this year," James Slater, Dist. 211 business manager, said.

A final breakdown of Dist. 211's tax rates by fund is not available pending county clerk office decision.

Dist. 211's total rate will increase from $2.70 to $2.73 per $100 assessed valuation.

Taxpayers in Dist. 214 will feel an 8 per cent increase, compared to 12 per cent last year.

The district's 1970 tax rate is $2.47 per $100 assessed valuation. Last year it was $2.27.

All funds but two have increased this year. The Transportation Fund rate has decreased from 8-cents to 3-cents and the Working Cash Fund, levied at its maximum, is 5-cents.

Largest rate increase is in the Bond and Interest Fund, the Building Fund and the Education Fund, from which

by RALPH NOVAK

REV. JESSE JACKSON

The preliminaries are over, the choir is silent, the mood is right and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, dressed in black, pink and red floral-patterned shirt and gray vest suit, strides slowly to the lectern in the middle of the stage at Dr. King's Workshop.

He stands for a moment, looking at the audience-congregation, two-thirds black, that has come this Saturday morning to the weekly Operation Breadbasket meeting, a combination revival-political rally-business conference. The crowd quiets and looks at him expectantly.

"I am somebody, he says softly and they echo, "I am somebody."

"I AM somebody," he says softly, and they return, "I am somebody."

"I am SOMEBODY," he says and they answer, "I am SOMEBODY."

"I AM SOMEBODY," he says and the response roars back at him, "I AM SOMEBODY."

Jackson has brought his people together and made them more than the sum of their parts. It is his specialty.

AT 29, JESSE Jackson is heir apparent to Dr Martin Luther King Jr. as the leader of America's blacks. As national director of the economic action arm of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), Operation Breadbasket, he technically ranks below the stolid Dr. Ralph Abernathy, SCLC president, in the civil rights chain of command.

But Jackson's drive and charisma are pushing him to the forefront of the intellectually militant wing of the black power movement. It was he who called together most of the nation's elected black officials for a recent weekend meeting here that led to a serious and potentially significant call for formation of a third national political party.

"There is only one man who could have gathered all of these leaders here," said Cleveland Mayor Carl Stokes, one of the officials who attended. "That man is Jesse Jackson."

Jackson explained his role in a subsequent interview:

"I think of myself as being in the prophetic tradition, not in the political tradition I saw that, since Dr. King died, no black leader has had the authority necessary to turn ideas into facts of history. Nobody has been in a position to coordinate things. So I sent out some telegrams and the people came."

Jackson has refused to become involved in post-meeting speculation about who the third party's candidate would be, other than to say it won't be him.

"It can be Stokes or John Conyers (a congressman from Detroit) or Percy Sutton (Manhattan Borough president); it doesn't matter," he says. "What's important is that the idea of a black man running for president is loose in the universe now. What's important is that we establish that there is no reason for a man not to run for president just because he's black."

THOUGH THE history of third parties in America is not an encouraging one for political mavericks he is more than serious about making an impact in next year's elections.

"We want to represent all the people who are locked out of the political process; not just the blacks, but the youth of this country and the women," Jackson says.

The dramatic increase in the number of black elected public officials — there are more than 1,000 now — encourages Jackson.

"We're in a time of economic and political change, and the two are so interwoven that you have to work on both of them at the same time," he sais. "Politics administers the economic order and determines the priorities of where money is spent. Up to now, our economic interests have been stifled by a lack of political power "

Jackson's Breadbasket program in Chicago has worked toward both economic and political ends. The economic drive has been highlighted by boycotts designed to improve the blacks' employment situation and the political drive by Jackson's campaign to run for mayor against Richard J. Daley in this spring's election.

The boycotts have been successful but Jackson never even got on the mayoral ballot because of an Illinois law that requires independent candidates to obtain 10 times as many signatures on nomination petitions as regular party candidates. Jackson tried unsuccessfully to have the law declared unconstitutional and took it all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, which ruled against him

"That whole idea of me running for mayor was designed to educate people to the political scandal that exists," he said, "and that decision told you something about the Supreme Court."

Born in Greenville, S.C., Jackson was an outstanding athlete and attended the University of Illinois for two years on a football scholarship before he decided he was being taken advantage of and transferred to North Carolina A&T at Greensboro, N.C., where he began his civil rights career.

Now he has become the dominant force in Chicago's black community and a dominant force in the national black community.

Fox River Line Doesn't Need Amtrak

The Fox River Line doesn't need Amtrak to keep passenger trains operating.

The 1.5 mile electric short-line thrives on passenger business and started its annual operation Memorial Day weekend, running some of America's oldest and most colorful trolleys and electric inter-urban cars from its terminal and museum at South Elgin.

Located on Rte. 31, west of the Fox River, the Fox River line follows the right-of-way of the Aurora, Elgin & Fox River Electric line, built in 1896.

One of the line's most popular attractions is a unique open-air streetcar, typical of those used around 1910. This car is the last of its type operating in the Midwest.

The line's equipment also includes "Roarin' Elgin" No. 316. Typical of a more luxurious era, the car has leaded glass windows and inlaid wooden interior.

Other attractions are America's oldest inter-urban car still in existence — Chicago, Aurora and Elgin Car 20, built in 1902; a 1910 work car constructed by J. G. Brill Co.; a dining-tavern-lounge car used in the 1920's by the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee; and a two-truck, open air trolley from Brazil, built in 1913 and used until 1962.

The museum is open Sundays and holidays, 11 a.m. to dusk. Trolley rides (20 minutes) cost 60 cents for adults and 30 cents for children. The trolleys, which seat 50, are available Saturdays for charter.

AN OPEN-AIR street car built in 1909 still carries passengers on Sundays and holidays during the summer for the Fox River Line. Besides short rides on the trolley, there's a museum with other historic rail cars.

Swim And Sail At Scout Camp

Girls who are not in scouting can still attend summer camp for two weeks this summer at Camp Norwesco, located on 700 wooded acres 35 miles north of Eau Claire, Wis.

The camp is owned and operated by the Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County.

Registration is open now for girls who want a chance to swim, sail, canoe, cook, study nature, and live outdoors.

Sessions available are from June 27 to July 9 and Aug. 8 to 20. Fee is $80 for nonscouts and $70 for members, including transportation.

For further information, call the Girl Scout office in Des Plaines at 824-2134.

He loves you constantly. And is always ready to protect, guide, and encourage each one of His children.
These spiritual truths are practical, and you can prove them to be true. So can your children.
Christian Science will show them how In our Sunday School, children learn how to turn to God for every need.

Garbage? Crunch!

by JUNE STEWART

Harper College

In the shadowy, dimly lighted loading dock area at Harper College, a man drags a heavy burden to the "trash basher."

No. It isn't a body.

It is part of the accumulation of garbage after a day's activities at Harper College. And with more than 10,000 persons on campus daily, there is a heavy load.

About a year ago, Harper College installed a stationary compactor to combat garbage and help preserve the environment.

How does the "trash basher" help the environment?

"Originally, Harper College burned garbage in an incinerator," said Ron Duddley, one of the supervisors in charge of grounds and maintenance. "We had two men tied up emptying barrels."

DUDDLEY MADE a study of the situation comparing incinerating costs in man hours versus the cost of the stationary compactor. The "trash basher" won out.

Not only is the stationary compactor a savings to taxpayers, but the smoke from burning garbage is not released into the air.

Compactors are expensive — about $3,000 each and another $3,000 for the "roll off box." Considering the 50 to 60 manhours per week the incinerator took, the stationary compactors will soon pay for themselves.

The stationary compactor packages one and one half cubic yards at a time and stores it in an enclosed "roll off box."

A 20-cubic yard box is located at A Building dock and a 33-cubic yard box at F Building dock. The smaller box is emptied about once a week, while the larger one "lasts from one and a half to two weeks," according to Duddley.

CONSIDERING 20-CUBIC yards of cardboard compacted weighs from a ton to a ton and a half, Harper has a lot of garbage.

Operating under pressures of 800 to 900 pounds, the one and one half cubic yard compactor works on a hydraulic system. Everytime the blade goes forward, it draws hydraulic fluid and pushes. When it reverses, the fluid flows back into the tank. It is powered electrically.

When the "packaged" garbage is hauled from Harper College to the dump by Barrington Trucking, it is recompressed by a transfer station. There it undergoes compaction at about 1,200 to 1,500 pounds pressure.

Compacted garbage is used as landfill. Every day new garbage must be rolled and covered with from four to six inches of soil. Thus getting rid of garbage can be expensive.

In the suburban areas of Chicago, dumps charge anywhere from 60 cents to 70 cents per cubic yard. The yardage for wood is triple, because wood keeps coming up and has to be recovered.

Eventually, the reclaimed stone quarry or low land is filled and planted with grass and trees to prevent erosion. Perhaps someday, it will be the site of a new sudivision or factory, which will then have its own garbage disposal problsm.

Miniature compactors are available for home use. Eventually they may become standard equipment. But what happens when all of the stone quarries and low lands are filled in and there are no more places left to dump?

Any way you look at it, garbage is still garbage. And unless someone comes up with a recycling process for garbage it is always going to be a problem disposing of it.

He's A Student Who Led

Forest View High School

In a year when the value of student government was severely challenged, Brian Gillespie of Forest View High School has been vital in reaffirming the importance of active student councils.

Brian, a senior, was elected in April of 1970 to the presidency of the Illinois Association of Student Councils. In the months since his election, he has represented the community as well as the state at workshops, conferences, and conventions throughout the United States.

In August of 1970, he attended both the Illinois Association of Student Councils summer workshop at Monticello College in Godfrey, Ill., and the national workshop at Camp Cheley in Estes Park, Colo.

"YOUTH POWER — Future Now" was the theme of the 14th Annual Student Burgesses, an international conference held at the House of Burgesses, Williamsburg, Va., which Brian attended in February. Representatives from 45 states and 39 foreign countries assembled to seek cultural understanding despite cultural differences.

In April, Brian presided over the first and third general sessions of the 37th Annual Illinois Association of Student Councils Convention held at the Sherman House in Chicago. The I A S C, made up of 10 districts in the state, seeks to "further and improve student participation in the many activities of IASC member schools."

Prior to the convention's official opening, Brian met with the district presidents to discuss problems in the individual districts. It was at this convention that Brian ended his term as state president.

Brian also was instrumental in establishing the areas of authority for Illinois student councils.

Acting as Brian's advisor was Burton L. Showers, director of student activities at Forest View High School and Northeast District Coordinator.

On the local level, Brian served this past year as chairman of the Student Involvement Committee at Forest View. His committee recently sponsored an activity day, designed to expand the classroom learning situation by means of field trips, seminars and guest speakers.

At the 1971 Representative Assembly banquet, Brian was the keynote speaker. His address dealt with youth's responsibility to respect the past while building for the future without fear or hesitation.

Brian's efforts, os both the state and local levels, merit community recognition, and have furthered the structure and purpose of student government, according to Showers.

'New Doors' Opened With A Letter

Palatine High School

Little did Mary Jo Comerford realize that a letter she received from Robert Hanrahan, superintendent of Cook county schools, would open new doors for her.

Mary Jo, a June graduate of Palatine High School, was asked to attend a student forum. There, she and other students discussed problems in schools and the subject coming up most often was drugs.

From the forum, six students were chosen to work on a drug program for Cook County schools. Mary Jo and two students from William Fremd High School were asked to work along with two from Homewood-Flossmoor and one from Thornton Fractional South. The group met with Lynn Pierce, Hanrahan's secretary.

When the students met, they would throw their ideas into grup discussion. If there was not total agreement, the idea would not be used. Keith Brockman and Mark Dietzgen, a junior at Fremd, did most of the research for the group.

ONE IDEA ALL six teens thought important was that of a "rap room," a designated room run by students in each school where any student could come to talk over his problems with other kids.

Mary Jo said the best part of her experience was getting to know the other people she was working with. She felt at ease with them and said she didn't feel she might be laughed at or ridiculed when she would ask questions. . . Two of the boys had been on drugs before and answered her questions about drugs, from their experience.

Her only experience with drugs was at "Youth and Government," a session she attended in Springfield that was sponsored by the YMCA. There, a girl she was near was coming down off some drug and had the shakes. She said she had never been so scared in her life. She didn't know what to do, and felt helpless.

Next year, Mary Jo plans to attend Harper and would like to incorporate art into therapy, working with physically or mentally handicapped children.

She teaches swimming lessons at the Countryside "Y" to children six months and older. Her favorite age group is the three year olds. She said that after the age of two, children start developing their fears and need to get over their basic fear of water.

One of the children she teaches is mentally retarded. May Jo said she gets the biggest kick out of coming to teach her Saturdays. The child at first was afraid of water and became upset. When Mary Jo tried to console her with a piece of candy, the little girl stopped crying and gave her a big kiss. She said, "I was really touched."

She gets her biggest thrill out of teaching children. She said her future will be a definite challenge and she knows that at times she will be heartbroken; but she also said, "I love working with children."

Prom Night Holds Magic—For Some

by TOM WELLMAN

Remember?

—The smelly gym transformed into a forest of shimmering lights and crepe paper?

—The uncomfortable and expensive tux or dress?

—Dancing all night, and suddenly realizing it was all over?

In 1971, in the age of drug abuse, long hair and Vietnam, there's just as much this year for students to remember about a high school prom.

At 7 p.m. on Friday, June 4, the first of 219 couples walked into the carpeted luxury of the Sheraton-O'Hare, 9810 N. Mannheim Rd.

EACH COUPLE had paid $15 for a roast beef dinner, two bands and about three hours of dancing. It was the John Hersey High School junior prom.

"I feel so strange," remarked one girl. Her date, looking both confident and nervous, joked with another couple standing outside the ballroom door.

Dee Andrana, a junior, had hoped the prom would attract 300 couples, but only 219 were attending. She had worked all year to plan the event:

"The idea of going to the prom for some means more than you can imagine. Inside yourself, it's kind of exciting."

Dee had sold tickets, and she knew the boys were more reluctant to buy tickets than the girls. Perhaps, then, many girls were disappointed by not being asked:

"I think they try and cover up their disappointment. They ask about what dress you're wearing," but they won't say to their friends that they're unhappy about staying home, she said.

"I'D RATHER spend four dollars on a drive-in movie," a boy observed. He conceded, however, he might attend next year when he is a senior.

Money can be a problem. Tuxedos rent for $30 or $40, many girls buy new dresses, and there are flowers to buy and (for some) cars to rent for the weekend. It can cost $150.

For those who did arrive at the Sheraton-O'Hare, by 8 p.m. the tables were filled and Bill Scott's Orchestra was playing "Raindrops Keep Fallin' On My Head." "C'mon, Fred Astaire," hooted a boy at one of the two couples on the floor.

By 8:15, salads replaced the fruit cups at the tables packed around the dance floor, and the last couples straggled into the dance.

By 8:30, the rock group — "B.F.D.," it is called — blasted hard rock music across the floor. As the teachers and administrators winced, the students flocked onto the dance floor.

THE BIG moment of the evening, the crowning of Denise LaRue as prom queen, was almost lost on the crowd. Mike Tufo, a junior designated "toastmaster," placed a diamond tiara on her head. The students on the dance floor crowded around and applauded politely as Denise poses with her date, John Harvey.

Outside at the coke bar, the students who that night were men and women chatted together about the prom as a "dying institution."

To John Meiman, it was "a dying tradition. You get to play the part for the night . . . but it's set up so that your nervousness disappears after a while."

"The girls look forward to it for a long time, but the guys just go along on it."

His date, Cheri Kolbe, added: "It's the one time of the year I get to feel like a fairy princess."

Jack O'Connor said he's there "because I'm in love . . . I'm a very sentimental person." "I'm enjoying it, and that's the only thing that matters."

TUFO DECLARED "The parents feel their son has grown up tonight — that's the way my mother views it."

Hersey's principal Roland Goins said he doesn't get "nostalgic" about proms, but he "looks forward to it every year.

"No it won't be replaced. Many of the students will consider this as one of their big nights of the year."

Then it was 10:30, and the lobby was filling as the dance floor was slowly emptying. Some couples sat at the tables and chatted. A few couples sat and said nothing.

For many of the students present, there would be one, two or three more proms at Hersey High School. Friday's prom will be carried back to students who did not attend, thus creating excitement — or apathy — toward next year's prom.

For the seniors, after the prom the only high school "landmark" remaining is commencement. They will either remember or forget the prom; Friday, as the last dance was played, they realized it was the end of something.

There's a time for being alone —

The rock group B.F.D., it is called — blasted away at its appreciative audience.

Wilhelm Retire? Someday, Maybe...

by IRA BERKOW

NEW YORK — (NEA) —Hoyt Wilhelm, with little enthusiasm, said that it's like being on vacation. It was almost June and Wilhelm was still home in Columbus, Ga., while the Atlanta Braves were on the road in New York, in Montreal, in St. Louis.

Hoyt Wilhelm, who will be 48 years old in July, also ran some every day to keep his legs and wind in shape. He threw a baseball almost every day, too. He threw to some local high school kids, and he threw to his 13-year-old son, Jimmy. He threw just straight stuff, he said, and not his famed knuckleball, which even major leaguers have trouble catching. "A rookie with the White Sox several years ago disdained a mask when warming up Wilhelm and received a black eye on the first pitch.)

Wilhelm, placed on the disabled list by the Braves before the 1971 season started, threw his knuckleball only in batting practice when the Braves were home.

"I'm all right as far as I'm concerred," he said. "I'm throwin' just about as good as ever."

He had been suffering from "a little shoulder stiffness." It wasn't really a sore arm, he said, because he's never had a sore arm in all of the 26 years he has been pitching (19 of those years have been with eight major league teams).

"My shoulder usually gets stiff that way and needs workin' out in the spring of the year," he said.

Wilhelm says he is ready to return to the Braves as a relief pitcher. Manager Luman Harris also said that Wilhelm is ready to pitch. "But we don't have room for him on the roster right sow," said Harris.

This is difficult for Wilhelm to swallow. He led the Braves' staff last season in earned run average, with 3.12 (He bridles at talk concerning the number of times he has been traded. "I led just about every team in ERA the season they traded me," he said.) Wilhelm believes his skills have not diminished. Braves' bullpen coach Ken Silvestri, among others, agrees. "His knuckleball is still knucklin'," Silvestri said.

Wilhelm is the oldest man to play big-league baseball regularly. He holds the rocord for most games pitched (1,042 before this season), and assorted relief pitching records: most games (990), most victories (124), most saves (223) and most innings pitched (1,825).

Yet the man who won a purple heart in the Battle of the Bulge has a relatively unlined face, though his still-dark hairis thinning above the forehead. "It's how old you feel, how old you act that's important," he said. "Not how old are you."

Bob Didier, the Braves' catcher, who was born seven years after Wilhelm began his career with Mooresville of the Class D NorthCarolina State League in 1942, went hunting with Wilhelm last winter in southern Georgia.

"We walked for miles and miles," recalls Didier. "I kept saying to myself, 'I can't let this old man outwalk me.' "

Didier says he is in awe of Wilhelm the pitcher, too. "It's catching a legend," he said.

Wilhelm admits, though it seems he hardly believes, that the day will come when he no longer can threw a knuckleball for a living. His Southern, nasal twang becomes crusty at the mention of post-playing days. "I'll cross that bridge when I come to it," he said.

It was mentioned to him that Eddie Mathews, now a Braves' coach, had returned to baseball after a two-year retirementand saidhtat he, like other ballplayers, was unprepared to meet life "on the outside."

"That's Mathews sayin' that. Not me," said Wilhelm. "I won't have problems."

"What do you do to occupy your days?" he was asked by telephone.

"What does anybody do?" he replied, sharply.

"I don't know."

"Go fishin'."

"What have you been catching?"

"Not much."

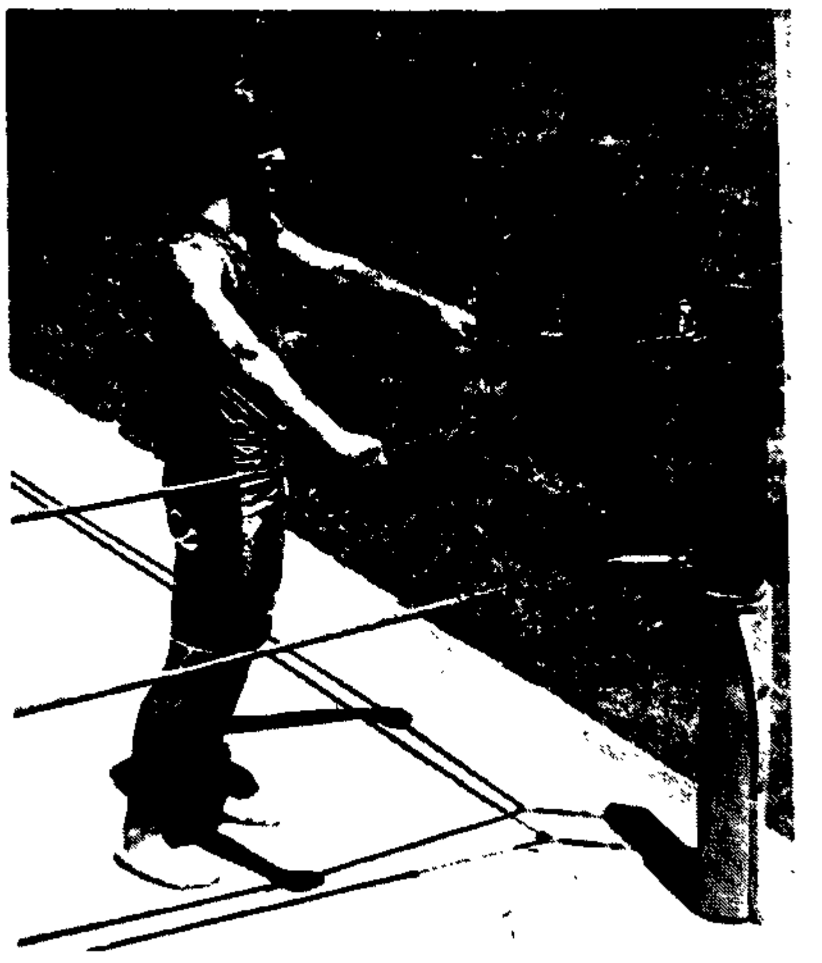
Boxing Dead? Elk Grove Teenager Builds Ring, Hopes To Form Club



KNOWING THE ROPES. Boxing enthusiest Dan Connelly stretches "ropes" in corner of his backyard boxing arena. The regulation ring is complete with canvas carpeting and hoses as ropes.

(Photo by Jim Cook)

by JIM COOK

When most of his classmates are on their way home from school, Elk Grove High junior Dan Connelly is busy trying to pick a fight.

Dan is hardly "the village bully" at only six-feet and 165 pounds, but instead, is hoping to rejuvenate the so-called "dying sport of boxing."

Chicago rekindled interest in the recreation by opening its doors to enthusiasts through park district programs. To non-eligible suburbanites, though, boxing remained relatively foreign with an infrequent televised bout supplying the lone source of association with the sport.

Until now, anyway.

Young Dan inherited a vein of boxing blood from his grandfather who fought professionally, from his dad who went unbeaten in armed forces competition, and from a close neighbor who bagged an Olympic gold medal for Germany, the Canadian middleweight crown and later served as a sparring partner for Sugar Ray Robinson.

The versatile Grenadier athlete, who plays football and has just earned his insignia as a member of the baseball team, took matters into his own hands and literally laid the groundwork to relieve his inhibitions.

.Over three months ago, Dan dreamed of having a boxing ring right in his own backyard. With a little inspiration, a dash of improvisation and a lot of hard work, the dream became reality.

Dan conquered the high cost of materials for his regulation 20x20-foot arena by salvaging some of the scrap lumber cast off at one of the construction sites in the area. The "ropes" circumscribing the square are rubber hoses while the "canvas" consists of discarded carpeting. Dan even restored an old tarpaulin to protect the ring from the elements.

"About the only thing we had to pay for were the nails, and even they were expensive," the history maor explained. "My dad is getting us some turn-buckles, so we're in pretty good shape."

Instead of the curdling blood bath that so often stereotypes a boxing ring, Dan was quick to interject his own philosophy. "My purpose isn't to try to hurt anybody out there, but to try to outmaneuver them. Even if you don't land (a punch), you still get satisfaction from out-guessing them."

Dan, a great fan of Muhammad Ali and Sugar Ray, has been waiting for the ring's completion date for some time now. "I've been working out regularly — running about five miles a day, doing sit-ups, neck bridges, skipping rope and sparring with anyone who wants to."

With brothers in seventh and eighth grade, he usually doesn't have to look far for competition. "My dad and grandfather have been trying to teach us some of the fundamentals. That's the first step."

To a career?

"No," he said. "I'd like to fight in the armed forces like my dad did, but not as a career."

For now, Dan would be happy just to initiate a club for other interested boxers. "I took karate lessons for two and one-half months at the park district and I'd like to get them interested in boxing."

Once the 16-year-old sets his sights on doing something, it usually gets done. If he's after a boxing program, he just may get one.

I, for one. am not about to argue with him.

'Kid Mlynczak' Takes To The Ring

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

DO YOU REMEMBER when you used to sit anxiously on Friday nights in front of the television waiting for the magic words:

"This is Don Dunphy in Madison Square Garden for tonight's fight between . . . "

Ah, yes.

And after the fight before climbing into bed you'd bounce on your toes in front of the mirror and . . .

It all seemed so easy sparring with yourself in front of the mirror. Golly, Eddie Machen didn't stand a chance.

Of course for most of us, we never did get into a ring with the gloves on and discover how difficult boxing actually is.

Because of never getting into the actual battle, one can continue to dream that you could possibly be standing over a fallen Joe Frazier as the referee started the count. After all, Joe Frazier looks small, even when standing next to Johnny Carson on TV. And Ali proved that Frazier is so EEEASY to hit.

But watching a boxing match on television or at ringside is an all together different story than climbing through the ropes and going at it toe-to-toe with another guy.

Wednesday I had the opportunity to climb into the ring and box a couple of rounds with Dan Connelly, an amateur fighter in Elk Grove who is featured by Herald sports writer Jim Cook on this page.

As of this date I have not gone looking for Connelly for a rematch. I've had enough.

I did not go into his ring as a complete novice since I did have a little experience from my days as a kid in the West Palm Beach Park District boxing program. But I soon discovered that I was a better boxer and in much better condition as a 12-year-old than I am now.

I now know how Archie Moore must have felt when he fought the young Cassius Clay when Moore was 46 or 48 or 52 years old — whatever age he was telling folks at the time. Moore was an old, tired, washed-up fighter when he fought Clay. And so was I when I went against Connelly — despite the fact I am less than half of Moore's age.

My entire strategy was based on what I told Connelly as soon as we put on the gloves — "Let's take it easy."

We tapped gloves a couple of times as we danced around the ring — he in a remarkably fluid style for such an inexperienced fighter and I in a remarkably cloddy style along the same lines as Dick Stuart fielding a ground ball.

Now immediately I was worried. Footwork used to be my main asset in my short career. But my problems were just beginning.

He threw his first jab and I caught it on my right glove just like you're supposed to. But, somehow, as his jab peppered against my right hand, my own glove slammed me in the jaw.

He threw another jab. And again my own glove popped against my jaw. And again. And again. I figured I was going to be the first fighter in the history of the game to be knocked out without the other guy landing a punch.

After I finally solved the problem of knocking out my own self, I started getting a little fancy and began throwing punches of my own. Unfortunately, Connelly is six-feet-one and I am five-feet-nine. After taking three jabs on the tab of the head while landing maybe one punch on his chest for four different ex-

Kickin' It Around

BOB FRISK

I MADE A MISTAKE.

I decided to give baseball on television another chance.

For the past two or three years I rarely turned on the set to watch a baseball game. Except for the World Series, you could count on one hand the number of times I watched an entire baseball game on television.

They just bored me. It was as simple as that. I could sit and be enthralled by professional football, hockey, or basketball, but baseball produced more yawns than yells. Finally, I just decided to quit watching.

It may sound silly, but I've always thought of baseball as a game meant to be played on real grass, during lazy afternoons, with small children, old men and an occasional housewife watching.

I think of baseball as the game of the 1950s, the slow, stationary era. The tempo of baseball fit it exactly. These were the Eisenhower years . . . the quiet years. Television was still an infant.

Baseball's fundamental weakness on television is the long wait between pitches and for many people, including kids, the slow pace is intolerable.

The inherent danger seems to involve youth born in the TV age who develop their initial interest in a sport partly through its exposure on television. If a sport turns off youngsters at the TV level, it seriously reduces efforts to lure them later on.

Baseball is the only sport which television does nothing for artistically. If I wasn't convinced of that before, I am now after watching several games over the past month.

As a spectacle, baseball suffers on the tube. Television, instead of making it more attractive, actually is deadly. It makes the game seem slow, less exciting and boring.

Snappy attire, many camera locations and famous and smooth announcers can not eradicate the handicap of the long wait between pitches. Proof of this may be the All-Star game and the World Series coverage provided in recent years. I felt the coverage was near perfection. They did the best they could. But the coverage still has not relieved essentially the slow pace of the sport on television.

The fault is not that of TV, which has its camera limitations, but rather that of baseball itself because of its unique nature.

Television just can't create the same feeling for the viewer that is the case when he's at the ballpark. The fan at the park rarely notices the wait between pitches and plays. He is buying his hot dogs, ordering a beer, arguing with his company, disagreeing with the fan in front or behind him. You have built-in fillers at the park.

There is no way, apparently, of adding the personal touch to the television picture. Nor can the cameras pick up the wide range of action in such a way as the fan is accustomed to seeing when he's at the park.

Baseball is simply not as well adapted to television coverage as are the other major sports, and it will always be a slow, plodding presentation. They just don't want to attempt any gimmicks to ease the problem for TV that might lessen the sport's sense of tradition, which helps it retain such a grip on the hearts of so many born before World War II.

You've probably never heard of Orrin E. Dunlap, Jr. I hadn't either until I happened to read the reprint of a column he wrote for the New York Times.

In that column Dunlap discussed baseball on television. He wrote this in 1939 after watching the first attempts at television coverage of baseball.

"To sit for two hours in a darkened room on a beautiful sunny day in May to watch a baseball game on a screen stirs thoughts on the future of television in sports," Dunlap wrote. "The imprisoned baseball fan becomes restless; his eyes tire. He knows he is missing so much.

"His eyes cannot wander off to look at the landscape, the nearby trees and apartment-firnged skyline of upper Manhattan. The televiewer lacks freedom; seeing baseball by television is too confining, for the novelty would not hold up for more than an hour, if it were not for the commentator.

"To see the fresh green on the field," Dunlap continued, "as The Mighty Casey advances to the bat, and the dust fly as he defiantly digs in, is a thrill to the eye that cannot be electrified and flashed through space on a May day, no matter how clear the air.

"Television is too safe. There is no ducking the foul ball."

Orrin E. Dunlap, Jr. could write that same column today, 32 years later.

Baseball on television is a dull show, and that's just what I don't need — another dull show.

I tried watching again this spring and nothing has changed. The only thing that will bring me back now will be a pitching performance by Fritz Peterson or Paul Splittorff, or a chance to watch Greg Luzinski in a major league game.

Then maybe a trip to the park would be the best answer.

Otherwise, if there isn't a good book available, I'll take a Dick Van Dyke rerun over three hours of balls and strikes.

10 Years Ago . . .

Arlington Park was set for its 1961 opening and the unveiling of the new Classic Club was the featured attraction . . . Arlington High School finished seventh in the West Suburban League's President's Cup (similar to Paddock Cup) race . . . LaGrange was the team champion for the 13th time in 14 years, yielding only once to Hinsdale in that period . . . Hinsdale was the second this time with Maine East and Downers Grove rounding out the first division.

Fan's Forum

HOW DO CARDS DO IT?

Dear Sirs:

The Paddock Cup continues collecting dust in the same old trophy case. Arlington is to be congratulated for winning it for the fourth straight year. (Editor's note: Paddock Publications awards the Cup for overall superiority in varsity sports in the Mid-Suburban Legue).

My question is: How does the same school keep doing it year after year? What is it about Arlington that consistently produces the best teams, particularly in tennis, swimming and football?

After four yers in a row, it can't be coincidence. It seems that other schools in the league draw from the same general area, with about the same social structure, same kinds of family backgrounds, same opportunities to learn athletics and same fine coaching.

So why is Arlington always the best? Is it psychological or some sort of mystique? Does the sight of the big "A" cause other teams to tighten up and perform below their capacity in the big contests? I thought your staff might have some opinions on this.

Name Withheld by Request

First of all, swimming is not a recognized sport in the league and does not count in the Paddock Cup standings.

We doubt that other teams are "psyched out" by Arlington. The biggest factors in their superiority seem to be pride and tradition now, believing in themselves with extreme confidence, coaching that goes beyond just fundamentals, and some outstanding sports programs in Arlington Heights for pre-high schoolers.

Just look at the way tennis players are developed, starting with very ambitious park district programs and a coordination with the park district and high school. Other towns have park district programs in several sports, but not all as well-organized or extensive. It takes cooperation down the line to develop any strong program.

Just a slight edge each year in other sports makes a dig difference when final Cup standings are added up. — Larry Everhart.

DISLIKES TOURNEY

Dear Sirs:

As stated in Larry Everhart's column last week, a new procedure in Ninth District American Legion junior baseball will be to include only five teams instead of eight in the post-season tournament to determine which team advances to the County playoffs.

Though this is better than the ridiculous system in past years of including all eight teams in the league tournament, I still feel it is wrong to choose a County representative by a tourney. This is quite rare, as most other legion leagues in the Chicago area and elsewhere simply send the first-place winner from the regular season to the county playoffs.

I feel the same should be the case in the Ninth District. The schedule has been expanded to 21 games this season and any team which can finish first over that many games deserves to advance automatically, instead of having to survive games with mediocre fourth and fifth-place teams who should not have the chance in the first place.

Legion player (name withheld)

Sorry, but I agree with the system as it stands. I feel it sends a more worthy representative to County play. In many cases there may be a fifth-place team that hits its stride near the end of the regular schedule and by tourney time is the best team in the league. In such a case it should not be deprived the chance to stay alive. The first-place team should have to prove that it is still the best at the end of the season. — Larry Everhart

RAH-RAH ANNOUNCERS

Dear Sirs:

The word is out about Chicago's rah-rah announcers. Did you see the article in the latest Sporting News? Stan Fischler writes a column talking about the network television coverage of the Stanley Cup finals.

He talks about Phil Esposito as a color man, how some people didn't think Esposito added any information about the game we didn't already know, and then adds, " . . . but when compared to the Black Hawks' radio announcer Harvey Wittenberg, whose color account of the Chicago-Montreal series was piped over WNBC-New York, Phil was superb.

"Wittenberg was guilty of a brand of rah-rah reporting that should have gone out with the dirigible."

Harry Dennington
Mount Prospect

Wittenberg was indeed talking like a Chicago fan, which was inappropriate for a New York broadcast. But it's not surprising for Chicago's broadcasters. Actually, Harvey is one of the least offensive. — Bob Frisk.

ROLLER-COASTER RIDE

Dear Sirs:

So the roller-coaster Cubs are doing it to their fans again. Win a few, lose a few, rarely gain any ground. They build up hopes one day and let you down the next. It's a .500 ball club and a .500 ball club frustrates you 81 times every season. It's not worth the frustration. Not year after year.

Bring on professional football. Even if the Bears don't win, the sport itself is a lot more interesting. And we don't have to suffer more than once a week.

Stanley Bobak
Wheeling

If you were smart, you would have jumped off the stalled bandwagon two years ago and moved to Baltimore or New York. Nobody likes a loser, especially a consistent one. Apparently, with 1971 attendance figures on an even keel with last year's million and one-half pace, Cub fans have finally accepted the live-a-little, die-a-little, consolation atmosphere. As far as the Bears are concerned — I haven't even gone swimming yet this summer. Slow down, will you? — Jim Cook.

changes, I knew that Muhammad Ali would have a tougher time fighting Wilt Chamberlain than anyone would expect.

After only three or four minutes of sparring, the Archie Moore weariness set in. The arms became too heavy to lift, the legs refused to move and my chest was heaving as I gasped for air. I was one tired boxer.

It was just about this time that Connelly dropped his right hand to come in for a punch to my midsection.

Wop!

I tagged him.

Right under the chin.

And down he went.

I still don't know who was more stunned by this event. I'm sure my look of disbelief matched his.

He wasn't hurt by any means because he had fallen due more to a slip than to the power of my left hand.

But he came up a bit surprised and a bit angry. And right then and there I ended the round. You learn that from experience. I didn't want an angry and conditioned Dan Connelly coming after this tired out of shape sports writer.

Between rounds I talked extremely fast to him — I wanted him to know that I was very VERY sorry that I hit him and no hard feelings, okay?

Thankfully, he took it easy with me in the second go-round and we just tapped gloves a few more times. But suddenly at one point of our session, he landed a hard right hand right on the button. My knees buckled and my head blurred but I stayed on my feet and still retained enough sense to yell out, "That's it, I'm done!"

And thus concluded another — and the final — chapter of my boxing carrer.

That's right, I'm hanging up my gloves.

And that should make Joe Frazier breathe a little easier.

Are Your Highlights Missing?

There seems to be some question on the printing of boys baseball reports by the Herald sports department.

If your boys baseball games are missing during a Monday to Friday week, don't call us. Call your league officials.

Every game we receive is printed. if an entire league can't make it one day because of space limitations, the remaining highlights will run the following day.

There would be no reason not to print any scores received.

Towns that do not have any scores featured in a Monday to Friday week are not turning in their highlights. Once again, call your league officials.

Report forms are available at the main office of Paddock Publications.

Pleased With Johnson

"Dave Johnson (Mount Prospect) faced a tough role as a sophomore playing the number one position this year and I was pleased with his performance," claimed Western Illinois' varsity tennis coach Scott Greer after his Leathernecks compiled an 11-9 season record.

The coach continued, "Next year I expect Johnson to use his powerful serve and strong volley and become a great player."

Hittman To Rifles

The Lake County Rifles football team has announced the signing of two former Northwestern Wildcats Quarterback Dave Shelbourne and Tackle Jon Hittman.

Shelbourne prepped at Wallace High school in Gary, Indiana before playing at Evanston for the Wildcats. In 1968 he established the total offense record at Northwestern with 1514 yards in a single season.

Hittman of Arlington Heights, who prepped at Wheeling, has also returned a signed contract to the club. As a sophomore he played tight end catching 15 passes for 214 yards. In his junior year he was moved to offensive tackle. A standout performance at that position earned Jon a starting assignment in the Coaches All-America Bowl in Tampa, Fla. this past January. Hittman is 6' 1 and 235 pounds.

The Rifles have scheduled a rookie meeting at 8:00 p m. at The Village Green Country Club in Mundelein on Thursday June 17. Any former college, pro or service ball player is urged to attend. The Lake County Rifles will open their regular camp at Carmel High School in Mundelein June 28.

Milton Richman

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chip Oliver was all set He was coming back to the Oakland Raiders but now he's not sure he wants to He's getting turned off and the guy turning him off is Al Davis, who runs the Raiders.

If the way back is going to be a very negative trip or what he calls a real bummer, then Chip Oliver has two words for the whole deal.

Forget it

Chip Oliver, if you remember such major crises one year to the next, is the resolute young man who turned his back completely on money and fame a year ago by leaving the Raiders for whom he was a linebacker. He quit professional football because he found it "dehumanizing."

He said he was much happier living in a commune somewhere without such unessentials as money and material things.

Some of his Oakland teammates had a premonition Chip Oliver might pull something like this They called him "loose wire."

Before Oliver took off, however, Al Davis talked to him like a dutch uncle trying to persuade him to change his mind and stay. Oliver said his mind was made up, and he went From time to time people would ask Davis about Oliver and the Raiders' boss would say what a shame it was that Oliver had done what he did because he had a fine football career in front of him.

Time moves. It's now a year later.

Chip Oliver begins feeling the football itch again. His hippie companions in the one world commune he lives in can't help him with his itch because they just don't get too worked up about things like pass patterns and end arounds.

Somehow three Canadian clubs find out that Chip Oliver might like to play football again and they talk to him about it.

Oliver feels his first allegiance is to his old club, the Raiders, so he goes and talks with Davis about rejoining them in training. He is led to believe they say okay but then something happens.

The Oakland Tribune comes out with a story saying Oliver now is regretful about leaving the Raiders in the first place and "wants back in the fold."

Chip Oliver sees the story and burns up He figures Al Davis has been talking to the Oakland Tribune and giving them only his version. He gets so burned up that he calls his friend, Jack Scott, who heads the Institute for the Study of Sport and Society in Oakland, and tells him he's not so sure he cares about coming back to the Raiders anymore He feels Al Davis is trying to use him.

"Just yesterday, Chip and I went to a shoe distributor to get him some football cleats," says Jack Scott. "Then the story came out in the Oakland Tribune and Chip felt he knew where it came from. He was upset. He called me and said if that was the way the Raiders were going to act, then all he wanted to know was what he had to do to secure his release."

Chip Oliver is big on Yoga His weight is down to 175 pounds because he eats no meat at all, only organic foods and practices Yoga all the time.

"It seems funny," says Jack Scott, "that some time back Al Davis told people he didn't care that Chip was down to 175 pounds, he considered him such a super player that he wanted him back with the Raiders, anyway. He said they could even find another position for him.

"When he thought Chip didn't want to come back he was anxious to have him. But now maybe he's trying to show the club isn't that eager. I think Al Davis is making a mistake. Chip is very impulsive. If he gets it into his mind, he's just as likely to sign with one of the Canadian clubs. I know he expects some sort of bonus no matter whom he signs with."

A bonus? But didn't Oliver once say he doesn't care about money.

"True," Jack Scott says.

"Money isn't the critical thing with him. All he needs is maybe $5,000 or $6,000 to live on a year, but he sees other unproven youngsters getting bonuses and he feels he has proven himself. He expects to get paid more than the sum he needs to live on because he feels strongly about certain causes and he would like to give to these causes."

My hunch is Chip Oliver will wind up back with Oakland and that it will cost the Raiders a little money.

Al Davis is a good talker; that good though, he's not.

Brown Wins Getaway Golf Contest At Buffalo Grove

Harold Brown of 900 S, Edwards, Mount Prospect, is the winner of the first Branigar Getaway Golf Contest held at Buffalo Grove Golf Course.

There was a tie for second between Adolf Kopp, 900 Center, Des Plaines, and Keith Scott of Chicago.

In winning the contest Brown picked up a $125 merchandise certificate, a first-place trophy, and a playoff berth for the grand prize, a trip for two for a week at Pipestem Resort in West Virginia.

The field was limited to golfers who play on weekdays (except holidays) who pay the normal greens fee, fill out an entry blank, and turn in a signed score card. These requirements continue to hold true for the second Getaway Golf Contest being held until June 15, and the subsequent competition June 16 through the 30th.

The winners from the two-week contest were determined by the Peoria Handicap System which gives all players a chance to win.

The contests are sponsored by the Management Services Division of The Branigar Organization, Inc. at several of their Chicago area golf course. In addition to Buffalo Grove, other courses participating in Getaway Golf Contests are Indian Lakes; Sportsman Country Club in Northbrook; and White Pines Golf Club in Bensenville.

The grand prize playoff will be held late in June. The participants will be the first and second place winners from each of the four participating clubs for the contest completed on May 28 plus the competition running from June 1 through June 15 at all four clubs.

The prize is a grip to Pipestem Resort, which is also managed by The Branigar Organization, and includes a transportation allowance, room, meals, and greens fees for both of the resort's golf course.

C. P. Floors In Golf Lead

C. P. Floors, Inc is in first place in the Old Orchard Scratch Golf League by a six-point margin over Webb Offset Inc. and Bob Burrow Chevrolet. Silo, Inc. is another point behind.

Bruno Waara shot a par 36 for low gross honors last week. Low gross of 36 was a four-way tie among Bill Schwerin, Mike Spinello, Augie Tamburrino and Gordon Meling.

A Perfect Record

A known thief departed from Illinois Wesleyan University unapprehended last week.

Eric Pfautsch of Dallas, Tex., walked off with a bachelor of arts degree and an incredible record of 53 stolen bases in 53 attempts during three years with the Illinois Wesleyan baseball team.

Hitter Failure

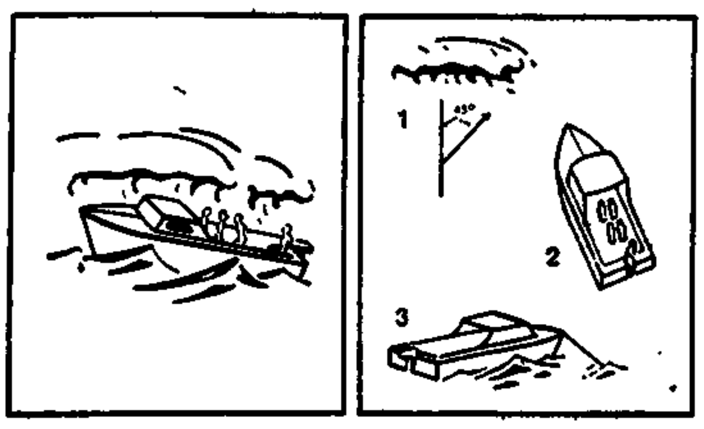
Sandy Koufax gave up the fewest hits per nine innings pitched in his career in major league history Koufax yielded only 6 79 hits per nine isnings pitched.

Tough To Beat

Dave Foutz, who pitched between 1884 and 1894, and Whitey Ford, who pitched between 1950 and 1967, share the major league record for the highest winning percentage with .690 for pitchers. Foutz' record was 147-66 and Ford's was 236-106.

Safe Boating Quiz

Q. What should a small craft skipper do when he finds himself caught in a really rough sea?



A. He should (1) head into the waves at an angle (2) reduce speed, have passengers sit close to the centerline on the bottom of the boat, and head for shore; (3) use a sea anchor to keep the bow pointed into the waves if the motor fails. No skipper should ever leave the dock without proven life jackets or flotation gear for everyone aboard, say the boat safety experts.

The Beetle is no longer the best economy car on the road

THE SUPER BEETLE IS.

What's the Super Beetle?

Just about the most advanced economy car ever built.

For one thing, it has almost twice the trunk space of the old Volkswagen Beetle.

It gives you a smoother ride and a shorter turning radius than the Beetle, flow-through ventilation and wall-to-wall carpeting.

Super Beetle

It even has a longer lasting, more powerful engine than the old Beetle.

In fact, the Super Beetle has 90 things no Beetle ever had.

Nowak Takes Low Net, Gross In Twilight Golf

Paul Nowak walked away with both low gross and low net honors in the Arlington Heights Twilight Golf League last week. Low gross was 38 and low net 35, both over the front nine at Thunderbird Country Club.

Binzel Industries is still leading by seven and one-half points over Horcher Decorators. The fight for third place is exceptionally tight with only seven points separating six teams.

Six birdies were recorded: by Bill Turner on the eighth hole (165 yards, par 3), Bill Boyd on the seventh (340 yards, par 4), Don McGowan on the eleventh (475 yards, par 5), Len Haines Sr. on the eleventh (475 yards, par 5), Chuck Staadt on the third (315 yards, par 4) and Paul Manning on the third (315 yards, par 4).

The leaders in each flight and their point totals are Steve Gecan in No. 1 (48), Ted Binzel in No. 2 (54½), John Coffey in No 3 (42), Bud Bentson in No. 4 (52½), W. Gappert Sr. in No. 5 (49) and alternate Al Dvorak (56½).

Team standings:

Binzel Industries	203½
Horcher Decorators	196
Lauterburg & Oehler	188½
Koops Mustard	186½
Crest Heating	186
Bank of Arlington Hts.	182½

Arlington Structural Steel	152½

Four Area Cyclists Place 4th Or Higher In Wheelmen Feature

Four area cyclists placed fourth or higher in the Elk Grove-hosted Windy City Wheelmen Bicycle Race, which attracted participants from several states.

In the Class A senior race, which covered 54 miles, no Herald area boys placed. Winner was Tom Garroty of Chicago with a time of two hours, 11 minutes and 3 seconds over the marathon.

Five boys from the immediate area did well in the 18-mile junior race. Rob Vehe of Mount Prospect was second, Steve Pedersen of Prospect Heights third, Tony Winder of Des Plaines fourth, Rex Gilmore of Elk Grove seventh and Bryan Kilfoy of Arlington Heights ninth.

The winning time for the juniors was 44 minutes, 13 seconds by Wayne Stetina of Indianapolis, Ind.

The nine-mile intermediate event was won by Dale Stetina of Indianapolis in 24:02.

In the one-mile midget race, Mike Kilfoy of Mount Prospect finished fourth. First went to Jeff Bradley of Davenport, Iowa, in 3:18.

Weekday, Double Feature Headliners At Union Grove

The first weekday race as well as the first double feature race for 1971 is slated for Tuesday night at 8:30 at the Great Lakes Dragaway, Union Grove, Wisc.

The best drivers and fastest supercharged nitro fuel Chevrolet funny cars in the country will all compete in a triple elimination challenge race. There are about a dozen top notch Chevy drivers in the country, and they have all been signed for this race. Each driver will compete in three races and the overall winner will hold the title of "Mr. Chevrolet" for 1971.

Included are "Jungle Jim" Liberman, Dickie Harrell, Kelly Chadwick, Bruce Larson, Terry Hedricks, Mike Burkhart, Tim Beebe, Mart Higgenbotham, Dick Bourgeois and the nation's top ranked block driver, Malcolm Durham.

The second feature is the "open" prostock meet including the pro-stocks of the United Drag Racers and the midwest's top independents. Wayne Gapp, Ron Hutter, Joe Satmary, Larry Griffith, Lee Smith and the "Ramchargers" racing team are some of the more than 40 pro-stocks competing.

Celtics Eye Perfect Mark

The Palatine Celtics intermediate soccer team of 10-13 year-olds is now just one more victory away from a perfect season.

The Celtics, coached by John Finnegan, ran their spring record to 8-0 with an easy 5-0 shutout win over Hanover Park last weekend.

Brad Byker helped Palatine to a three-goal first-half lead with a pair of scores sandwiched around a goal by Danny Tischler, who put in a strong kick from 40 yards.

In the closing moments of the second half, Edwin Tischler, and Steve Sobey put the frosting on the cake with the final goals. Brian Scolpino had little trouble racking up the shutout in the nets.

The season will come to a close with a 1:30 p.m. game at Northbrook Saturday. The junior team of age 14-16 boys also ends its campaign this week with a game against Menominee Boys Club of Chicago. The juniors were idle last week.

No Legion Entry For Des Plaines

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Des Plaines will not have an American Legion baseball entry in District Nine this summer

According to District Nine commissioner Gene Sackett, an odd turn of events prevented Des Plaines from fielding a team this season

"The problem started with a personality conflict," Sackett said. "Des Plaines had a coach for this year but Forest View High School (the home field of the Des Plaines Legion for the past few years) would not allow the club to use that field with the coach they had running the team.

"We also discovered that a number of dates on Forest View's field were filled by summer league baseball games "

The Des Plaines Legion then asked for dates on Maine West High's field but because of a 100-game Mid-Teen League schedule at Maine West, the Legion team was unable to get the field for use

With Maine West unavailable and with Forest View unavailable because of the personality conflict, the Des Plaines Legion attempted to find a new coach that would be permitted to field a team on the Forest View diamond.

The Des Plaines American Legion contacted 10 men for the coaching job but all of them turned down the offer. Because of a lack of coach, Des Plaines could not even field a "traveling" team . a team which would play all of its games away on opponents' fields

The boys who would have played for Des Plaines this season have been split up to the teams of Arlington Heights, Logan Square and Mount Prospect. "No boy will be deprived of playing if he can make a team," Sackett said. "Just because the Legion had problems, it should not prevent boys from playing baseball if they want to "

Sackett said that plans have already begun for a Des Plaines entry for the 1972 season, but it is too late for a team to be fielded this season.

Veteran Gutche Drives To Victory At Waukegan

Ford fans finally had something to cheer about Saturday night at the Waukegan Speedway as veteran stock car driver Al Gutche of Bristol, Wis., pushed his 1967 Mercury Cyclone into the feature winner's circle for the first time in two years. All previous late model feature winners this year have driven Chevelles

Gutche turned the tables on Tom Jones of Northbrook who had passed Gutche with just two laps to go last Saturday to steal the 50 lap "May Championship" race Jones finished a close second Saturday as a scrap with Norm Zenko of Highland Park in the 28th lap prevented another last lap charge by Jones

Bob Roper of Chicago missed time trials Saturday and had to qualify for the 30 lap feature event by winning or placing second in the 15 lap semi-feature. Roper moved into the lead in that race on the 10th lap past early leaders Ray Bush of Silver Lake and Bob Dotter of Chicago.

Roper took third spot in the main on the 11th lap after he hit Bob Dalaney of Keeneyville who had spun. Delaney, running third at the time, was eliminated as his car caught fire and the race was stopped. Following Roper in fourth was Bob May of Gurnee, Jim Cossman of Waukegan and Gary Zobel of Mundelein. Dotter, who qualified for the main through the semi-feature also, finished in 7th spot.

Tri-City Ladies

In the Tri-City Ladies Golf League winners of the 18-hole flight awards were as follows

A Flight — low net, Caroline Lueck; low gross, Caroline Lueck; low putts, Mary Bullwinkel.

B Flight — low net, Sue Lesh; low gross Sue Lesh, low putts, Sue Lesh.

C Flight — low net, Pat Scudder; low gross, Pat Scudder, low putts, Betty Zuckermandel, Jo Scott

The daily event was low putts and the winners were Mary Bullwinkel (A), Dorothy Manhold (B), and Jo Scott (C).

In the 9 hole league Jenese Busch chipped into the cup on the 7th hole. Her drive went into the creek, her fourth shot was chipped into the hole on the par 3

Play day will be for all members next Tuesday Following play, cocktails and luncheons will be served to all the membership at the home of Mrs Walter Knoepfle, 1201 West Lincoln, Mount Prospect

Instead of a second car, get a second house.

It's not as expensive as it sounds.
There's no land to buy
No land taxes to pay
Yet you can own a hunting lodge in the mountains Or a cottage at the beach. And you won't need a car to get there.

All you need is a Volkswagen Campmobile. Which, as houses go, is rather unusual. It goes.

But most people buy the Campmobile for what it comes with:

A kitchen Including sink, icebox and water pump. A dining table.

Bedroom enough for two adults and two kids Closets Screens. Curtains. (And an optional pop-up top and tent.)

You can even run this second house a lot cheaper than you can run a lot of second cars.

It gets about 23 miles to the gallon. Takes only 5 pints of oil. And its engine is air-cooled, so it never needs antifreeze.

So instead of getting a second car, maybe you should get a second house.

Two Roses Named All-America Winners

Of all the fine new rose hybrids entered into the stringent two-year All-America Rose Selections trials, only two emerged as 1972 winners of the coveted AARS awards — "Apollo," a sunrise yellow hybrid tea, and "Portrait," a warm, radiant pink hybrid tea. Also for the first time in the 32 year history of All-America Rose Selections awards an amateur has competed successfully against the professional hybridizers to win an award.

APOLLO (Plant Patent Applied For) is blest with the sweet fragrance of an old-fashioned tea rose which intensifies as the long, slender buds open more fully into mature blooms. Its color lasts throughout the life of the rose, gradually deepening to a canary tone, clear and soft

The flowers are usually borne individually on long stems quite free of thorns. The bushes are vigorous with a fine branching habit and bloom profusely throughout the spring, summer and fall. The open blooms, usually of 30 to 35 petals, are large, often attaining a diameter of 5 to 6 inches. Apollo will produce superb buds and blooms for exhibition purposes. Its foliage is a dark, rich green, disease resistant and covers the plant well. This award winner is the result of a cross between High Time and Imperial Gold by Dr David L. Armstrong.

PORTRAIT (Plant Patent Applied For) is the result of the hybridizing work of an amateur, Carl Meyer, of Cincinnati, Ohio, who seriously hybridizes roses as a hobby. It is the first time an amateur has invaded the sacred precinct of the professionals and won an honor that has hitherto been exclusively theirs.

"Portrait" is a distinctive, colorful, warm radiant pink hybrid tea rose. Its urn shaped, deep pink buds open to a soft, almost creamy white bloom, edged with a deep, satiny, blush pink. Occasionally gold tones wash the open bloom and add to its glowing warmth, set off by a clear pink reverse.

Fifty or more petals of good substance roll back to create a fully double high-centered bloom four inches or more across. The gardener will find to his delight that "Portrait" presents an added bonus in a delicious, penetrating, old rose perfume that adds pleasure to the presence of the winner, both in the garden and in cut flower arrangements.

To produce "Portrait," Carl Meyer used Pink Parfait and Pink Peace and considers his hybrid superior to both. Other ancestors contributing to the quality of this rose are the AARS award winners, Charlotte Armstrong, Peace and Crimson Glory.

Personality Walls

The trend in wall finishes is toward luxurious, distinctive finishes and less to paint. Hardwood veneer paneling, cork squares, metal, ceramic and plastic tiles are gaining favor with fashionwise homemakers . . . and many are applying them, themselves. Dealers are usually very helpful.

APOLLO IS A HYBRID tea rose of soft, sunrise yellow tints delicately shadowed with infiltrations of crimson. It rated the highest scoring of the year in the All-America trial gardens. It is a cross between High Time and Imperial Gold by Dr. David L. Armstrong.

Right Mower, Sprinkler Reduce Chores Of Grooming Grass

Having a lovely green lawn is the dream of every homeowner — but the work it takes to achieve such a lawn sometimes seems more like a nightmare.

However, a well-groomed lawn can also be an easy-care lawn if the homeowner plans carefully, keeps the lawn basically healthy and makes use of the work-saving equipment now on the market.

Advice for planning a low-upkeep lawn is offered by Dr. James Watson, director of agronomy for Toro Manufacturing Company.

Choosing the right mowing equipment is important in reducing lawn-care chores. As a general rule, choosing the largest mower practical for the size of the lawn will reduce time and work. For a lawn one-quarter acre or larger, the homeowner might consider a rider or tractor.

A new rear-engine rider will cut one-quarter acre of grass in less than 15 minutes.

Some other work-saving tips are:

Use mowing strips to keep grass in a neat line around flowerbeds and other cultivated areas. The strips will also make grass-cutting easy.

Avoid small chopped-up areas of grass, which are difficult to cut.

Use ground cover on steep grades and in areas of heavy shade or excessively wet soil.

Remove grass from around base of trees; replace it with a well of gravel or stone.

Since more over-all time is spent hand watering than in any other lawn-care activity, automatic watering with an underground sprinkler system can make an important difference.

Automatic underground sprinkler systems have been around for 50 years, but their cost has been reduced substantially in the past five years, thanks to sprinkler heads with wider coverage and the use of plastic pipe.

Part of the investment in a sprinkler system returns through lower water bills. Though an automatic sprinkler system keeps the grass greener, it uses much less water than hand methods.

The system saves water because it may be programmed to supply only as much water as is needed for healthy turf. A well-designed system delivers water only as fast as the soil can absorb it — like a gentle rain — so there is no loss from runoff.

Shrubs and plantings, as well as lawn areas, can be watered with an automatic underground sprinkler system. There are new dual controllers on the market which have two separate watering schedules, so that flowerbed watering can be automated effectively.

Shade Tree Selection Requires Study

THESE PAINTED DAISIES are a strain called Robinson's Giant Hybrids. Painted daisies are really members of the chrysanthemum clan, and come in single, double and semi-double varieties.

Selecting the proper shade tree for your new yard — or to replant an established home grounds — is a more complex task than you may at first realize. But it can be a fun sort of a challenge, too, according to the Ornamental Growers Association of Northern Illinois.

A good way to start the job is to plot the possible locations of shade trees on tracing paper fastened over a plan of your house. Consider what are the effects you want to achieve with these shade trees, before you choose specific varieties for the locations you pick.

Your first consideration, of course, will be shade itself. To decide what areas of the house or yard you want shaded and to what degree. Some trees, such as Norway Maple, have dense foliage, allowing little light to get through. Others give a light filtered shade, such as the Honeylocust.

Either type may be used to shade a patio, terrace, or children's play area — as well as a bedroom or living room window of the house.

Large shade trees can also be used to frame a house or an off-property view, the same way a picture frame enhances the looks of a painted landscape. In fact, the aesthetic relationship of trees to the home is an extremely important overall consideration.

Too small a tree set beside a large house will make the house appear even larger, while a large tree has the effect of bringing such a structure into its proper perspective.

Large shade trees planted behind the house will give the frontal view a "warm, friendly, come-and-enjoy" look. That's an important part of the framing idea. Other trees planted off to one side of the front door area will also help to frame it.

Keep in mind the shape and branching habits of various kinds of trees, as well as their size. Basically, trees fall into three main forms — Columnar, round, and oval. Columnar trees are not generally recommended for shade but can serve as screening or that all important framing function behind the home. (Poplars are the most popular kind of columnars.) The second and third shapes are typified by the Norway Maple and the Sugar Maple. In addition, some trees are pyramidal (as the Pin Oak), while others are vase-shaped in structure (like the Hackberry.)

Carefullly consider any of the possible "negative" effects of certain types of trees in the locations you choose. For example, be extremely cautious of underground utilities and overhead wires when choosing trees. Roots and branches can be extremely disastrous to both. Do not put trees over septic tanks, drain fields, or other underground tiles, especially if the tree has a shallow root system.

If you consider seeds, stems, and leaves a nuisance, you'd rather not contend with, you can avoid part of the rake-up problem by selecting trees which minimize these by-products. There are seedless, stemless, and small-leaved shade trees available.

Avoid trees (such as Black Locust and Siberian Elm) which grow quickly, but are prone to storm damage from ice, snow and wind.

Following is an edited list of some outstanding shade trees recommended by the O.G. A. for the Chicago area:

Norway Maple — dense compact growth with large green leaves in summer.

Sugar Maple — has spreading branches and a broad symmetrical top. Very beautiful in the fall with golden and orange leaves.

Hackberry — similar in structure to the elm at maturity and therefore a good substitute for the diseased elms. A native tree with light green leaves.

White Ash — a rapid-growing, tall tree with outstanding purple fall color.

Thornless Honeylocust — rapid-growing tree with lacy, fine-textured foliage, and picturesque branching. Casts a light shade which doesn't impede the growth of grass.

Pin Oak — a tree with a broad pyramidal head, and bright red foliage in the autumn.

Little-leaf Linden — a tree with a densely pyramidal habit with compact foliage for good shade. An excellent disease resistant tree.

Kentucky Coffeetree — an often ignored shade tree with light blue-green foliage, and white flowers.

Painted Daisies Add Multi-Hues To Garden Background

Painted daisies are members of the chrysanthemum clan, distinguished from other chrysanthemums by the long, slender stems coming out of the basal group of very finely cut, attractive leaves.

Flowers of painted daisies are usually white, shades of pink, rose or red, sometimes lilac or yellow and may be single, semi-double or fully double.

Painted daisies begin to bloom in June. If faded flowers are kept picked, the plants will continue to produce blossoms until early autumn.

If planting seeds, plant in a special place where you can care for the seedlings. Sow the seeds thinly and transplant any seedlings that are crowded as soon as they are 2 or 3 inches tall.

Leaves only will grow the first year. The next year you'll have flowers and they will continue to come each year, for painted daisies are perennials.

You can leave the blossoms in the garden to add to the outdoor picture or you can cut them for indoor use. They last well in water.

Plants are also free from all insect pests.

Gaslights Add Elegance To Suburban Patio Living

Think back for a moment to the days when the West was a wild and beautiful land of adventure and excitement — when homes were romantically lit by gaslamps, and men and women walked the streets of their towns with gaslights gently casting a warm and comfortable glow. Times were rough and rugged, but there's no denying that life in those days had an elegance and excitement that's hard to match

Today, in your own home, you can recreate the best features of these bygone days. You can turn your backyard patio into a Western vacation wonderland which lets you enjoy the great outdoors as it used to be. And, you can do it very inexpensively'

The secret lies in using modern conveniences to create the right mood. No matter what size or shape backyard you have, picture it as it might have looked in the West 100 years ago. Your furniture would have been rustic — a wooden table and chairs or benches — a simple table setting — and simple but delicious food prepared outdoors

And don't overlook the importance of lighting. Try gaslights, styled in rustic early American designs, to recreate the romantic feeling of the past. Let them softly and subtly light your patio just as they would have done when the west was an untamed frontier If you place one gaslight near your gas grill, and one near your table, you'll find that your patio is gently lit with a romantic elegance reminiscent of early America.

Once you've turned your patio into a slice of the old West — the fun begins. With the romantic setting you've created, you'll want to stay outdoors longer — and with gaslights to softly illuminate the area, you'll be able to!

THESE NUBBY FRUITS are known as Balsam Apples. They are tropical plants related to the cucumber family. Apples are attractive decorations, varying from yellow to orange in coloring, with a warty, rough surface.

Balsam Apple: Fun Is In The Growing

The curious, nubby fruits of balsam apple or momordica are rarely seen but are lots of fun to grow. With them you can play guessing games with all your garden visitors.

The vines are tropical and related to the cucumber family. They climb and attach themselves by means of tendrils and balsam apple vines will reach 6 feet upwards during the growing season, even in the North.

Because they are natives of the tropics, they must be treated as tender annuals and the seeds either started indoors or planted in the garden after all danger of late frost is past.

Balsam apple leaves are from 2-4 inches wide, handsomely lobed. The flowers which, while not as important as the odd fruits, are still useful for garden color are yellow, darker in the centers.

The "apples" are egg-shaped and nubby or warty, yellow to orange in coloring, therefore very attractive.

Even the seeds are interesting — notice them before you plant them. They're flat, greyish or brownish, with scalloped edges.

Natural Wood Upkeep Easy

Painting cabinets and woodwork is still a good way to introduce color in a room, but most women today would rather put color accents elsewhere and enjoy the easy upkeep of natural-finished wood. Why fuss with the maintenance of a painted surface, they say, when natural wood disguises both smudges and wear?

Low upkeep combined with top appearance is possible outdoors, too, when the house has lumber siding finished with a semi-transparent stain. Because stain penetrates the wood, it won't chip off, bubble or crack

Colors may fade in time, but the weathering process is so subtle that years pass before change is noticeable. Meanwhile, stained lumber siding needs virtually no attention and almost never will appear soiled looking or untidy.

A decade ago, stained resawn siding was considered strictly modern. Today, architects use it for the handsome "transitionals" which, like the newest furniture, blend the beauty and detailing of the past with todayS living patterns.

Treat Patio As Second Family Room

Nothing increases the pleasure of outdoor living as much as a patio.

Regardless of the size or location of your home, a patio will provide an extension of your living area and a variety of activities that will more than compensate for the initial investment.

Proper location is the key to enjoyment Consider the relationship of the patio site to the living areas of the house, the rest of the outdoor area, the street, and the afternoon sunlight

If you can build it adjacent to the living room or dining room, it will provide an extension of lounging, dining, and entertaining areas, without creating the potential embarrassment of having guests pass through the kitchen or other working areas

ALTHOUGH IT should ideally be separated from other sections of the yard, where children may be playing while you're entertaining friends over cocktails, it should be an integral part of the landscaping, not a chunk out of an otherwise-useful setting.

If you must locate your patio close to the street, make thorough plans to ensure maximum privacy and quiet. A row of small trees, a high shrub, or an attractive fence enhanced by ground plants or climbers might be the answer fence enhanced by ground plants or climbers might be the answer

You will want to test the site for sunlight and heat at various times of the day before beginning construction. An area that is shaded from the summer sun but that traps the winter sun is preferable Shade trees should be placed according to the time of day you will be using the patio the most

IN PLANTING for shade, don't forget the need for a breeze on hot summer nights. Or is your problem one of too much breeze? If so, the same type of shields used for the sun can be used to protect you from the wind.

The ground cover should be both attractive and easy to care for You might want to use brick, exposed aggregate, flagstone, ceramic tile, colored asphalt, or a wood deck. Used brick, which is inexpensive and often available, is always attractive. You can lay it yourself, using sand as a base and a mixture of sand and cement between the bricks.

If an entrance to the house opens onto the patio, make the patio surface the same level as the doorway, to facilitate carrying food or drinks in and out

BE IMAGINATIVE in creating the patio design. Curving edges will add interest to your landscaping. What about leaving a hole in the surface for a tree or a shrub, if your patio is large? Or you may want to plan portable planters that can be rolled out of the way for dances and cocktail parties

In planning trees for shade, be sure to avoid ones that drop flowers, fruit, or seeds onto the patio. Be sure to include room for some low shrubs and flowers in the vicinity. Potted geraniums, petunias, begonias, or heliotrope can be placed in corners or along edges of the patio to add color and to help blend the patio with the rest of the yard.

Whatever design you decide upon, think it through very carefully before beginning construction. Your patio will be a source of constant pleasure to your family for the lifetime of your home

A Good Year It Was, A Good Program It's Not

While the program is new, the idea most certainly is not...and this summer's ABC production of "It Was a Very Good Year" seems to be just another indication of how flimsy a show that capitalizes on a current vogue can be.

Mel Torme is one heck of a crooner. His performance as host of "Year" is anything but impressive but to his defense, he certainly has very little to work with. In a half-hour show, in which the commercials are sometimes difficult to distinguish from the program matter, Torme's producer has called upon the host to sing a few bars of the title song...introduce the many short nostalgic film takes...and then call attention to the program's guest-of-the-week.

Every show of this type has to have a guest-of-the-week, I guess.

Even if it's "Oddjob," the oriental actor whose major claim to fame was pitching that lethal derby hat of his in the James Bond thriller "Goldfinger."

On that particular "Year" program, Odd did nothing but look odd. No lines. Just standing there in the background as Torme made his way through a few remember-when lines of script recalling that wonderful year (1964) when Sean Connery as James Bond stalked killers and beautiful women.

Ugh. Trying to recap an entire year is difficult enough in itself with nothing but film clips, an under-riding theme, and a tightly-knit narration.

In "It Was a Very Good Year," ABC has demonstrated once again how to reduce a noble idea into a television fare that merely whets the viewer's appetite for a nostalgic glance back into the past.

And when Torme is forced to close the texts of the "very good year" (following this final message), the viewer is hungry for what the show could have been. Had it been longer. Had the "guest of the week" been pitched for a better script.

The viewer must feel starved over this effort. But then he's given the bill and must pick up the tab.

That tab seems to be summer television programming. Whether it be reruns or replacements. In this case, "It Was a Very Good Year" appears to have been thrown together for just a summer.

With no thoughts of producing a show that the public would want back when the autumn leaves start to fall.

Perhaps it wouldn't be a bad idea for the three major television networks to pool their programming efforts in a one-hour special entitled "It Was a Very (Good) (Bad) Year: TV in 1970-'71."

Whether the season just passed was a good or a bad one is, to you—the viewer—a personal decision. Much happened to lead some of us to think that better days may be ahead.

While NBC made what now appears to be the biggest sell-out in cancelling "The Senator" segment of "The Bold Ones," it may be CBS who faces the most critical test this fall.

In a gutsy move, CBS decided that its hokey "farm seed" image must go. As a result, many of the favorites such as "Mayberry RFD" and "Hee Haw" are making the grand exit from the tube along with variety shows like Ed Sullivan's.

To soothe those who waited anxiously each and every week for such hayseed programming, the CBS execs can only hope that by cutting the shows, viewers will find the CBS TV menu similar to ABC and NBC's, but just a shade better.

If the "pitch the folksy" programming doesn't work out as expected, CBS may find itself down the road a piece.

That's the rating road, 'ya hear?

The cards and letters have been coming, folks!

The reader poll posed to you a couple weeks back has prompted a large number of responses relative to Chicago and network television.

The questions, by and far, are being answered not by just a name or the channel number, but are arriving accompanied by some very outspoken opinions.

Most are printable, and we'll be doing just that in coming "See-Hear!" columns.

It has been fun reading through each response and then tallying up the most popular and least popular attitudes about Windy City programming.

ON THE COVER: The cast of the award winning Mary Tyler Moore Show poses clockwise from front, Mary Tyler Moore, Valerie Harper, Gavin MacLeod, Ed Asher, Cloris Leachman and Ted Knight.

I have two questions. Would you please tell me if HERE COME THE BRIDES will be back? Also, why are THE FLINTSTONES on with GARFIELD GOOSE?

—Eileen Schwarz
Des Plaines

ANSWER:

No, HERE COME THE BRIDES will not be back, at least not in first-run. WGN-TV has obtained reruns of THE FLINTSTONES and apparently decided that GARFIELD GOOSE was a good show to run them on.

There is a rumor going around that Suzanne Crough of THE PARTRIDGE FAMILY is dead because she was run over by a car. Could you please tell me if this is true?

—Julianne Shore
Hoffman Estates

I would like to know if the rumors about Suzanne Crough, who plays Tracy on THE PARTRIDGE FAMILY being dead are true.

—Cathy Sniff
Palatine

ANSWER:

We don't know where these rumors get started, but every so often they surface in connection with some star or another, usually one popular with young people. Tell your friends that Miss Crough is fine, and end these rumors.

* * *

I was wondering why Bill Dana, who appeared on the old MAKE ROOM FOR DADDY show, isn't on the new MAKE ROOM FOR GRANDDADDY?

—Janet Yewchyn
Elk Grove

ANSWER:

There are two possibilities: he wasn't asked, or he didn't want to be on the show. One possibility is that Dana no longer wishes to do his Jose Jiminez routine, which he performed on the old Danny Thomas show, as well as in night clubs.

Can you please tell me how old Michael Cole and Peggy Lipton of the MOD SQUAD are and whether the show will be back next fall?

—T.R.
Arlington Heights

ANSWER:

Cole is 25, Miss Lipton is 23. MOD SQUAD has been one of ABC's consistently high-rated programs and will be back in the fall in its present time slot.

I would like to know if MEDICAL CENTER is coming back this fall? If it is, what time and day will it be on?

—Joann Bellagamba
Arlington Heights

ANSWER:

MEDICAL CENTER will be back in its present time slot, 8 p.m. on Wednesday's.

My girlfriend and I are in the sixth grade and we would like to know the address of Robert W. Morgan on WIND Radio. Also, where does David Cassidy of THE PARTRIDGE FAMILY live?

—Fran Crovetto
Arlington Heights
Dianna Beasley
Prospect Heights

ANSWER:

You can write to Morgan in care of WIND, 400 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Cassidy lives in a home near Hollywood which he shares with Sam Hyman, an old friend.

—J. Broxham
Wheeling

ANSWER:

Yes it is, but it was more like 20 years ago. Connors tried baseball as first basemen, for the Brooklyn Dodgers and then for the Cubs. Fortunately for the fans of THE RIFLEMAN, Connors couldn't hit.

We are wondering. In your recent issue of May 14-29 you said Michael Landon is 33 years old. We have heard he has a son who is 21 years old. Could it be true that he was married when he was 12?

—K.A. and M.K.
Prospect Heights

ANSWER:

No. Landon has no 21-year-old son. You heard just another rumor. At least it didn't say he was dead.

—Juli Yount
Palatine

ANSWER:

There's always a chance, although no plans for the future of DARK SHADOWS have been announced from any source. Why don't you write WGN-TV at 2501 W. Bradley, Chicago, and drop the hint?

I've heard and read rumors saying that Jack Cassidy might have his own series next season. Do you know if this is true?

ANSWER:

We haven't heard of an impending series for Cassidy. The fall lineups have been announced, and Cassidy's name isn't there.

* * *

Is Rob Reiner, who plays Mike on ALL IN THE FAMILY, any relation to Carl Reiner?

ANSWER:

Rob is Carl's son.

In the movie "Broken Arrow" starring James Stewart, who played the part of Geronimo? It sounded an awful lot like Jay Silverheels. Seems like they never want to give the cast credits of most movies shown on TV, because they only show the names for about a quarter of a second. I wonder why? I just never seem to be fast enough.

ANSWER:

That's a problem a lot of us movie buffs encounter on television. You're right, though, Jay Silverheels (the Lone Ranger's Tonto) did play Geronimo in the movie version of "Broken Arrow."

Are Abbott and Costello still alive? If so, are they still working?

ANSWER:

Bud Abbott, 72, one half of the famed comedy team is still very much alive, although he has been in retirement. Lou

* * *

Will MEDICAL CENTER be back next year? Is Chad Everett married, and does he have any children?

ANSWER:

MEDICAL CENTER will be back in the same time slot. It has been a consistently high-rated program. Everett and his wife Shelby have a two-year-old daughter.

I heard that Johnny Carson is planning to marry actress Dyan Cannon, who was Cary Grant's wife. Is that true?

ANSWER:

There's a good possibility that Miss Cannon may be the third Mrs. Johnny Carson. The two are reportedly seeing quite a bit of each other.

Transit Chiefs Seek $14 Million For Rails Aid

by JERRY THOMAS

Washington, D.C., is the next stop for three Northwest Suburban Mass Transit District trustees who will tell government officials they need $14 million to keep the milwaukee Road trains rolling.

During a district meeting in Hanover Park Wednesday, The NSMTD trustees from Cook, Kane, and DuPage counties formally adopted a resolution stating the functions and purposes of the newly formed district and its intent to apply to the Urban Mass Transportation Administration for approximately $14 million in federal funding. They also hired a banker, in case public financing must be sought.

Mass Transit District chairman Donald Buckner of Bartlett led his fellow trustees through a 12-point resolution of "whereas" and preliminary statements. This led them to the resolution that simply explained tells that the district was formed of 11 communities to make it eligible for application for federal funding.

Spokesmen for Milwaukee Road urged the formation, telling all the communities along the west line service that it was unable to provide new equipment it needed to improve and maintain the service.

THOMAS PLOSS, attorney for the railroad, said once the district was formed, government funding, available only to a district, would be sought.

This is the district's next step, said Buckner. He, Elgin Trustee Herb Hanson, and Itasca Trustee Watson Tucker will journey to Washington D.C. late this month to express their hope that funding will be granted.

Buckner objected to Wood Dale Trustee Paul Stoeck's "lobbying" description of the Washington delegation.

The chairman strongly stressed the application for funds has already been made, and noted that the trustees will not be "lobbying" in any way but will talk with the Illinois senators and the congressmen.

"We are asking for funds but not lobbying," he said.

Hanover Park Trustee Frank Wallace urged the Washington delegation to ask for a study fund to determine where population projections suggest stations should be expanded or built.

Wallace said he has heard disquieting rumors that a new Schaumburg station is a sure thing while Hanover Park's Ontarioville station will be left undeveloped or abandoned.

Schaumburg refused to join the district, pointed out Wallace, while Hanover Park supported the effort to obtain funds for development. "Don't forget our town," he asked his fellow trustees.

PLOSS NOTED that the state and railroad may not fund such a study but suggested the district ask the highways department to conduct this study since it affects the proposed Elgin O'Hare Expressway.

The trustees also approved a contract with bankers, Smith, Barney and Co., of Chicago. Charles Wilson, vice president of the investment firm, offered Buckner the firm's service in the event the district does have to finance one third of the funds publicly.

Tucker delayed approval of the contract until it included an amendment that releases the village from obligation to the banking house in the event it does receive full funding from any source.

LEAPIN' LIZARDS. Look what came to tot lot graduation. The ferocious "monster" joined 235 children aged 3½ to 5 last week for their graduation from the Schaumburg Park District preschool program.

Warns Of Tax Loss Caused By Apartment

by STEVE NOVICK

More than $1 million in loss of property value would be suffered by property owners surrounding 78 acres of land at Hoffman Estates' north end if 1,372 apartments are allowed to be built there, Village Atty. Edward Hofert said yesterday in final argument of the zoning suit before the Cook County Circuit Court.

Attorney Robert Haskins, representing owners of the 78 acres, replied that most property owners in the area were aware of a business zoning classification applicable to the land since the mid-1960s. The knowledge did not deter the owners from making improvements on their land, Haskins said.

The two attorneys argued before Judge Herbert A. Ellis in the suit where owners of the 78 acres, located between Palatine and Bradwell roads, are asking that the single family zoning assigned to the land by the Hoffman Estates village board be declared invalid by the court.

HOFERT'S other points against the apartments ere:

—Water system in the area is inadequate to supply the 28 four story buildings proposed.

—$500,000 in fire fighting equipment would be needed along with professional firemen, neither of which are available to the area.

—The character of the surrounding area is entirely single-family, except for a parcel directly east of the land in question and a five unit per acre density is applicable to the property on the east, not 18 units per acre as proposed for the 78 acres in question.

Hofert said $511,000 was paid for the 78 acres and that the property can be developed at a profit under the single-family classification applicable. To grant multiple-family would serve the owners (including Chicago Aldermen Thomas Keane and Paul Wigoda) but would be costly to neighbors.

HASKINS said the question of water supply and fire protection are in the hands of village officials because no building permits would be issued until the problems are solved.

A 13-unit-per-acre density applies to the property east of his clients' 78 acres setting the character of the area for multiple development, he added.

Hofert also contended that the development of 1,300 plus apartments on the site would create a traffic problem, contrary to expert testimony given by Leo Wilke.

Haskins answered that the village should have brought its own expert in and that Hofert shouldn't refute what Wilke said from conjecture.

Judge Ellis said he would give his decision on June 21 at 10 a.m. in his Civic Center courtroom in Chicago.

Vallencourts A 2-Manhole Family

When Bert Vallencourt, 111 Aspen, complained recently to Levitt & Sons about cracked and broken sidewalk pavement in front of his new Sheffield Park home, he had little idea that the problem was soon to become much more involved.

At Tuesday's Schaumburg Village Board meeting, Vallencourt reported that after his complaint, workmen from the building firm came out and removed the pavement, but then installed "a huge sewer and manhole at the end of the driveway."

He described the installation as apparing "quite permanent" and said this action has given him the "dubious distinction of having two of these things on my property."

If the installation is permanent, Vallencourt said he would appreciate having the manhole moved about 10 feet south "in order to get out of my driveway."

VALLENCOURT SAID he has lived in Sheffield Park for about three months and has driven through the entire development only to find that his is the only such installation he could find.

He frankly questioned the fact the entire area had been "completely cemented over once and now torn up" after his complaint.

Village Engr. Joe Zgonina was asked to send an inspector to the Vallencourt property to investigate.

However, James Leakou, Levitt project manager, told the Herald this week his firm conducts a program of concrete repair in sequence throughout the development.

Although Leakou said he was not familiar with the Vallencourt problem, he admitted that it is "quite possible for a resident to have several of these on his property."

LEAKOU EXPLAINED that utilities are installed as per plans and specifications approved by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the village of Schaumburg and noted further that the concrete program is carried on involving right-of-way property only.

He said that the concrete repair program is a point of agreement between the builder and the village and speculated that the specific work adajcent to Vallencourt's property might have been done prior to an inspection by the village.

The unit in which Vallencourt lives has not been accepted by the village, Leakou confirmed.

Parks Ready To Open Pools

Final preparations for the opening of swimming pools under the supervision of Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg park districts were being made late this week.

Hoffman Estates Park District's Lions Pool will open at 1 p.m. Saturday weather permitting while Schaumburg's Civic Park Pool is scheduled to open at 1 p.m. Monday.

A second pool operated by Schaumburg Park District will be established with the July 4 opening of Robert O. Atcher Pool on Springinsguth Road next to Jane Addams Junior High School.

The new pool is being financed through voter approval of a bond sale last year which will also pay for construction of the Ellsworth Meineke Community Recreation Center in the Lancer Park subdivision, as well as numerous other neighborhood parks and playfields.

THE HOFFMAN Estates pool was acquired recently by the park district from the village and will operate under a new program this summer.

Pool Mgr. Jim Sindelar has revamped the pool schedule to keep the facility open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily during the summer.

Lesson hours have been scheduled for mornings and in addition to the basic swir instruction numerous other water activities are offered.

In Schaumburg, Civic Park Pool is under the management of Bill Ohlsen and open swimming begins at 1 p.m. daily.

In addition to lessons and other water activities for all ages, a series of junior and senior high school students has been scheduled.

These Friday night events will begin with the opening of Atcher Pool.

Looking toward the future, Schaumburg Park District is now engaged in the preliminary stages of planning its third community pool which willl be placed next to the Meineke Center slated shortly to become the administrative center of the district

WHILE HOFFMAN Estates Park District's planning is not so firm, commissioners are believed to be eyeing possibilities of a second pool in that community.

That park district has commissioned McFazdean & Everly, Ltd., a park planning and consulting firm, to prepare a master plan for the district's development over the next five years.

Preference for another pool placed near the top of suggestions received in a recent community attitude survey conducted in connection with preliminary masterplanning.

Some thought has been given to the possibility of park financing of a pool to be built in conjunction with Dist. 211's newest facility which will soon begin on west Higgins Road.

A package plan might be ready for voter presentation late this year and should it include a swim pool it seems unlikely that the facility could be completed until shortly prior to the start of the 1973 summer swim season.

At any rate, membership sales in both park districts have been exceptionally high this year which would tend to indicate that all three public pools in both villages will entertain capacity crowds this summer.

Youth Drowns In Preserve Pond

A Hanover Park boy was a drowning victim yesterday following a mishap at a forest preserve pond near Bode Road.

Steven Henning, 15, of 1717 Redwood, Hanover Park, was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Alexius Hospital in Elk Grove Village about 7:15 p.m. His body was recovered from the pond shortly after 7 p.m.

The boy had apparently been swimming in a pond on forest preserve land adjacent to Bode Road between Barrington and Bartlet Roads.

Clean-Up Postponed

A clean-up of Schaumburg waterways, originally scheduled for this Saturday and Sunday, and June 19, has been called off Clean Environment Committee members announced today.

A group spokesman said lack of adequate manpower and equipment necessitates a postponement of the creek clean-up but assured Schaumburg residents that it will be re-scheduled for sometime in September.

School's Out — Not Wage Talks

For the first time, contract talks between teachers and the board of education in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 are extending beyond the close of the school year

Mrs. Felicia Cichy, Schaumburg district's teachers association president, said yesterday negotiations are not finished To her knowledge, she said, this is the first year negotiations have not been completed by the time classes were dismissed.

This year's talks also opened later than ever before They began the second week in May, while in the past they have generally started in December or January. Teachers this year delayed their request to negotiate, hoping agreement could be reached in a shorter period than previous years Negotiations have generally taken around six months.

While the extension into the summer months could cause difficulty in the mechanics of ratification by the teachers, Mrs Cichy said yesterday it would place no hardship on teachers. Ratification might not be accomplished until after school resumes in fall.

Each summer many teachers from the district become unavailable for association meetings, said Mrs Cichy, since they may take advanced college courses or jobs out of the state.

When an agreement is reached by the negotiating teams from the board and the teachers, the association would have three alternatives for ratification. It could call a special meeting for voting, send out ballots through the mails, or wait until fall when teaching resumes.

Of the three, Mrs. Cichy said, the first alternative would be least likely, because the teachers "scatter." But no decision has been reached on which alternative will be chosen, she said. Means of ratification will be selected once an agreement is reached.

Ronald Ruble, spokesman for the board's negotiating team, also said the extension of talks will cause no difficulties.

The board has until September to approve a budget for academic year 1971-72, Ruble said, and will delay final budget proceedings until a settlement is reached. While preliminary budget figures have been developed, he said, salaries higher than alloted figures would not cause any program cuts. The most serious result would be reductions in purchases of either equipment or materials, he said.

"Swinging Decade" is produced by the festival committee and will be presented in the high school. Admission will cost adults $1.50 and students $1.

First on stage will be the Northwest Choral Society of Mount Prospect, a 65-member group organized in 1965 Under the direction of James Thunder of Chicago, the group presents two formal concerts and several pop concerts annually. Among selections the society will present are "Sounds of Silence," "Sing Out Sweet Land," "An Answer For Our Times," "It's My Day," Fiddler on the Roof" and Hello Dolly."

Next on the program will be the Conant High School Dance Club of Hoffman Estates, directed by Mrs. Jane Metcalfe. Members will dance to "Dream of Olwen," "The Work Song," "Paint it Sad," and selections from "Jesus Christ, Superstar."

The Schaumburg High School Choraliers, organized this year, will present a medley of songs from popular Broadway plays staged during the decade. Their director is John Van Hook The club recently received the highest superior rating in the District Illinois Music Concert.

The program is a two-act event, and the second act will open with the Hoffman Hallmark Chorus singing "Yesterday," "Maria," "Moon River," "Shadow of Your Smile," and "Gonna Build a Mountain."

Closing the program will be the A.C. Square Wheels of Wheeling, a square dance club known for the intricacy of its routines. The 40 couples will dance to "Something Stupid," "Rainbow Girl," "Your Time Has Come, Baby" and "Love."

Mrs. Sonja Leraas, festival chairman, predicts the show will be exceptional. "All the people performing in Swinging Decade have volunteered their time and talents to make this concert a highlight of the festival. We hope everyone will make a point to come," she said.

Trustees Endorse Festival Of Arts

Schaumburg trustees went on record this week in a formal endorsement of Schaumburg Festival of Arts being presented June 19 and 20 at Schaumburg High School.

Stressing that the village has taken a cultural lead in the suburban area, Mayor Robert O. Atcher attributed the ability to do this to "early planning which took place in the village and cooperation with other governmental bodies."

"Let us show everyone that Schaumburg is not a cultural desert," the mayor emphasized noting, too, that funds derived from the festival will be used to further the cultural growth of the community and specifically "for the rigging of a theater."

Trustee Herb Aigner said he would encourage planning for festivals annually.

Atcher agreed and said in his opinion such an idea could prove outstanding due to the variety and number of performing arts that could be included.

Price For Clean Air: More Bugs?

Schaumburg's Clean Environment Committee, headed by Trustee Jack Larsen, has been succesful in the establishment of an ordinance prohibiting the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District from spraying in the village.

A copy of the ordinance, adopted by the village board this week, is being forwarded to the district along with a formal resolution requesting that the district cease all spraying in Schaumburg.

The only exception to this ban would be if Mayor Robert O. Atcher and the board of trustees were to request such action in the case of an emergency situation.

The resolution also asks the mosquito abatement district to devote tax funds to establishment of permanent control programs such as water level management and other such activity.

In other business this week, Mayor Atcher reported that he plans to present a number of recommendations for appointments to various village commissions, committees and other auxiliary governmental boards at a June 22 village board meeting.

IN HIS regular presidential report, Atcher also noted that the Metropolitan Sanitary District recently enacted an industrial waste surcharge ordinance and requested that a representative of Schaumburg work with its comptroller.

Village Engr. Joe Zgonina has been appointel to this post, the mayor announced.

He also announced that on June 21, the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals has scheduled a 3 p.m. public hearing at Hoffman Estates Village Hall.

The petition involves a parcel of land at the northeast corner of Roselle Road and Devon Avenue requested for change from an R-3 (single family) residential district to a B-2 restricted service district.

The project involved calls for construction of an automobile service station, Atcher explained, and encouraged residents of the southern part of the village who may want to voice their opinions to attend the public hearing.

What About Chino Park?

Meeting jointly this week, Hoffman Estates park and fire protection district officials discussed areas of mutual concern chiefly regarding Chino Park.

The park district expects to assume soon ownership of Chino Park, currently the only village-owned recreational facility.

The fire district's Flagstaff Lane station lies just west of the north end of the park which is mostly used for baseball and football programs conducted by Hoffman Estates Athletic Association and the Boys Club.

Immediately prior to the time that the village agreed to release the park, fire district officials expressed a possible future need for additional space behind the existing fire station.

Essentially, officials are asking that a 100-foot strip be reserved for their possible future need and suggest that this be included in the acquisition agreement.

Fire district trustees, however, have not been explicit about what they may decide to do with the 100 feet, but have alluded to the possible future need for additional parking.

They also feel that perhaps in time to come (10 to 20 years) they may have to build another fire station and the Flagstaff Lane site and additional footage could be needed then.

But, they have also noted that the land may never be needed although they do not want to cut themselves short.

Park officials have agreed to reserve the land under the suggested terms and have asked the fire district to assist in funding the land transfer.

The fire district will pay one-third of the cost of obtaining a new survey of Chino Park and will discuss sharing legal fees involved in the transfer of ownership later.

It is expected that the matter will soon be placed before the village plan commission since subdivision will be required prior to completion of the transfer.

No Zoning Change For Car Washes?

Car wash operations, or auto-laundries as they are defined in Schaumburg, will probably continue to be restricted to M-1 (manufacturing) zoning if village trustees do not change their opinions.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher this week asked trustees to define their thinking concerning the existing ordinance that governs such operations.

The mayor explained that he had received an inquiry from persons desiring to build such an opeartion, known under the trade name Motor Valet, at Springinsguth and Schaumburg roads.

A filling station is on the land although its owners hold title to a full acre at the site and only use about half of the territory.

Schaumburg's ordinance allows for hand washing of automobiles at filling stations but does not permit use of automated conveyor-type systems.

Trustees objected to the traffic that would be generated by the auto laundry at the site in question as well as to water consumption.

Atcher explained that this operation traditionally recycles water up to eight times and with each recycling only 20 per cent is not returned to the system.

He said that this particular operation is the only one of its kind now engaged in the recycling process.

Although board members appeared to remain firm in their decision not to allow for a variance in this area, the mayor noted that Schaumburg residents do not have a car wash within the confines of their village.

"There people (the auto laundry operators) also claim that M-1 districts are not in very close proximity to the populace and this is what they are basing their proposal on," he added.

He indicated that he would discuss the possibility of a sale of a small parcel (either one or one-half acre) with present owners of M-1-zoned land.

No comment was made by either the mayor or trustees regarding such an operation with regard to Schaumburg's master plan.

Order Construction Halt

The village of Schaumburg has ordered Levitt Construction Co. to stop construction on two apartment buildings in its Sheffield Towne development, Mayor Robert O. Atcher said yesterday.

The development is on Rte. 58, about a half mile east of Barrington Road.

Atcher said the order was issued because construction is being done with different procedures from those described in the developer's plans as approved by the village board

Original plans showed the buildings would be constructed or concrete poured at the site, said Atcher, while the company is using pre-fabricated and prestressed concrete forms. The stop work order was issued early last week when the difference came to the village's attention, said Atcher.

Construction may not resume until the situation is corrected, said the mayor. The company has two options in proceeding, said Atcher, either to request a change in the zoning ordinance, or to remove the pre-stressed forms and comply with the law as it was approved.

Only two buildings are affected, said Atcher. Both are only partially completed, one in the first floor stage and the other in the second floor stage.

Officials of Levitt were not available for comment on the mayor's statements yesterday. The firm has permits for 300 apartment units.

7 Youths Arrested With Stolen Property

Seven Hoffman Estates boys aged 13 to 15 were apprehended Tuesday afternoon when village police recovered property stolen from Twinbrook School in breakins dating back through April.

The boys, all from Parcel A, were released in custody of their parents. The police department's juvenile division has taken charge of the case.

Police said they recovered about $400 worth of property taken from the school, as well as a Mars light stolen from a squad car. The boys also were responsible for the opening of numerous fire hydrants in the village last weekend, said police

Sewer Contract Let

A contract was awarded this week in Hoffman Estates for a new sanitary sewage force main and lift station to serve the western portion of the village.

All residents of Hoffman Estates, west of Jones Road, except the Moon Lake Village apartments, and the industrial area north of the Tollway will be served by the facility.

The contract was awarded to the George Hardin Inc., whose second low bid came in at $147,800.

Hardin Paving, low bidder, was awarded a contract for paving work to be done at the new village hall in the amount of $19,635.

Under ground sewer and water work at village hall was awarded to Sam Cernigila at $22,788.25, who was second low bidder.

Second low bids were accepted by the village board based on the recommendations made by the village engineer and architect that contractors they recommended were the most reputable and dependable.

Swimming Classes Are Already Filled

All scheduled swim classes sponsored by Hoffman Estates Park District were filled early this week a park spokesman said Wednesday Persons remaining interested in the possibility of getting into classes may place their names on a waiting list although park officials do not expect a significant number of cancellations.

For information concerning waiting list placement contact park offices, 529-8600, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. today or between 9 a.m. and noon tomorrow.

Village's Oldest Building To Be Torn Down Soon

The Fassbender building, oldest in Wheeling and the center of a legal controversy, will be torn down within a month.

Destruction of the dilapidated frame structure will pave the way for the construction of a commercial building on the southeast corner of Milwaukee Avenue and Dundee Road.

The building was construbted in 1876 and was the birthplace of Arthur Fassbender St., who until his death last March at 76, had battled with the village over the fate of the building.

Fassbender had called the building an historic structure while village officials considered it an eyesore and sought to have it demolished.

AT A VILLAGE board meeting Monday, A. S. Krisor, attorney for Fassbender's heirs, agreed to have the building demolished in 30 days and the board approved a setback variation that will permit construction of the new building.

The setback variation will allow the new building to be constructed in line with other buildings in the block, 7½ feet from the sidewalk.

The village board's efforts to have the building removed began after the state widened Dundee Road and Milwaukee Avenue in 1968 and a portion of the building was torn down for the road widening.

Fassbender then asked village permission to remodel the structure, which had housed stores, a restaurant, a bank and a post office. The village refused and when Fassbenter tried to begin remodeling without permits, he was fined $105.

LAST YEAR, the village filed a demolition suit saying the building was an eyesore and safety hazard. When he died, Fassbender was trying to reach a compromise with the village.

Village Atty. Paul Hamer told Krisor that it would be a good idea if the building were demolished before June 23, the date of the next court hearing on the demolition suit.

Krisor told the village board Monday that a new commercial building would be built on the property, probably by next spring.

The property is now owned by Arthur Fassbender Jr.

Village Delays Rezoning For Apartments

Wheeling's Village Board has delayed action on rezoning of property surrounding 219 N. Milwaukee Ave. for a planned development until next Monday.

The board delay was granted to give developers of the parcel, Richard and Ralph Harwood, time to investigate the cost of repairing or replacing a sewer lift station to service the property.

At this week's meeting, Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon was critical of the Harwoods for the delay in the development of the land. Scanlon pointed out that in 1967 the village rezoned the land for apartments, but that it has since stood idle.

"Are we kidding somebody or is this ever going to be a reality? It's nothing but weeds and rats," Scanlon said.

THE ATTORNEY for the developers, Harold Feierberg, explained that acquisition of additional land and the market for financing apartments in the last three years has delayed the project.

He said the firm had not originally sought planned development zoning because the village was still formulating its planned development ordinance at that time.

When Scanlon pressed him for a construction date, Feierberg said the development would be built as soon as plans could be completed and plan commission approval could be obtained.

Trustee Roger Stricker warned the developers that they should plan to rebuild or replace the sewer lift station as a part of their project, otherwise they would not have sufficient water and sewer capacity to receive village engineering approval for the projects.

Stricker said that the village budget "won't support rebuilding a lift station." He explained the station would benefit only the Harwood property.

Stricker explained that there was no sense in the village granting planned development zoning on the land if the developer couldn't afford to invest in a lift station to service their property.

STRICKER THEN proposed that the board table the rezoning to give the developers time to find out the cost of the needed work.

"These lift stations don't come cheap," he said. "It may be you will want to stop right now. We don't want to be accused of leading you down the merry path," Stricker said.

The development proposed for the site by the Harwoods includes approximately 350 one-and two-bedroom units.

Jaycees Must Change Route For Parade

The parade route for the Wheeling Jaycees' July 3 parade will have to be changed, village board members said Monday.

The Jaycees had proposed a route for the parade beginning at St. Joseph the Worker School on Dundee Road and traveling west down Dundee to Elmhurst Road and south on Elmhurst Road to Wheeling High School.

Board members directed Police Chief M. O. Horcher to meet with the Jaycees about a new parade route after discussion of a report from Horcher which objected to the parade route.

Horcher told the board that he would like a board policy banning all parades on Dundee Road between Wolf Road and McHenry Road until another major or secondary east-west highway route is built crossing the Soo Line R.R. tracks between Hintz Road and the county line.

HE TOLD THE BOARD that the proposed parade route would result in a 13-mile detour for traffic to avoid the parade.

He said the village does not have enough police to control the necessary detours for that parade route, that holiday traffic congestion would be increased by the detours, and that it would be harder for emergency vehicles to service the village if the proposed route were used.

Horcher also pointed out that there are a few residents who live on Dundee Road between Wolf Road and McHenry Road and that once the streets are blocked residents won't be able to drive near the area to see the parade.

JAYCEE PRESIDENT Frank Mahnich said yesterday that he would meet with Horcher soon. Mahnich said the Jaycees thought the detour route could be the same regardless of whether the parade went from Jack London Junior High School to the high school or from St. Joseph School to the high school.

Board members Monday also asked Horcher to make recommendations on a proposal from Kole Real Estate Ltd. for free stage coach rides down George Road to Wayne, down Wayne to Dennis, and back to George Road on July 3.

Plan Report Or Spelling Test?

by CRAIG GAARE

The following is an open letter to Buffalo Grove trustees Randall Rathjen and Thomas Mahoney.

Dear Tom and Randy:

I know you guys are pretty well educated, but do you have to demonstrate your command of the language everytime you make a report to the village board?

Now Tom, I know you're an attorney and used to high-falutin' language and making brilliant summations that reduce jury members to tears, but I am on the verge of tears myself trying to figure out what you say and get it straight in the paper.

The worst combination is when Randy makes a report and then you ask questions about it. Some nice long words are refreshing once in awhile, but "spurious?" Really. It took me five minutes just to figure out how to spell it well enough to look it up in the dictionary.

Why can't you stick to the normal village board words that sound impressive but that everybody knows the meaning of You know, like "disbursements," "feasibility," "revenue," and "tax anticipation warrants."

AFTER RANDY'S LAST report about the master plan, like you, Tom, I had to look up "morphology." The dictionary at my desk had only the common usage, like for insects, so I had to walk all the way over to the unabridged one on the other side of the office.

And Randy, I know you're a college professor and all that and like to use those words in lectures to help the college kids increase their vocabularies and stimulate them to go look up the words they don't understand, because sometime they might be on a test.

But I have already graduated from college, and when I read one of your reports, it's just like I'm back there cramming for a final. I was secretly hoping that you wouldn't get elected, after hearing you talk and use those words in our candidate interview.

Take that village master plan report you made last Monday night. You start out with some pretty OK stuff and then towards the end of the first paragraph you use "spatial." I read through it and hit on "spatial" and had to stop and think what the word meant. I thought I knew so I went on to the next paragraph.

Then I read the sentence, "The planning mechanism employed by the village for the past several years revolved around the village president negotiating with developers, the planning commission attempting some influence, albeit founded upon a morass of inexact specifications in the zoning ordinance, and the village board acting upon the recommendations of the planning commission." Sweat began to form on my brow and I got a headache. After that I lost all of my self-confidence and had to go back an look up "spatial."

I couldn't even figure out the sentence, let alone words like "albeit," "morass," and that one-two punch of "inexact specifications." I had to get out my old high school English book and look up how to diagram sentences to get the thing straight.

LET ME MAKE A recommendation on your sentence, "Therefore, we are, or will shortly have orchestrated the necessary administrative machinery to maintain a control over village planning."

Why don't you just change it to "pretty soon we're going to have enough guys so we can handle the planning."

Now if both you guys keep this up, demonstrating your forensic abilities and how well versed you are in the arts of elocution and circumlocution, I might effect a metamorphosis in my syntax and lexical morphology and endeavor to commence talking like you.

Tarkington Students Study Wind Velocity

Helium-filled balloons were launched by fifth graders at Booth Tarkington School in Wheeling as part of a study of wind velocity and wind direction.

Postcards were attached to the balloons for people who found the balloons to mail to the students. Postcards that the students received indicated that the balloon which traveled farthest was found in a corn field near Henry, about 70 miles away. The balloons generally traveled in a southwesterly direction.

The fifth graders also discussed weather instruments, air masses, clouds, forecasting and weather satellites in their study of weather.

Open Bids On Camera

Competitive bids on video camera equipment for the village police department were opened this week by the village board.

Bid prices proposed for the equipment varied from $7,608 to $4,437.

Board members referred the bids to the police department and Acting Mgr. George Passolt for recommendations on which firm should be awarded the bid.

In his new position, Ellis will be in charge of all business matters for Dist. 125 and will continue to serve as director of public relations for the district.

FBI Charges Man With Train Theft

A Palatine man was arrested yesterday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and charged with the theft, and later wreck of a Chicago and North Western R.R. train.

Nicki Fanelli, 20, of Palatine was placed under arrest by the agents on the basis of a warrant issued by the U.S. District Court following an indictment handed down yesterday by the federal grand jury.

The train wreck occured when someone took control of a Chicago and North Western engine on March 18 and took it to Lake Geneva, Wis. where the train was found damaged. Chicago and North Western officials later estimated damage to their equipment at $300,000.

FANELLI WAS CHARGED yesterday with violations of federal train wreck statutes and interstate transportatin of stolen property.

According to Charles Bates, special agent in charge of the Chicago bureau of the FBI, Fanelli was arrested yesterday at the U.S. Army induction center in Chicago where he was in the process of enlisting in the Army.

Palatine police said yesterday they presently have a charge of unlawful use of weapons pending against Fanelli. The charge dates back to an incident in October, 1970.

Children in grades one through eight are eligible to participate in the program. Theme of the program is "Dive Into Summer-Read."

Tekton Donation Of Park Site Is Sought

The Wheeling Park District superintendent has written to the developers of the new Tekton Corp. quadrominium development on McHenry Road asking a donation to develop a park site.

Supt. Ferd Arndt asked the corporation to give the district a cash donation in exchange for the district relinquishing its claim to a public-land use site on the property.

School Dist. 21 recently received a promise of a $17,000 donation from the developer in exchange for its relinquishing power over the site.

Arndt explained a minimum of $5,000 is needed to develop a park. He said the money would be used for a park on the remaining section of the public use site which is just adjacent to the Tekton property.

The Tekton development will consist of 400 quadrominium units on McHenry Road in northern Wheeling.

Some Area Homes May Get Lake Michigan Water

Under a plan proposed by the Lake County Public Water District (LCPWD), homes in Lake County Buffalo Grove could receive drinking water from Lake Michigan within the next three to five years.

Buffalo Grove Trustee Randall Rathjen attended a meeting two weeks ago between representatives of the district and municipalities in Lake County interested in using Lake Michigan water.

In his report to the rest of the village board Monday night, Rathjen said the water would come from the district's plant in Zion, a lakefront community in the northeast corner of Lake County. The 10 million gallons per day plan is about one year old and provides all the water for Zion.

If the proposal becomes a reality, the water situation in the entire village would be affected. The end result would be more water for the rest of the village in Cook County.

The village is in the process of building a 500,000 gallon reservoir in Lake County and has recenty finished a well on an Arlington Heights Road site to serve Lake County homes.

Created in 1951, as a municipal nontaxing body, the water district encompasses all of Lake County with the exception of Highland Park, Highwood, Fort Sheridan, Lake Forest, North Chicago, Great Lakes, and Waukegan.

Phillip Fragassi, a LCPWD official, said the idea behind the creation of the district was to supply water to municipalities that are not able to meet their now needs.

Although the district does not have the power to levy taxes, it can sell municipal bonds and currently has sold about $3 million worth, Fragassi said.

THE KEY TO getting Lake Michigan water to Buffalo Grove lies in the hands of the towns to the north, according to Rathjen.

"The LCPWD at present has the capability of expanding servoice west, from Zion to Antioch, and if the communities request, could extend the line south along Rte. 45 to serve them," Rathjen said in his report.

Either Libertyville or Mundelein must participate in the program if it is to be extended to Lake Zurich and Buffalo Grove, according to Rathjen.

"If all the communities requested the services of the LCPWD and there were no other hindrances, the Lake County portion of Buffalo Grove could be served by Lake Michigan water in three to five years," Rathjen told the trustees.

Frogassi said Libertyville is "interested" in the plan but he has had no indication on how Mundelein officials feel about the proposal.

Rathjen said studies are underway to determine "how far and how fast the program could go."

The district does have state approval to pump water from Lake Michigan and has applied for approval to increase the amount of water it takes from the lake.

"On the basis of what we think, there doesn't appear to be too drastic of a problem water-wise," Fragassi said.

"We have applied to the state and they haven't turned us down yet." The district applied about 18 months ago, Fragassi said.

Report Stereo Theft

Robert Lawyer of 616 Raupp Blvd., Buffalo Grove reported to Wheeling Police Wednesday that a stereo radio valued at $80 had been stolen from his car Tuesday.

Lawyer told police the radio was taken between 8 and 10 p.m. while his car was parked in the parking lot of Wheeling High School. The theft occurred while graduation ceremonies were going on at the school.

AIDED BY A LARGE megaphone, Irwin Brick, Wheeling High School band director, calls out directions to the marching band during a practice session in preparation for the band's trip this weekend to Virginia Beach, Va. The band will compete in a national contest next week at Virginia Beach.

Wildcat Band Off To Virginia Beach

At 7 p.m. today, the Wheeling High School marching band members will board a convoy of buses at Wheeling High and depart for Virginia Beach, Va.

There the band will compete in the Virginia Beach Band Festival. About 200 persons — band members and chaperones — will make the trip.

The Wildcat Marching Band will be one of 26 bands from 10 states to compete in the national festival.

"I don't know if we'll win, but we'll do the best we know how. Our intent certainly is to go out and win," said band director Irwin Brick

MANY EXTRA PRACTICE sessions have been held in recent months to get the band in top shape for the competition, Brick said.

According to the itinerary, the band and chaperones will arrive in Virginia Beach about 5 p.m. Saturday.

On Sunday, the group will tour the Norfolk, Va. naval base as guests of the U.S. Navy Department.

Monday morning and afternoon will be devoted to practice sessions. Monday evening the band will compete in the parade and inspection areas of the contest.

Tuesday the band will be judged on its concert performance and Wednesday on its halftime show presentation.

THE AWARDS PRESENTATION to the winning bands will be made on Thursday. Next Friday the band will leave for Wheeling and arrive at Wheeling High School about 9 or 10 a.m. on Saturday.

Approximately $18,000 for transportation and lodging on the trip will be provided by the Wheeling Instrumental League, an organization of band boosters. The league raised most of this money during the past year by sponsoring a variety of fundraising activities.

The Wheeling High School band performed once before in the Virginia Beach contest. In the 1968 competition, the band took first place in marching band competition, second place in wind symphony competition and second place in overall excellence. In that contest, the band completed against 19 bands from 12 states.

Radio Line Links Fire Aid System To Other Areas

A radio network now links the Buffalo Grove Fire Department to the rest of the 16-area fire departments under the mutual aid fire fighting system, according to Wayne Winter, Buffalo Grove Fire Chief.

He said two radios, which were installed last week, are the final links in the communication system between all of the departments in the mutual aid pact. One of the radios was installed in Winter's home and another one in the police department's communications room.

Using a system of box alarms, the mutual aid system designates exactly which fire departments should respond and with what equipment when a request for additional men and equipment is made.

The radio system is activated when a department needing help contacts the Arlington Heights Fire Department headquarters. The dispatcher then activates a signal which sets off a tone on the receiver radios in each of the other 16 departments.

BEFORE THE RADIOS were installed, the dispatcher would have to telephone or radio the other departments individually, Winter explained.

"Now everyone hears about it at the same time," he said.

When the mutual aid system was established, the entire area served by the 16 departments was divided into geographic sections and each section was given a box number.

When help is needed, the dispatcher in Arlington Heights gives out information on the exact location and the box number of the fire. Each chief in turn checks the box number to see what his responsibility is.

Youth To Be Charged With School Fire

A 12-year-old Wheeling boy will be charged in connection with the May 29 fire in the principal's office at Eugene Field School, Wheeling Police said.

The youth, who will face a Family Court hearing, used a glass cutter to enter the office through the window, police said, and poured gasoline on piles of papers on the principal's desk, and on piles of papers he had pulled from a filing cabinet and spread on the floor.

Police said the youth then crawled out of the window and threw burning paper tissues into the room to ignite the fire.

The fire burned itself out before being discovered by a school maintenance man. It did approximately $500 damage to the office, but an automatic sprinkler system in the office failed to activate despite the fire.

Final Two Days For Park Registration

Tomorrow is the last day of registration for the Buffalo Grove Park District summer programs.

Registration will be held at the Emmerich Park Fieldhouse from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The only change in the programming is in the tiny tots classes. The program is now open to all children who will reach the age of four by July 1, 1971. Previously, the cutoff date was Dec. 1, 1970.

The park district will offer several activities, with the emphasis on providing recreation for children. In addition to the tiny tots program, the district will offer a junior and senior playground program for older children up to the age of 12.

Other park programs offered this summer are ballet, tap, and acrobatics classes, baton classes, a men's softball league, guitar lessons and tennis instruction.

Details of the programs are available by calling the park district office at 537-0356.

Plan Report Or Spelling Test?

by CRAIG GAARE

The following is an open letter to Buffalo Grove trustees Randall Rathjen and Thomas Mahoney.

Dear Tom and Randy:

I know you guys are pretty well educated, but do you have to demonstrate your command of the language everytime you make a report to the village board?

Now Tom, I know you're an attorney and used to high-falutin' language and making brilliant summations that reduce jury members to tears, but I am on the verge of tears myself trying to figure out what you say and get it straight in the paper.

The worst combination is when Randy makes a report and then you ask questions about it. Some nice long words are refreshing once in awhile, but "spurious?" Really. It took me five minutes just to figure out how to spell it well enough to look it up in the dictionary.

Why can't you stick to the normal village board words that sound impressive but that everybody knows the meaning of. You know, like "disbursements," "feasibility," "revenue," and "tax anticipation warrants."

AFTER RANDY'S LAST report about the master plan, like you, Tom, I had to look up "morphology." The dictionary at my desk had only the common usage, like for insects, so I had to walk all the way over to the unabridged one on the other side of the office.

And Randy, I know you're a college professor and all that and like to use those words in lectures to help the college kids increase their vocabularies and stimulate them to go look up the words they don't understand, because sometime they might be on a test.

But I have already graduated from college, and when I read one of your reports, it's just like I'm back there cramming for a final. I was secretly hoping that you wouldn't get elected, after hearing you talk and use those words in our candidate interview.

Take that village master plan report you made last Monday night. You start out with some pretty OK stuff and then towards the end of the first paragraph you use "spatial." I read through it and hit on "spatial" and had to stop and think what the word meant. I thought I knew so I went on to the next paragraph.

Then I read the sentence, "The planning mechanism employed by the village for the past several years revolved around the village president negotiating with developers, the planning commission attempting some influence, albeit founded upon a morass of inexact specifications in the zoning ordinance, and the village board acting upon the recommendations of the planning commission." Sweat began to form on my brow and I got a headache. After that I lost all of my self-confidence and had to go back an look up "spatial."

I couldn't even figure out the sentence, let alone words like "albeit," "morass," and that one-two punch of "inexact specifications." I had to get out my old high school English book and look up how to diagram sentences to get the thing straight.

LET ME MAKE A recommendation on your sentence, "Therefore, we are, or will shortly have orchestrated the necessary administrative machinery to maintain a control over village planning."

Why don't you just change it to "pretty soon we're going to have enough guys so we can handle the planning."

Now if both you guys keep this up, demonstrating your forensic abilities and how well versed you are in the arts of elocution and circumlocution, I might effect a metamorphosis in my syntax and lexical morphology and endeavor to commence talking like you.

Tarkington Students Study Wind Velocity

Helium-filled balloons were launched by fifth graders at Booth Tarkington School in Wheeling as part of a study of wind velocity and wind direction.

Postcards were attached to the balloons for people who found the balloons to mail to the students. Postcards that the students received indicated that the balloon which traveled farthest was found in a corn field near Henry, about 70 miles away. The balloons generally traveled in a southwesterly direction.

The fifth graders also discussed weather instruments, air masses, clouds, forecasting and weather satellites in their study of weather

Open Bids On Camera

Competitive bids on video camera equipment for the village police department were opened this week by the village board.

Bid prices proposed for the equipment varied from $7,608 to $4,437.

Board members referred the bids to the police department and Acting Mgr. George Passolt for recommendations on which firm should be awarded the bid.

2 Stevenson Staffers Promoted

Two members of the Adlai Stevenson High School administrative staff have been given promotions by the Dist. 125 school board, effective July 1.

Edwin Ellis, currently business manager at Stevenson, has been named assistant superintendent for business. Paul Kern, currently administrative assistant at Stevenson, has been appointed principal of Stevenson High School.

Ellis joined the staff of Dist. 125 in 1963, and has served as business manager at Stevenson High School since 1965.

He holds a bachelor's degree from Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant, and a master's degree from Northern Illinois University.

In his new position, Ellis will be in charge of all business matters for Dist. 125 and will continue to serve as director of public relations for the district.

Kern has been a member of the staff of Dist. 125 since 1958.

Kern was formerly a mathematics teacher and chairman of the mathematics department in the district. He later became an administrative aid and during the past school year has served as administrative assistant. Kern has a doctorate degree from Northern Illinois University.

In his new position, he will be responsible for all the basic duties of principal at Stevenson High School.

Harold Bauser had been serving as principal, as well as Dist. 125 superintendent.

FBI Charges Man With Train Theft

A Palatine man was arrested yesterday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and charged with the theft, and later wreck of a Chicago and North Western R.R. train.

Nicki Fanelli, 20, of Palatine was placed under arrest by the agents on the basis of a warrant issued by the U.S. District Court following an indictment handed down yesterday by the federal grand jury.

The train wreck occured when someone took control of a Chicago and North Western engine on March 18 and took it to Lake Geneva, Wis. where the train was found damaged. Chicago and North Western officials later estimated damage to their equipment at $300,000.

FANELLI WAS CHARGED yesterday with violations of federal train wreck statutes and interstate transportatin of stolen property.

According to Charles Bates, special agent in charge of the Chicago bureau of the FBI, Fanelli was arrested yesterday at the U.S. Army induction center in Chicago where he was in the process of enlisting in the Army.

Palatine police said yesterday they presently have a charge of unlawful use of weapons pending against Fanelli. The charge dates back to an incident in October, 1970.

Summer Reading Signup Monday

Children in grades one through eight are eligible to participate in the program. Theme of the program is "Dive Into Summer-Read."

Tekton Donation Of Park Site Is Sought

The Wheeling Park District superintendent has written to the developers of the new Tekton Corp. quadrominium development on McHenry Road asking a donation to develop a park site.

Supt. Ferd Arndt asked the corporation to give the district a cash donation in exchange for the district relinquishing its claim to a public-land use site on the property.

School Dist. 21 recently received a promise of a $17,000 donation from the developer in exchange for its relinquishing power over the site.

Arndt explained a minimum of $5,000 is needed to develop a park. He said the money would be used for a park on the remaining section of the public use site which is just adjacent to the Tekton property.

The Tekton development will consist of 400 quadrominium units on McHenry Road in northern Wheeling.

High Court May Allow Township Collector Again

A recent Illinois Supreme Court ruling may mean that Palatine Township residents will have their own township collector again.

More than a year ago the courts declared the collection of excess commissions illegal and said the collectors had no function.

The Illinois Supreme Court last month, however, on an appeal to the case, upheld the decision that excess commissions were illegal but said township collectors could not lose their jobs because of a court ruling.

The former Palatine collector, Albert DePue, appeared at the township board meeting Monday and submitted a tentative budget for the township collection process, alerting the board that it may be necessary to budget funds for collection.

THE COLLECTION process meanwhile has been taken over by Cook County.

DePue made the recommendation to include the collection in the budget on the advice of the Township Collectors Association's legal counsel, according to Howard Olsen, township supervisor.

DePue said at the meeting that there was a strong possibility that the collectors would be back in business at least in time for the second installment on tax bills, September 1.

"Everything is still so nebulous that we accepted the recommendation and directed him to be prepared to submit something more tangible at the July meeting," Olsen said.

The next township meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. July 6 in the township hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd.

Olsen said the board deferred any consideration of the request until that time, when he expected there would be a clearer idea on whether township collectors would actually be allowed to collect taxes.

HE SAID THERE is a question now whether the collectors are only in name or if they can function as such.

Cook County officials contend that the townships can maintain their collectors if they want but that the county will continue to handle the collection process and has no need for their services.

No matter who continues to collect the taxes, the collection of excess commissions is permanently ended effective December 1 through the new Illinois Constitutuion.

Charge Man With Train Theft

A Palatine man was arrested yesterday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and charged with the theft, and later wreck of a Chicago and North Western R.R. train.

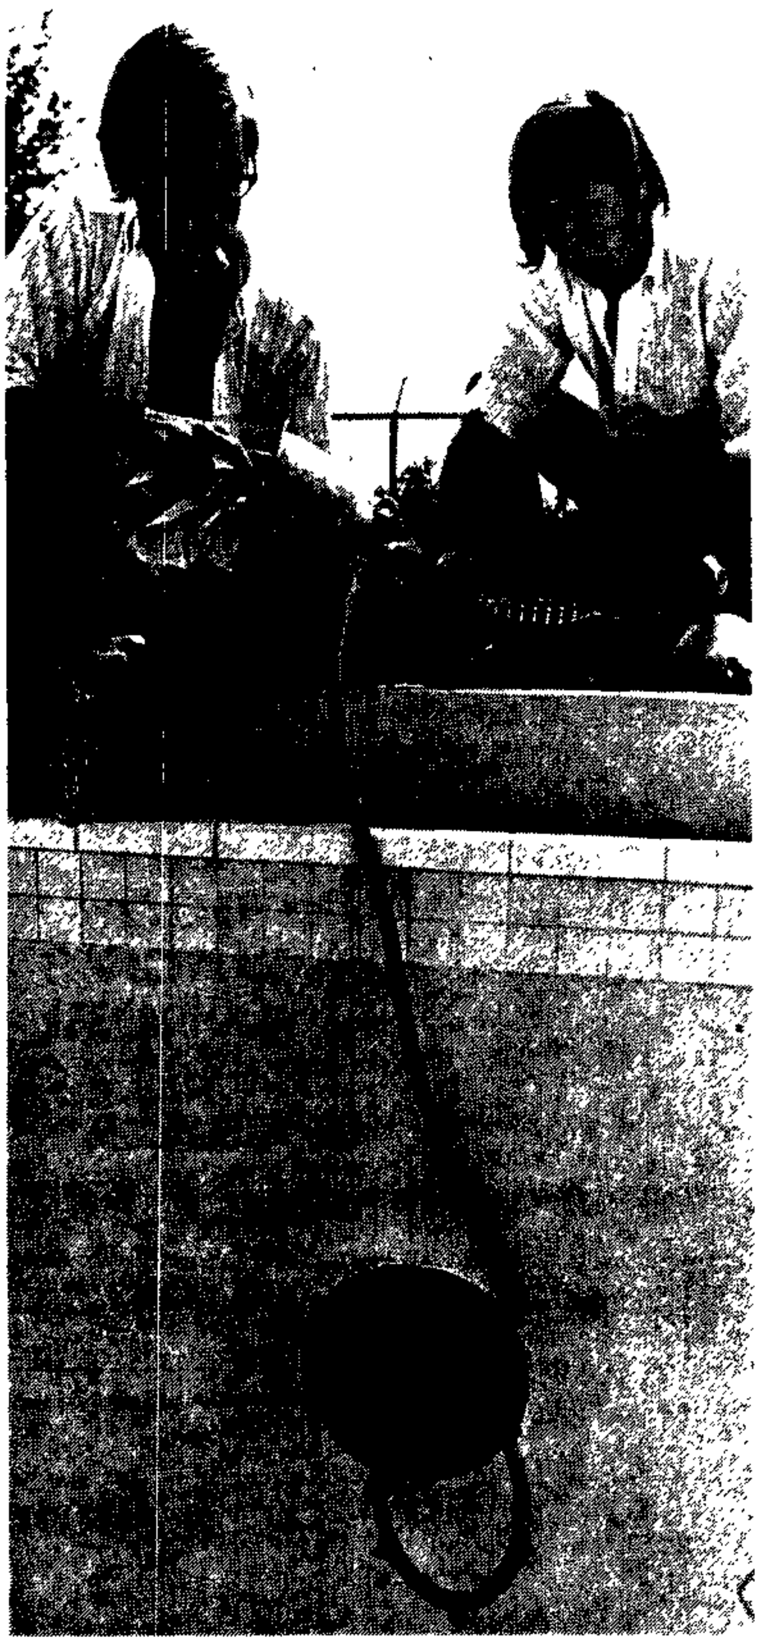
Nicki Fanelli, 20, of Palatine was placed under arrest by the agents on the basis of a warrant issued by the U.S. District Court following an indictment handed down yesterday by the federal grand jury.

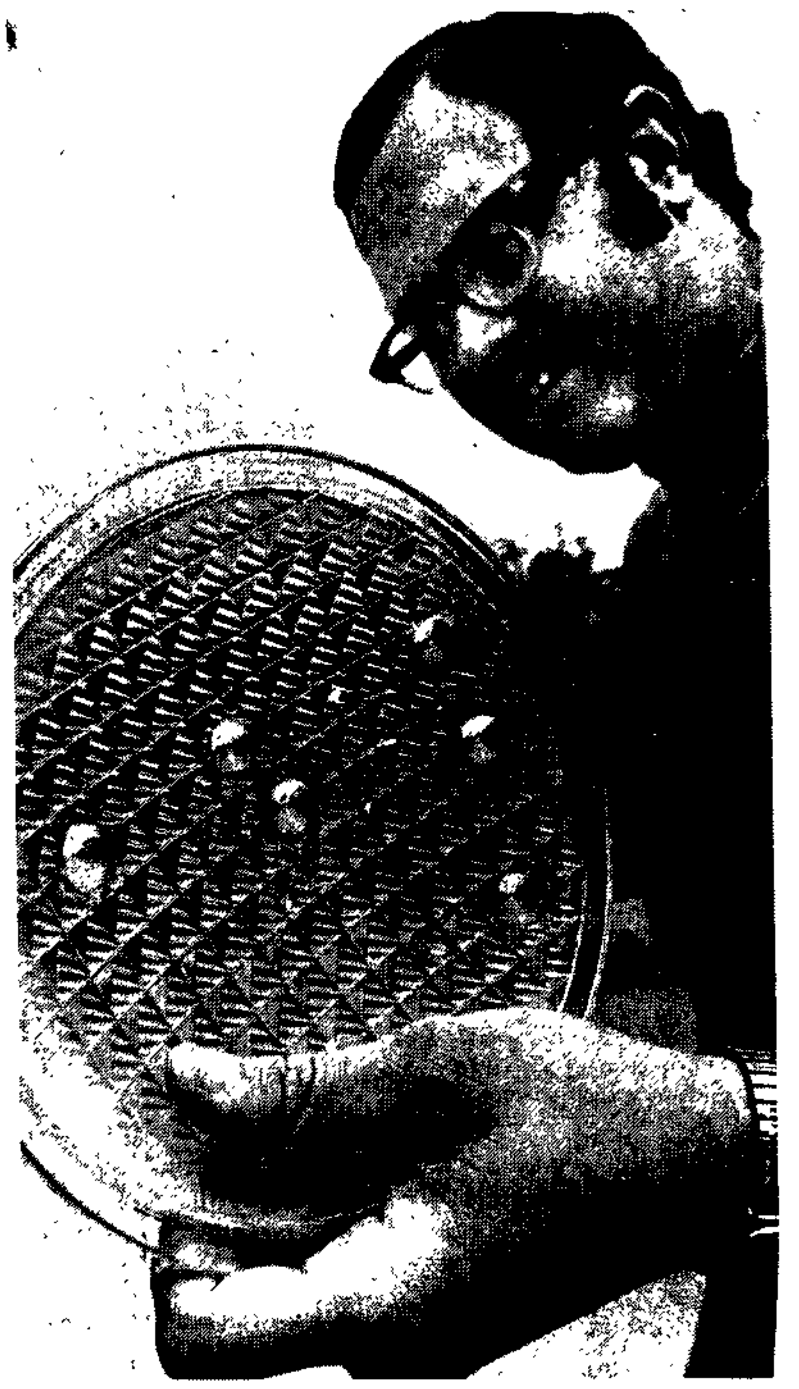
The train wreck occured when someone took control of a Chicago and North Western engine on March 18 and took it to Lake Geneva, Wis. where the train was found damaged. Chicago and North Western officials later estimated damage to their equipment at $300,000.

FANELLI WAS CHARGED yesterday with violations of federal train wreck statutes and interstate transportatin of stolen property.

According to Charles Bates, special agent in charge of the Chicago bureau of the FBI, Fanelli was arrested yesterday at the U.S. Army induction center in Chicago where he was in the process of enlisting in the Army.

Palatine police said yesterday they presently have a charge of unlawful use of weapons pending against Fanelli. The charge dates back to an incident in October, 1970.





VANDALISM OF of pool lights and leaks in the pipes hindered Community Park personnel in Palatine from having both pools ready for opening tomorrow. One of the pools will definitely be ready, however. Here Duane Hossimer, above, inspects the lights, while John Brokaw and Dave Arntzen begin repair work at the pools.

New Motel Plans To Be Shown Soon

Plans for a major motel, to be constructed on 20 acres of land next to the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows, are expected to be presented to the city council soon.

The land just east of Rte. 53 has been dormant since October when the Royal Coach Motor Inn went bankrupt and stopped construction of a 1,000-room motel. More than $250,000 in improvements have been made to the land as foundations, and sewer work was completed before the company failed.

The Downtowner Motor Lodge Co. absorbed the defunct Royal Coach Motor Inn. in October and unconfirmed reports state that the Downtowner now plans to build a motel on the land.

A representative of the Downtowner offices in Chicago could not confirm the reports of plans for a motel on the site, but said there "had been talk at a recent sales meeting regarding the ownership of the land."

Mayor Roland Meyer, who reportedly has been contacted by the developer, would not release the information this week. He said final details were incomplete. He did say, however, the city council would be contacted within the next few weeks regarding the planned use of the property.

ANOTHER REPORT stated the land would be used for a motel and office building complex. The report stated the motel may be built by the Downtowner chain.

The original proposal for the Royal Coach Motor Inn had a 20-story high-rise to be built in three stages. Estimated cost of the structure was $50 million. Plans for the first stage showed 600 rooms in an elaborate three-story building. The second phase showed an additional 400 rooms and the 20-story high rise was planned for the third stage to be completed in 1974.

Royal Coach officials had obtained rezoning of the property to allow the motel, but Rolling Meadows Building and Zoning Officer Sverre Haug said another rezoning hearing would be needed as the land has been made single-family zoning because of the length of time since the motel rezoning was granted.

Haug said the land "is probably the most valuable piece in the city, with all the improvement made by Royal Coach before they went bankrupt." There has been speculation for some time concerning development of the land, and Haug said more than a dozen Realtors have approached him regarding the property.

Expect Lines At Pools

Palatine Park District residents anticipating a refreshing dip in the district pools on opening day Saturday can expect a long wait in line.

Although lines at the pools are a common sight in the park district anyway, the problem will be magnified Saturday. It's the first day the pools will be open and one of the pools will be inoperative for another week.

The Maple Park pool will open as scheduled beginning at 1 p.m. said Duane Hosimer, recreation supervisor. The new pool at Community Park will also open at 1 p.m. but the old pool is being repaired.

A pipe in the pool broke and was repaired in time, he said. However, when the pool was filled, eight leaks were discovered in the pipe. He estimates it will take about a week to have them all repaired.

Five underwater lights in the new pool had to be replaced before the pool could be filled. The lights were battered with pellet holes, apparently by youngsters sometime during the winter, he said.

Beer Drinking At Younger Age?

by MARGE FERROLI

People seem to be looking at the issue of 18-year-old drinking more realistically, especially the state legislature.

A measure introduced in the House of Representatives this week to permit the drinking of beer in Illinois for minors 18 and up was passed by a margin of 98 to 32 Many legislators, including the bill's sponsor, Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, felt that since youths are going to drink beer anyway, the state might as well make it legal

Most of the people contacted by the Herald were of the same opinion, although many gave negative feelings about drinking in general.

"I'm all for it," said the 18 year old son of the Robert Savages, 4503 Peacock Ln., Rolling Meadows. "Most of my friends would be for it, too." He said he would probably drink beer when he could even if the age remains at 21.

"My parents and I talked about this the other night and they agreed the law should be changed. Drinking is a better alternative than drugs."

Another youth, who falls into the 18 to 21 category, said she would not find much use for the changing of the law. "I'm not hung up on the fact that it's unfair that everyone can't drink when they want to," said the daughter of the Richard Bianchis, 249 Plum Grove Rd., Palatine "I can wait till I'm 21."

ALTHOUGH SHE is not quite 18, another youth said she was in favor of lowering the beer drinking age because "drinking could be better controlled if it's legal."

The daughter of the Loren Millers, 139 Forest Dr., Palatine, also said beer drinking would "give kids a chance not to get on drugs. There are just as many kids that can handle small amounts of beer as adults."

A Wisconsin resident, who comes from a state where drinking is legal at 18 in some counties said lowering the age in Illinois would be a good idea. Mrs. Barbara Walker, who was visiting the J. G. Walkers of Rolling Meadows, said she found "most kids know how to handle beer." She also said 18 year olds would probably be "more comfortable" if they were legally permitted to drink.

Parents generally agreed lowering the age would be good, but only to prevent a more serious conditions among youths.

"If it would help to stop the use of dope, then I'm for it," Mrs. Henry Meister, 3617 S. Falcon Ct., Rolling Meadows, said. "I seriously doubt whether it would help the drug problem, but it's worth a try."

MRS. ROGER COOK, 2906 Oriole, Rolling Meadows, also favored the legislation, because" if kids are old enough to serve their country, they're old enough to drink." However, she said she didn't think 18 to 21 year olds were mature enough to handle beer.

One Palatine resident didn't think the way to solve the underage drinking problem was to legalize it for them. "I don't think boys and girls at 18 should have the opportunity to obtain beer so easily," Mrs. Reginald Simeon Jr., 53 N. Ashland Ave., said. "I'm sure many of them do drink, but it shouldn't be made easier for them."

Warns Of Tax Loss Caused By Apartment

by STEVE NOVICK

More than $1 million in loss of property value would be suffered by property owners surrounding 78 acres of land at Hoffman Estates' north end if 1,372 apartments are allowed to be built there, Village Atty. Edward Hofert said yesterday in final argument of the zoning suit before the Cook County Circuit Court.

Attorney Robert Haskins, representing owners of the 78 acres, replied that most property owners in the area were aware of a business zoning classification applicable to the land since the mid-1960s. The knowledge did not deter the owners from making improvements on their land, Haskins said.

The two attorneys argued before Judge Herbert A. Ellis in the suit where owners of the 78 acres, located between Palatine and Bradwell roads, are asking that the single family zoning assigned to the land by the Hoffman Estates village board be declared invalid by the court.

HOFERT'S other points against the apartments ere:

—Water system in the area is inadequate to supply the 28 four story buildings proposed.

—$500,000 in fire fighting equipment would be needed along with professional firemen, neither of which are available to the area.

—The character of the surrounding area is entirely single-family, except for a parcel directly east of the land in question and a five unit per acre density is applicable to the property on the east, not 18 units per acre as proposed for the 78 acres in question.

Hofert said $511,000 was paid for the 78 acres and that the property can be developed at a profit under the single-family classification applicable. To grant multiple-family would serve the owners (including Chicago Aldermen Thomas Keane and Paul Wigoda) but would be costly to neighbors.

HASKINS said the question of water supply and fire protection are in the hands of village officials because no building permits would be issued until the problems are solved.

A 13-unit-per-acre density applies to the property east of his clients' 78 acres setting the character of the area for multiple development, he added.

Hofert also contended that the development of 1,300 plus apartments on the site would create a traffic problem, contrary to expert testimony given by Leo Wilke.

Haskins answered that the village should have brought its own expert in and that Hofert shouldn't refute what Wilke said from conjecture.

Judge Ellis said he would give his decision on June 21 at 10 a.m. in his Civic Center courtroom in Chicago.

Most people have just received their real estate tax bill. Because the bills were mailed late, the first installment is due July 15. Some people have been concerned because the postponed date was not mentioned in the bill. Sept. 1 is the second installment due date.

Lake Water Plan Stalled

by ROGER CAPETTINI

An apparent communications problem may be hampering the efforts of Northwest suburban communities to divert water from Lake Michigan.

Despite estimates that the useful life of local wells is about 10 years, the Des Plaines- Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect-Palatine (DAMP) water commission and the Illinois Division of Waterways are waiting for the other to make the next move.

The four-town commission has asked the staete for an allocation to permit the towns to divert 25.9 cubic feet per second of water from the lake.

DAMP, which plans to build water intake, transmission and filtration facilities, has been told by the state that it will get a share of the 3,200 cubic feet per second from the lake set aside for Illinois by a 1967 U.S. Supreme Court decision.

LAST SPRING, John C. Guillou, chief engineer, for the state agency, told DAMP it would get its fair share when the allocations were made in the fall. The official allocations were not posted, however, and according to DAMP commissioners, were delayed by Guillou until this spring.

DAMP officials say the commission cannot proceed with plans to build the pipeline to bring the water to the suburbs until the state makes a move.

DAMP chairman Robert F. Teepe of Mount Prospect, said yesterday that the commission cannot begin to sell bonds or start construction until it gets the allocation. "We need more than a verbal assurance," he said.

Contacted in Springfield Monday, Guillou said the state cannot make the allocation until the commission reaches a firm decision on its water needs. "They don't know the precise amount they need," he said. "We are reluctant to make an allocation and then have them not use it for a couple of years. Once it's allocated, no one else can use the water," he explained.

"WE'RE READY TO make the allocation whenever they wish to have it," Guillou added. "Once they really have to have an allocation, they can have it. There's no holdup here at all," he said.

Teepe said, "There seems to be a difference of opinion in his office. They said they would be posting the preliminary allocations in the spring, and now some of his people say it may be two years before any allocations are made."

The DAMP chairman continued, "Some of his people have said recently that they don't even know how much water they have to allocate."

TEEPE SAID he cannot understand any question arising over the need of the commission. "Our report to the state lays out the requirements of DAMP over a period of years."

He said the possibility of DAMP joining with the Elmhurst-Villa Park-Lombard (Tree Towns) water commission to bring the water to the respective areas should not have an effect on the posting of the allocations, because the total amounts needed by both commissions wil remain the same.

Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine now obtain their water supplies solely from municipal wells. Well life in the three suburbs has been estimated to anywhere from 11 to 15 years, if water usage continues to grow.

Des Plaines, which now buys about two thirds of its water from the City of Chicago, has indicated that it wants to remain part of DAMP and be included in the feasibility studies. Des Plaines' contract with Chicago expires in 1974.

Racing To Go On As Usual

by BARRY SIGALE

It will be racing as usual today at Arlington Park Race Track.

About 50 owners entered their race horses last night after threatening to boycott today's races in a dispute over the use of medication on horses.

The owners were persuaded to enter today's card by Edward "Ned" Bonnie, the Louisville attorney who has represented the men in the dispute. Bonnie told them they would lose any gains they have made on the issue, which has been the subject of several hearings before the Illinois Racing Board.

Jack Loome, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE), owners of Arlington and Washington parks, said injunction proceedings initiated before a judge in Chicago Thursday morning to prevent such a boycott, would be dropped today.

"We're the third party in this situation," Loome said shortly before the owners decided to enter tomorrow's races. "The strike is not against us. We're fighting something we didn't start."

The 7 p.m. filing time was about 10 hours later than usual. Nine races make up a full card. The first race begins at 2 p.m. and the last race at about 5:45.

The controversy concerns the use of drugs as pain killers which are administered to the horses before races. The principal drug under concern is Butazolidin, better known among horsemen as "Bute." The majority of horse owners at Arlington Park want controlled medication.

As one owner put it:

"A horse can run if he has no pain. If the horse has pain, he can't run. It's as simple as that. The drugs make him (the horse) faster no matter how you look at it."

Bonnie told the owners that they had better not boycott the track today because of some of the gains they have made for the use of controlled medication.

"All I can tell you," he told the owners who were gathered around the track office where horses are entered, "is that a boycott of tomorrow's races would hurt your chances. We're already hurt (because of the threat of a boycott). We're now in deep center field when we were running in from third base yesterday.

"I can't promise you anything but I am going to work on the problem. MacArthur (Alexander MacArthur, chairman of the Illinois Racing Board) told me he can't make me any promises. I'll try to get the job done.

"If you don't get back in there and enter I might as well go back to Louisville."

Bonnie is the same attorney who went to court several years ago when Dancer's Image, a Kentucky Derby winner, was disqualified because it was determined that medication was used on the horse.

A ruling in favor of the horse was made a couple of years later and he was declared the official winner.

Court To Allow Disannex

The lifting of a Circuit Court restraining order Wednesday will permit the Arlington Heights Village Board to disannex a tract of land so it can be annexed to Palatine.

The land in question is a tract just west of Rte. 53, north of Palatine Road and east of Wilke Road.

Attorneys for the owner of the property, Karl Reinke, obtained a restraining order Monday to prohibit any action by the Arlington Heights Village Board at its meeting that night. The board was scheduled to vote on a disannexation ordinance.

The board delayed action pending a circuit court hearing Wednesday. After the hearing, the restraining order was lifted, according to Jack Siegel, village attorney for Arlington Heights. The attorney said this will allow the village to pass the disannexation ordinance.

Siegel also said Reinke's attorney filed a petition to prevent any change from the present general business district zoning.

The property owner requested a resubdivision and variation to allow construction of a White Hen Pantry and a dry cleaning store from the Arlington Heights Plan Commission in April. The commission decided the property could be better served by Palatine and should be annexed to that village. The proposed site for the development was part of Arlington Heights before Rte 53 became a major highway.

The disannexation of the land was discussed last month by the Arlington Heights Village Board, but trustees delayed action because the property owner had not been notified of the pending action.

City Council Supports House Trailer Bill

The Rolling Meadows City Council has passed a resolution supporting House Bill 1564 which allows local authorities to license, regulate and locate house trailers within municipalities.

The bill has passed the Illinois House of Representatives but according to Ald. Frederick Jacobson, chairman of the city ordinance and judiciary committee, the bill "is in trouble in the senate."

The resolution urges Senator Jack A. Graham to support the bill when it comes to a vote calling it "in the best interests of municipalities in Illinois."

In Crack Outfit

Maj. Don Kincaid of Palatine was a member of the 556th Reconnaissance Squadron at Yokota Air Base, Japan, when it earned the U.S. Air Force Outstanding Unit Award recently.

Bigger Planes For Airport

Citizens Fear Pal-Waukee Growth

A Wheeling citizens group has expressed fears that Pal-Waukee Airport may be expanded to become a "satellite airport for business and feeder line aircraft now using O'Hare" airport.

In the latest round of its battle with the airport, the group has persuaded the Wheeling Village Board to join it in asking the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to inform the public of its activities at the airport just south of the village

The group told the village board that the FAA had cooperated with the airport in increasing the weight limit at the airport so that planes as large as Boeing 727 and the DC-7 could use Pal-Waukee.

The weight limit was reduced, after a lawsuit was filed, but the citizens group wants public disclosure to insure it is not raised again

After listening to William Rogers and Robert Watts of the citizens group, the village board directed Village Atty Paul Hamer to prepare a resolution supporting the group

IN A WRITTEN speech Watts and Rogers told the board "We have been concerned about the extent of involvement by the FAA in the excessive expansion of this private, profit-making corporation. The use of federal funds by an agency whose own self-interest would be enhanced by the additional expansion should not go unnoticed."

Rogers told the board that the effort to get cooperation from the FAA is the latest move in the citizen's committee's 2½ year effort to have planes using the airport fly over the forest preserves instead of homes.

The new action is in addition to a suit filed against the airport owners by the state's attorney's fofice. That suit seeks to have the airport comply with provisions of a special use permit issued by the Cook County Board of Commissioners in 1964.

The suit charges that the permit has been violated by extending the runway and allowing heavier plans than specified to use the airport.

The resolution to the FAA regional director from the citizens group and the village asks the federal agency, as well as the airport owners, to abide by all provisions of the 1964 special use permit."

IT ALSO asks that the FAA "provide the public and local governing bodies with updated, detailed printed flight pattern information."

The request includes a demand that "prior to effecting any changes in operations or facility expansion, the FAA publicly reveal the specific details, petition the county authorities who will in turn conduct public hearings."

The village and citizens also ask that the federal agency "reveal the extent and amount of public funds expended annually for the past three years" at Pal-Waukee."

A spokesman for the FAA said yesterday that the agency could be expected to issue a policy statement in response to the village and citizen request.

The spokesman explained that weight restrictions on runways printed in the FAA "Airman's Information Manual" are provided by the airport. He also said that printing of flight patterns would be impossible since the tower controller sets the routes of planes on a minute to minute basis.

THE SPOKESMAN also said that notices of changes in operations or facility expansion are sent to aeronautic interests, but said they are not generally sent to the general public. FAA regulations do not require notification of the public, he said.

He said it seemed likely that FAA expenses at the Pal-Waukee tower, would also be made public. On all of his comments, however, the spokesman noted that a final decision on a reply to the village and citizens would be made by the regional director of the FAA.

In supporting their charges that the FAA is supporting its own interests by encouraging larger and heavier aircraft to use Pal-Waukee, Rogers and Watts gave the village statistics to show that "from the first day they (the FAA) took over the operation of the tower there has been a steady erosion of the permit restrictions."

"There is no doubt that the FAA's involvement at Pal-Waukee has provided the impetus and certainly the means for expanding the operations; for the benefit of the FAA, the special interest group, and for the owner, whose annual gross sales are now in excess of $5 million," they said.

Plans For Motel On Royal Coach Site Due Soon

Plans for a major motel, to be constructed on 20 acres of land next to the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows, are expected to be presented to the city council soon.

The land just east of Rte. 53 has been dormant since October when the Royal Coach Motor Inn went bankrupt and stopped construction of a 1,000-room motel. More than $250,000 in improvements have been made to the land as foundations, and sewer work was completed before the company failed.

The Downtowner Motor Lodge Co. absorbed the defunct Royal Coach Motor Inn, in October and unconfirmed reports state that the Downtowner now plans to build a motel on the land.

A representative of the Downtowner offices in Chicago could not confirm the reports of plans for a motel on the site, but said there "had been talk at a recent sales meeting regarding the ownership of the land."

Mayor Roland Meyer, who reportedly has been contacted by the developer, would not release the information this week. He said final details were incomplete. He did say, however, the city council would be contacted within the next few weeks regarding the planned use of the property.

ANOTHER REPORT stated the land would be used for a motel and office building complex. The report stated the motel may be built by the Downtowner chain.

The original proposal for the Royal Coach Motor Inn had a 20-story high-rise to be built in three stages. Estimated cost of the structure was $50 million. Plans for the first stage showed 600 rooms in an elaborate three-story building. The second phase showed an additional 400 rooms and the 20-story high rise was planned for the third stage to be completed in 1974.

Royal Coach officials had obtained rezoning of the property to allow the motel, but Rolling Meadows Building and Zoning Officer Sverre Haug said another rezoning hearing would be needed as the land has been made single-family zoning because of the length of time since the motel rezoning was granted.

Haug said the land "is probably the most valuable piece in the city, with all the improvement made by Royal Coach before they went bankrupt." There has been speculation for some time concerning development of the land, and Haug said more than a dozen Realtors have approached him regarding the property.

Charge Man With Train Theft

A Palatine man was arrested yesterday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and charged with the theft, and later wreck of a Chicago and North Western R.R. train.

Nicki Fanelli, 20, of Palatine was placed under arrest by the agents on the basis of a warrant issued by the U.S. District Court following an indictment handed down yesterday by the federal grand jury.

The train wreck occured when someone took control of a Chicago and North Western engine on March 18 and took it to Lake Geneva, Wis. where the train was found damaged. Chicago and North Western officials later estimated damage to their equipment at $300,000.

FANELLI WAS CHARGED yesterday with violations of federal train wreck statutes and interstate transportatin of stolen property.

According to Charles Bates, special agent in charge of the Chicago bureau of the FBI, Fanelli was arrested yesterday at the U.S. Army induction center in Chicago where he was in the process of enlisting in the Army.

Palatine police said yesterday they presently have a charge of unlawful use of weapons pending against Fanelli. The charge dates back to an incident in October, 1970.

JAMES PALLUCK ponders the intricacies of a vagabond stove, a makeshift cooking tool used by Girl Scouts on camping trips, although he's not quite sure what to do with it. Palluck and Bruce Olson, right, will have to learn fast now that they've become official Girl Scout leaders of troops 808 and 755 in Palatine and Rolling Meadows. Their wives, Sandra and Dorothy, who will be their co-leaders, will give them assistance in their new positions.

Court Ruling May Return Collector

A recent Illinois Supreme Court ruling may mean that Palatine Township residents will have their own township collector again.

More than a year ago the courts declared the collection of excess commissions illegal and said the collectors had no function.

The Illinois Supreme Court last month, however, on an appeal to the case, upheld the decision that excess commissions were illegal but said township collectors could not lose their jobs because of a court ruling.

The former Palatine collector, Albert DePue, appeared at the township board meeting Monday and submitted a tentative budget for the township collection process, alerting the board that it may be necessary to budget funds for collection.

THE COLLECTION process meanwhile has been taken over by Cook County.

DePue made the recommendation to include the collection in the budget on the advice of the Township Collectors Association's legal counsel, according to Howard Olsen, township supervisor.

DePue said at the meeting that there was a strong possibility that the collectors would be back in business at least in time for the second installment on tax bills, September 1.

"Everything is still so nebulous that we accepted the recommendation and directed him to be prepared to submit something more tangible at the July meeting," Olsen said.

The next township meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. July 6 in the township hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd.

Olsen said the board deferred any consideration of the request until that time, when he expected there would be a clearer idea on whether township collectors would actually be allowed to collect taxes.

HE SAID THERE is a question now whether the collectors are only in name or if they can function as such.

Cook County officials contend that the townships can maintain their collectors if they want but that the county will continue to handle the collection process and has no need for their services.

No matter who continues to collect the taxes, the collection of excess commissions is permanently ended effective December 1 through the new Illinois Constitutuion.

Iowa Man Arrested At Holiday Inn

An Iowa man was arrested by the Rolling Meadows police and charged with contributing to the sexual delinquency of a minor after a reported incident at the Holiday Inn in the city.

Charles A. Yoerger was charged after he allegedly offered money to one of the workers at the motel to commit an act of prostitution, according to Police Chief Lewis Case.

He posted a $1,000 bond and a July 27 court date has been set.

They're The Ugliest Girl Scouts In Town

by MARGE FERROLI

They're the two ugliest Girl Scouts in town, and they're the first to admit it.

Big and burly James Palluck of Rolling Meadows and Bruce Olson of Palatine, both husbands and fathers, two weeks ago decided to jump into the totally female world of green and yellow scouting.

In September, they'll become officially certified leaders of Junior Girl Scout Troops 808 and 755, the first male leaders of 9, 10 and 11-year-old girl scouts in Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

Assistance in running the combined troops of some 55 girls will be provided by their wives, who have had experience as Brownie leaders for the past few years.

FRUSTRATION, MIXED with a little anger, moved the men to volunteer their services to scouting.

"Fifty-five mothers, and none of them wanted to volunteer to fill the empty leader positions of the two troops," Palluck said. Faced with the possibility of finding the two troops disbanded because of a lack of leaders, he and Olson decided to do the job themselves.

"We heard our wives complain about how inactive many of the troops were in town, and how hard it was to get volunteers," Olson said. They think their move might provide the necessary shot in the arm for more adults to participate in scouting.

The Pallucks have two daughters in scouting and the Olsons have one. By setting an example, they think they can prove to other parents that scouting can and should involve an entire family.

"We're not just going to have the usual committee mothers this year, we're going to have committee fathers, too," Palluck said. Expertise of more people, both men and women, will be used in the coming activities for their troops.

Already interest in local scouting seems to have picked up once the word about the two male leaders began to spread. "Many people have been calling us, offering their help now that they know the men have taken over the troops," Mrs. Olson said.

ALTHOUGH THE men will come in handy during cookouts and camping trips, especially when tents need to be pitched, they are faced with a definite problem when it comes to uniforms.

"At first we were thinking of something soft and lacy," Palluck, a Rolling Meadows fireman, said. Then the men gave serious thought to using some of their own uniforms, which include an old explorer's outfit, Olson's civil defense and Palluck's fireman's uniform and outgrown Air Force khakis.

They've got the rest of the summer to come up with a more feasible uniform, although they already have official Girl Scout pins which they plan to wear.

"I still opt for green underwear," Mrs. Olson told her husband, but he didn't seem sold on her idea.

The new leaders have taken some good-natured teasing about their scouting positions, and say most people, after getting over the initial shock, think it's great. The girls are also excited about their upcoming experience in scouting.

Even if some people still have doubts about their scouting abilities, the men don't.

"I don't know about the girls, but I can't wait to start," Palluck said.

Beer Drinking At Younger Age?

by MARGE FERROLI

People seem to be looking at the issue of 18-year-old drinking more realistically, especially the state legislature.

A measure introduced in the House of Representatives this week to permit the drinking of beer in Illinois for minors 18 and up was passed by a margin of 98 to 32 Many legislators, including the bill's sponsor, Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, felt that since youths are going to drink beer anyway, the state might as well make it legal.

Most of the people contacted by the Herald were of the same opinion, although many gave negative feelings about drinking in general.

"I'm all for it," said the 18 year old son of the Robert Savages, 4503 Peacock Ln., Rolling Meadows. "Most of my friends would be for it, too." He said he would probably drink beer when he could even if the age remains at 21.

"My parents and I talked about this the other night and they agreed the law should be changed. Drinking is a better alternative than drugs."

Another youth, who falls into the 18 to 21 category, said she would not find much use for the changing of the law. "I'm not hung up on the fact that it's unfair that everyone can't drink when they want to," said the daughter of the Richard Bianchis, 249 Plum Grove Rd., Palatine. "I can wait till I'm 21."

ALTHOUGH SHE is not quite 18, another youth said she was in favor of lowering the beer drinking age because "drinking could be better controlled if it's legal."

The daughter of the Loren Millers, 139 Forest Dr., Palatine, also said beer drinking would "give kids a chance not to get on drugs. There are just as many kids that can handle small amounts of beer as adults."

A Wisconsin resident, who comes from a state where drinking is legal at 18 in some counties said lowering the age in Illinois would be a good idea. Mrs. Barbara Walker, who was visiting the J. G. Walkers of Rolling Meadows, said she found "most kids know how to handle beer." She also said 18 year olds would probably be "more comfortable" if they were legally permitted to drink.

Parents generally agreed lowering the age would be good, but only to prevent a more serious conditions among youths.

"If it would help to stop the use of dope, then I'm for it," Mrs. Henry Meister, 3617 S. Falcon Ct., Rolling Meadows, said. "I seriously doubt whether it would help the drug problem, but it's worth a try."

MRS. ROGER COOK, 2906 Oriole, Rolling Meadows, also favored the legislation, because" if kids are old enough to serve their country, they're old enough to drink." However, she said she didn't think 18 to 21 year olds were mature enough to handle beer.

One Palatine resident didn't think the way to solve the underage drinking problem was to legalize it for them. "I don't think boys and girls at 18 should have the opportunity to obtain beer so easily," Mrs. Reginald Simeon Jr., 53 N. Ashland Ave., said. "I'm sure many of them do drink, but it shouldn't be made easier for them."

Warns Of Tax Loss Caused By Apartment

by STEVE NOVICK

More than $1 million in loss of property value would be suffered by property owners surrounding 78 acres of land at Hoffman Estates' north end if 1,372 apartments are allowed to be built there, Village Atty. Edward Hofert said yesterday in final argument of the zoning suit before the Cook County Circuit Court.

Attorney Robert Haskins, representing owners of the 78 acres, replied that most property owners in the area were aware of a business zoning classification applicable to the land since the mid-1960s. The knowledge did not deter the owners from making improvements on their land, Haskins said.

The two attorneys argued before Judge Herbert A. Ellis in the suit where owners of the 78 acres, located between Palatine and Bradwell roads, are asking that the single family zoning assigned to the land by the Hoffman Estates village board be declared invalid by the court.

HOFERT'S other points against the apartments ere:

—Water system in the area is inadequate to supply the 28 four story buildings proposed.

—$500,000 in fire fighting equipment would be needed along with professional firemen, neither of which are available to the area.

—The character of the surrounding area is entirely single-family, except for a parcel directly east of the land in question and a five unit per acre density is applicable to the property on the east, not 18 units per acre as proposed for the 78 acres in question.

Hofert said $511,000 was paid for the 78 acres and that the property can be developed at a profit under the single-family classification applicable. To grant multiple-family would serve the owners (including Chicago Aldermen Thomas Keane and Paul Wigoda) but would be costly to neighbors.

HASKINS said the question of water supply and fire protection are in the hands of village officials because no building permits would be issued until the problems are solved.

A 13-unit-per-acre density applies to the property east of his clients' 78 acres setting the character of the area for multiple development, he added.

Hofert also contended that the development of 1,300 plus apartments on the site would create a traffic problem, contrary to expert testimony given by Leo Wilke.

Haskins answered that the village should have brought its own expert in and that Hofert shouldn't refute what Wilke said from conjecture.

Judge Ellis said he would give his decision on June 21 at 10 a.m. in his Civic Center courtroom in Chicago.

Presentation of the 1970-71 Bridge Derby Awards will be presented after the banquet and all regular players and substitutes for the year will enjoy an evening of bridge.

IF YOU AND YOUR family enjoy Sunday rides in the country, here's an idea for next Sunday's drive. On Route 22, about one-half mile west of Rte 83, you will see a winding road that leads to a white barn trimmed with willow blue, and silos surrounded by weeping willow trees and a duck pond. This is Willow Brook Farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Jon Henricks, owners of Willow Brook, have converted the barn into studios to conduct classes in arts and crafts.

The new name for Willow Brook farm is now Willow Brook Art Center which is now beginning its fourth year of instruction in arts and crafts.

Courses in painting, ceramics, stitchery, papier mache, de coupage, metal and dried flowers, macrame and paper tole are among the many courses taught by skilled instructors.

AN OPEN HOUSE is being held Sunday for the public to view the talents of the instructors. The Open House will be held from 2-5 p.m. when anyone who is interested in learning any of these crafts may enroll in the classes, which are scheduled to begin Monday, June 21.

Cost for the classes is about $2 per instructional hour and the classes are about two hours once a week, running anywhere from three to six weeks.

There is also a children's craft class and for the mothers who are enrolled in the classes, a baby-sitting service is provided.

Take that Sunday ride to Willow Brook Art Center and enjoy a pleasant afternoon viewing the exhibits and perhaps you'll even enroll in a class.

For those of you who may not have the opportunity to drive out to the center, you may call Mrs. Bonnie Henricks, Willow Brook Art Center Director at NE 4-3738.

A Crazy Hat Fashion Show was held recently by the Busy Bee Group of the Bluebirds. The six and seven year old girls fashioned hats from paper plates signifying all the things Mother does for them.

The fashion show was held at 2403 Sigwalt St., home of their leader, Mrs. Carolyn Rahn.

Mrs. Rahn and her assistant leader, Becky Graham culminated the year's activities with a barbecue picnic and a songfest this past week.

SORRY 'BOUT DAT!! In Wednesday's column, I mentioned the winners of the floats in the Memorial Day Parade, saying the Camp Fire Girls' float carried a world globe.

There were two floats carrying world globes. The award-winning float's theme was "We Gave For Peace." Their world globe with a white dove was made from a mound of poppies and was titled, "A Mound of Men Died Around the World For Peace."

Don't forget to take the kiddies to the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce carnival this weekend. The carnival will be open from 11 a.m. until 11 p.m. each evening except Sunday, when it will close at 9 p.m.

Cotton candy and hot dogs will be available and many rides will be enjoyed by the family.

Lake Water Plan Stalled

by ROGER CAPETTINI

An apparent communications problem may be hampering the efforts of Northwest suburban communities to divert water from Lake Michigan.

Despite estimates that the useful life of local wells is about 10 years, the Des Plaines- Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect-Palatine (DAMP) water commission and the Illinois Division of Waterways are waiting for the other to make the next move.

The four-town commission has asked the staete for an allocation to permit the towns to divert 25.9 cubic feet per second of water from the lake.

DAMP, which plans to build water intake, transmission and filtration facilities, has been told by the state that it will get a share of the 3,200 cubic feet per second from the lake set aside for Illinois by a 1967 U.S. Supreme Court decision.

LAST SPRING, John C. Guillou, chief engineer, for the state agency, told DAMP it would get its fair share when the allocations were made in the fall. The official allocations were not posted, however, and according to DAMP commissioners, were delayed by Guillou until this spring.

DAMP officials say the commission cannot proceed with plans to build the pipeline to bring the water to the suburbs until the state makes a move.

DAMP chairman Robert F. Teepe of Mount Prospect, said yesterday that the commission cannot begin to sell bonds or start construction until it gets the allocation. "We need more than a verbal assurance," he said.

Contacted in Springfield Monday, Guillou said the state cannot make the allocation until the commission reaches a firm decision on its water needs. "They don't know the precise amount they need," he said. "We are reluctant to make an allocation and then have them not use it for a couple of years. Once it's allocated, no one else can use the water," he explained.

"WE'RE READY TO make the allocation whenever they wish to have it," Guillou added. "Once they really have to have an allocation, they can have it. There's no holdup here at all," he said.

Teepe said, "There seems to be a difference of opinion in his office. They said they would be posting the preliminary allocations in the spring, and now some of his people say it may be two years before any allocations are made."

The DAMP chairman continued, "Some of his people have said recently that they don't even know how much water they have to allocate."

TEEPE SAID he cannot understand any question arising over the need of the commission. "Our report to the state lays out the requirements of DAMP over a period of years."

He said the possibility of DAMP joining with the Elmhurst-Villa Park-Lombard (Tree Towns) water commission to bring the water to the respective areas should not have an effect on the posting of the allocations, because the total amounts needed by both commissions wil remain the same.

Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine now obtain their water supplies solely from municipal wells. Well life in the three suburbs has been estimated to anywhere from 11 to 15 years, if water usage continues to grow.

Des Plaines, which now buys about two thirds of its water from the City of Chicago, has indicated that it wants to remain part of DAMP and be included in the feasibility studies. Des Plaines' contract with Chicago expires in 1974.

Racing To Go On As Usual

by BARRY SIGALE

It will be racing as usual today at Arlington Park Race Track.

About 50 owners entered their race horses last night after threatening to boycott today's races in a dispute over the use of medication on horses.

The owners were persuaded to enter today's card by Edward "Ned" Bonnie, the Louisville attorney who has represented the men in the dispute. Bonnie told them they would lose any gains they have made on the issue, which has been the subject of several hearings before the Illinois Racing Board.

Jack Loome, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE), owners of Arlington and Washington parks, said injunction proceedings initiated before a judge in Chicago Thursday morning to prevent such a boycott, would be dropped today.

"We're the third party in this situation," Loome said shortly before the owners decided to enter tomorrow's races. "The strike is not against us. We're fighting something we didn't start."

The 7 p.m. filing time was about 10 hours later than usual. Nine races make up a full card. The first race begins at 2 p.m. and the last race at about 5:45.

The controversy concerns the use of drugs as pain killers which are administered to the horses before races. The principal drug under concern is Butazolidin, better known among horsemen as "Bute." The majority of horse owners at Arlington Park want controlled medication.

As one owner put it:

"A horse can run if he has no pain. If the horse has pain, he can't run. It's as simple as that. The drugs make him (the horse) faster no matter how you look at it."

Bonnie told the owners that they had better not boycott the track today because of some of the gains they have made for the use of controlled medication.

"All I can tell you," he told the owners who were gathered around the track office where horses are entered, "is that a boycott of tomorrow's races would hurt your chances. We're already hurt (because of the threat of a boycott). We're now in deep center field when we were running in from third base yesterday.

"I can't promise you anything but I am going to work on the problem. MacArthur (Alexander MacArthur, chairman of the Illinois Racing Board) told me he can't make me any promises. I'll try to get the job done.

"If you don't get back in there and enter I might as well go back to Louisville."

Bonnie is the same attorney who went to court several years ago when Dancer's Image, a Kentucky Derby winner, was disqualified because it was determined that medication was used on the horse.

A ruling in favor of the horse was made a couple of years later and he was declared the official winner.

Court To Allow Disannex

The lifting of a Circuit Court restraining order Wednesday will permit the Arlington Heights Village Board to disannex a tract of land so it can be annexed to Palatine.

The land in question is a tract just west of Rte. 53, north of Palatine Road and east of Wilke Road.

Attorneys for the owner of the property, Karl Reinke, obtained a restraining order Monday to prohibit any action by the Arlington Heights Village Board at its meeting that night. The board was scheduled to vote on a disannexation ordinance.

The board delayed action pending a circuit court hearing Wednesday. After the hearing, the restraining order was lifted, according to Jack Siegel, village attorney for Arlington Heights. The attorney said this will allow the village to pass the disannexation ordinance.

Park Signups Monday

Registration for a variety of summer programs at Salt Creek Rural Park District will be held Monday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

It will be held at the district office, 530 W. Williams for swimming, preschool and the recreational program.

Special Program

James Haemker of Palatine was one of two students at Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, who is participating in the Washington Semester program at American University this spring.

In this special program, he is studying political science through actual experience in Washington, D.C.

Summer School To Begin

Summer school in High School Dist. 211 will begin Wednesday, June 16, at two of the district's four high schools.

Students attending class at Palatine High School will report at 7:30 a.m. At James B. Conant High School in Hoffman Estates, summer school classes will begin at 8 a.m.

"It is very important parents know when school begins so confusion can be avoided," Charles Mueller, summer school director said. Mueller emphasized that no reminder notices for those who have registered will be sent out.

In addition to regular classes at Palatine and Conant, phsyical education and special education classes will be offered at William Fremd and Schaumburg high schools.

Summer school classes will end July 30.

Students can register this week for summer school in their high school guidance office. New students should register at the school they plan to attend next fall. Additional information is available at the Dist. 211 Administration Center, 750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

City Council Supports House Trailer Bill

The Rolling Meadows City Council has passed a resolution supporting House Bill 1564 which allows local authorities to license, regulate and locate house trailers within municipalities.

The bill has passed the Illinois House of Representatives but according to Ald. Frederick Jacobson, chairman of the city ordinance and judiciary committee, the bill "is in trouble in the senate."

The resolution urges Senator Jack A. Graham to support the bill when it comes to a vote calling it "in the best interests of municipalities in Illinois."

Carnival Coming To South Point Shopping Center

The Prospect Heights Carnival is coming to town.

Rides, games and concession booths will be set up at the South Point Shopping Center at Wolf and Camp McDonald roads in Wheeling next week. The carnival will run for four days, beginning next Thursday.

The Prospect Heights Jaycees are operating the carnival. In the past the carnival has been the joint project of the Jaycees, the Women's Club and the Prospect Heights Improvement Association.

"We will have three more rides than last year and double the number of booths," said Tony Haske, one of the project chairmen.

The carnival will be open from 7 to 11 p.m. Thursday; 7 to 11 p.m. Friday; and 1 to 10 p.m. Saturday, and 2 to 10 p.m. Sunday. Haske urged all of the fathers to spend a day at the carnival with their sons on Father's Day.

Rides at the carnival include a kiddie ride, merry-go-round, ferris wheel, "twister," "tilt-a-whirl," "round-up," "hustler" and "flying coaster." There will also be 10 game and refreshment booths at the carnival.

The McDermott Music Co. will operate the rides and the game booths. Tickets will be sold by members of the Prospect Heights Women's Club, who will get a share of the profits. The Prospect Heights Jaycees Wives will operate the food booths.

THE JAYCEES CHANGED the location and date of the carnival this year in a hope of earning a higher profit, said Haske. Last year the carnival profit totaled $1,000, and was divided among the three sponsors. This year the Jaycees hope to earn at least $3,000.

"We changed the location of the carnival to a more central spot, so that it will be accessible to both the 'new town' and 'old town' areas of the community, said Haske.

In addition, unlike earlier years, the Jaycees decided to not wait until the July Fourth holiday to hold the carnival. "We discovered last year that the carnival had too much competition with other holiday activities on the Fourth," said Haske.

The Jaycees have spent the past few months preparing for the carnival. "We are tying up the loose ends now and making arrangements for insurance and business licenses," said Haske. His cochairmen are Roger Hoffman and John Sieger.

"We're the third party in this situation," Loome said shortly before the owners decided to enter tomorrow's races. "The strike is not against us. We're fighting something we didn't start."

The 7 p.m. filing time was about 10 hours later than usual. Nine races make up a full card. The first race begins at 2 p.m. and the last race at about 5:45.

The controversy concerns the use of drugs as pain killers which are administered to the horses before races. The principal drug under concern is Butazolidin, better known among horsemen as "Bute." The majority of horse owners at Arlington Park want controlled medication.

As one owner put it:

"A horse can run if he has no pain. If the horse has pain, he can't run. It's as simple as that. The drugs make him (the horse) faster no matter how you look at it."

Bonnie told the owners that they had better not boycott the track today because of some of the gains they have made for the use of controlled medication.

"All I can tell you," he told the owners who were gathered around the track office where horses are entered, "is that a boycott of tomorrow's races would hurt your chances. We're already hurt (because of the threat of a boycott). We're now in deep center field when we were running in from third base yesterday.

"I can't promise you anything but I am going to work on the problem. MacArthur (Alexander MacArthur, chairman of the Illinois Racing Board) told me he can't make me any promises. I'll try to get the job done.

"If you don't get back in there and enter I might as well go back to Louisville."

Bonnie is the same attorney who went to court several years ago when Dancer's Image, a Kentucky Derby winner, was disqualified because it was determined that medication was used on the horse.

A ruling in favor of the horse was made a couple of years later and he was declared the official winner.

Blomquist To Be Ordained

Alan Blomquist will be ordained a minister Sunday at South Community Baptist Church in Mount Prospect.

Blomquist is the first youth from South Church to enter the ministry. He is a 1963 graduate of Prospect High School.

The ordination ceremony will begin at 11 a.m. at the church, 501 S. Emerson St. The ordination sermon will be delivered by David Worthen, a seminary classmate of Blomquist. The Rev. Alfred Diman will represent the Chicago Baptist Association and give the ordaining prayer.

South Church members participating in the ceremony will be James French, chairman of the board of deacons; William Powell, moderator; the Rev. Edwin I. Stevens and the Rev. Paul Sandin.

Blomquist received his Master of Divinity degree with honors from McCormick Theological Seminary and his Master of Social Work degree from Loyola University this month. He was graduated from Prospect High School in 1963.

He and his wife Peggy and children, Rebecca and Christopher, will live in Chicago where Blomquist will work as a social worker for the state for the next two years.

THEY'RE A TRIO — The Kramer sisters, with Margaret Kramer, a teacher at John Hersey High School on the right (or is it on the left? Or center?), had a get-together this week at her home in Arlington Heights. The sisters, all married with children, are all age 29, teachers and their lives have followed a very similar line.

What! Are There 3 Mrs. Kramers?

A trio of young women walked through the halls of John Hersey High School Wednesday amid exclamations of "It's three Mrs. Kramers" and "they look like the Lennon Sisters!"

One of the three, Mrs. Margaret Kramer, is a business teacher at the high school. Her two companions were her triplet sisters, Mrs. Marily Burkhardt and Mrs. Mary Davis. They visited Margaret after classes Wednesday in the first of their planned seminannual reunions. Margaret lives at 115 W. Burr Oak, Arlington Heights.

The three sisters, aged 29, have chosen the same career. Margaret's two sisters both teach in Iowa elementary schools.

The women say they are protective of their individuality, yet laughingly point out that their lives have followed a very similar line.

There is no other history of multiple births on the sister's family tree, according to Margaret. The three sisters grew up in Bloomington-Normal area of Illinois somewhat as celebrities.

After graduating from high school, the three sisters worked at the F. S. Services Co., which is affiliated with the Illinois Agriculture Service. When they were 20, the three women married men they met at the company, all within nine months of one another. The three couples had children and then the wives decided to go to college.

The sisters said that being triplets was both an advantage and a disadvantage "We always had a large field for dating and we were cheerleaders together. But people often thought of us as a unit and not as individuals," pointed out one.

If the sisters were to advise mothers who have had multiple births, they would say, "Keep the children's dientity. Treat them differently."

Church To Elect Parish Council

Sixteen representatives for the newly formed parish council at St. Raymond Catholic Church in Mount Prospect will be elected this weekend.

Parishioners will chose council members from a field of 40 candidates. Ballots have been mailed to voters and can be turned in by mail or delivered to the rectory. A box will be set up outside the church, 311 S. I-Oka Ave., Sunday for parishioners to cast their votes.

Two representatives from each of eight geographical districts will be elected to the decision-making council. The candidate with the largest number of votes in each district will serve on the council for two years. The other representative will serve for one year. In addition, the Rev. William Buhrfeind, pastor, one other parish priest and a member of the community of nuns will also serve as the council.

Lake Water Plan Stalled

by ROGER CAPETTINI

An apparent communications problem may be hampering the efforts of Northwest suburban communities to divert water from Lake Michigan.

Despite estimates that the useful life of local wells is about 10 years, the Des Plaines- Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect-Palatine (DAMP) water commission and the Illinois Division of Waterways are waiting for the other to make the next move.

The four-town commission has asked the staete for an allocation to permit the towns to divert 25.9 cubic feet per second of water from the lake.

DAMP, which plans to build water intake, transmission and filtration facilities, has been told by the state that it will get a share of the 3,200 cubic feet per second from the lake set aside for Illinois by a 1967 U.S. Supreme Court decision.

LAST SPRING, John C. Guillou, chief engineer, for the state agency, told DAMP it would get its fair share when the allocations were made in the fall. The official allocations were not posted, however, and according to DAMP commissioners, were delayed by Guillou until this spring.

DAMP officials say the commission cannot proceed with plans to build the pipeline to bring the water to the suburbs until the state makes a move.

DAMP chairman Robert F. Teepe of Mount Prospect, said yesterday that the commission cannot begin to sell bonds or start construction until it gets the allocation. "We need more than a verbal assurance," he said.

Contacted in Springfield Monday, Guillou said the state cannot make the allocation until the commission reaches a firm decision on its water needs. "They don't know the precise amount they need," he said. "We are reluctant to make an allocation and then have them not use it for a couple of years. Once it's allocated, no one else can use the water," he explained.

"WE'RE READY TO make the allocation whenever they wish to have it," Guillou added. "Once they really have to have an allocation, they can have it. There's no holdup here at all," he said.

Teepe said, "There seems to be a difference of opinion in his office. They said they would be posting the preliminary allocations in the spring, and now some of his people say it may be two years before any allocations are made."

The DAMP chairman continued, "Some of his people have said recently that they don't even know how much water they have to allocate."

TEEPE SAID he cannot understand any question arising over the need of the commission. "Our report to the state lays out the requirements of DAMP over a period of years."

He said the possibility of DAMP joining with the Elmhurst-Villa Park-Lombard (Tree Towns) water commission to bring the water to the respective areas should not have an effect on the posting of the allocations, because the total amounts needed by both commissions wil remain the same.

Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine now obtain their water supplies solely from municipal wells. Well life in the three suburbs has been estimated to anywhere from 11 to 15 years, if water usage continues to grow.

Des Plaines, which now buys about two thirds of its water from the City of Chicago, has indicated that it wants to remain part of DAMP and be included in the feasibility studies. Des Plaines' contract with Chicago expires in 1974.

Negotiators Reach Accord On 1971-72 Teacher Contract

Negotiators for Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 48 announced last night that they have reached agreement on a contract for 1971-72 school year.

The contract will be presented sometime today to the general membership of the Teachers Council, which includes most of the 523 teachers in Dist. 59, Tom Dresser, head of the Council negotiation team, said.

Al Waltman, assistant superintendent of personnel and head of the negotiating team for the board of education, said a special board meeting will probably be called "as soon as possible" to ratify the contract.

Dresser and Waltman said they would with hold details of the agreement, which includes a salary schedule for teachers for the coming year, until the agreement is presented to the teachers and the board.

With the agreement, Dist. 59 becomes the first elementary district in the area to reach an agreement with its teachers.

High School Dist 211, which includes Palatine and Schaumburg townships, announced a contract settlement two weeks ago which included a 3.75 per cent raise in teachers' salaries.

Base pay for a beginning teacher in Dist. 59 is now $7,600. Negotiations for the 1971-72 contract began in February, immediately after a settlement was reached in this year's contract.

Negotiations on this year's contract broke down last fall in a dispute between the teachers and the board over class size in the district.

Both teachers and the board charged each other with bad faith and the Teachers Council staged a one-day strike in February.

Agreement on the contract was reached following the strike. Included in that contract was a no-strike clause which is set to expire with the 1970-71 contract on June 24.

The tax rate referendum being held tomorrow by Dist. 59 contains no extra money for teachers' salaries and will not affect the settlement, district officials have said. Last month the Teachers Council officially endorsed the referendum.

Claims School Tax Increase Unneeded

Dear Sir:

School Dist. 59 is asking for a tax increase at an election Saturday. We believe they don't need nor deserve it. For years Dist. 59 has exceeded all neighboring districts in per pupil costs. They have chosen to ignore all warnings about rising costs and taxpayer resentment about paying them. Every year their costs increase well beyond the cost of living Seventy one per cent of our tax bill goes for schools.

In our district the tax had risen over 10 per cent a year the last two years. Ten years of 10 per cent increases turns an $800 tax into a $2.072 tax. This has happened without passing a referendum. Where will it end if they give us a tax increase every year as the superintendent and board have said they will try to do"

If you read the detailed budget, you'll see education has become big business. The budget has more compartments than a beehive. The largest category is for salaries for the administrators and teachers. The average teacher makes $10.000 a year in this district, for fewer hours and fewer months than most of us work Other salaries range up to $32,000. Perhaps this is why the Teachers Association is conducting a telephone campaign to get out their partisan vote and has officially endorsed the tax increase.

There are 528 teachers, enough for a class size of only 20 pupils if evenly distributed They are supplemented by 234 non-certified employes full time, and many more part time and volunteers. Since 81 per cent of the education budget is for teacher's salaries they are expanding the costliest budget item in pushing for higher salaries, shorter hours, and smaller classes.

The Coleman report (largest and most authoritative yet) shows statistically that more money and small classes do not help student achievement. District 59's own records show their poor achievement compared to the large efficient classes in the parochial school which are at the other extreme in size and cost from theirs. Doesn't an expenditure of $31,000 per classroom of 28 students sound a little expensive for a grammar school? That's the figure you get by dividing their entire budget by the number of students. It is obvious that this system is running more for the welfare of the professionals than of the students if that group has high pay, short hours, and the students don't get as good an education as do those in poorer systems.

The district bases its tax need on the Dahl decision regarding corporate property taxes. Other districts have taken the advice that this loss of tax money is not permanent. The legislature is sure to deal with the problem if the courts don't. Your tax increase from this referendum will be permanent, so District 59 would then get a double boost, and be able to continue as the biggest spending district around.

Vote "no" Saturday, June 12, between noon and 7 p.m.

Better be there, the professionals will be.

FBI Charges Man With Train Theft

A Palatine man was arrested yesterday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and charged with the theft, and later wreck of a Chicago and North Western R.R. train

Nicki Fanelli, 20, of Palatine was placed under arrest by the agents on the basis of a warrant issued by the U.S. District Court following an indictment handed down yesterday by the federal grand jury.

The train wreck occured when someone took control of a Chicago and North Western engine on March 18 and took it to Lake Geneva, Wis. where the train was found damaged. Chicago and North Western officials later estimated damage to their equipment at $300,000.

FANELLI WAS CHARGED yesterday with violations of federal train wreck statutes and interstate transportatin of stolen property.

According to Charles Bates, special agent in charge of the Chicago bureau of the FBI. Fanelli was arrested yesterday at the U.S. Army induction center in Chicago where he was in the process of enlisting in the Army.

Palatine police said yesterday they presently have a charge of unlawful use of weapons pending against Fanelli. The charge dates back to an incident in October, 1970

Urges Casting Of 'Yes' Votes In Referendum

I have just received and read a flyer drom a disappointed candidate for the Dist. 59 School Board (1970).

Rejected by the voters, this man has appointed himself to decide what is fiscally prudent for the school district and what is educationally wise for my children. His own children, I understand, have not attended Dist. 59 schools in recent years. This means he has a personal interest only in denying other people's children the opportunities his own must have had if they attended our schools prior to the forced economies of the past two or three years.

I resent the blatant effort of this man to exercise power without responsibility.

I took the trouble to investigate the facts which are alleged in the flyer attributed to Mr. Roeser. Some of them are accurate, some are misleading and some are outright misrepresentation.

The people wisely rejected this man's leadership once at the polls. I urge them to do the same again. I intend to vote "yes" for District 59's financial health and the educational welfare of my children.

Police Hunt Kansas Man

Mount Prospect police are looking for a 30-year-old Kansas man involved in an accident June 3 that injured a 16-year-old Mount Prospect youth.

A warrant is out for the arrest of the driver of the car that struck a motorcycle driven by Sam Skobel Jr. of 610 S. William St., on Prospect Avenue in Mount Prospect. Skobel is in good condition at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines with a leg injury.

Police said the driver apparently was turning left into the driveway at 401 E. Prospect Ave. when he struck the motorcycle. Skobel said the man then got out of the car and asked Skobel if he was hurt. According to Skobel the man then said he had to meet his brother, and left the scene of the accident.

Police traced the car described by Skobel and witnesses, and found, according to police, the car had been borrowed.

Mount Prospect Police Chief Newell Esmond said the driver will be charged with leaving the scene of the accident if apprehended.

Mass Flurry Of Activity For Referendum Tomorrow

by WANDALYN RICE

All flurry of activity for and against the referendum being held tomorrow by Elk Grove Township Elementary School Dist. 59 is bringing the campaign to an end.

Polls will be open from noon until 7 p.m. at ten polling places. Voters will decide the fate of two proposals which would, if passed, increase the district's tax rate by 27 cents per $100 of assessed value — 21 cents will be in the education fund and six cents in the building fund.

Letters from the board of education to parents in the district are now in the mail urging them to vote "yes" and flyers urging defeat of the tax increases are being distributed throughout the township by Jack Roeser, head of the Concerned Taxpayers of Elk Grove Township, and his supporters.

The flyers, which charge the district with overspending and poor quality of education, appeared in Elk Grove Village on Wednesday.

Many of the budget figures in the flyer are either inaccurate or drawn from past budgets and not the budget for the current year, district officials have said.

Roeser said yesterday the campaign against the referendum is going "beautifully. We think we'll have the flyers delivered to about 9,000 homes."

Roeser said many individuals have called and offered their help and added, "We've got the muscle to get this thing through. We are finally getting to the point of a real taxpayers' revolt — a lot of people are really upset."

One of the causes of voter anger, he said, is the property tax bills which have been arriving at area homes this week. The long-delayed bills show hefty increases in many cases.

Ironically, Dist. 59 officials point out the increases are not due mainly to increases in the district's taxes, but are due to application of the state equalization factor and increased tax rates by other taxing bodies.

Dist. 59 public relations director Leah Cummins pointed out this week that for the first time in memory the tax rate for High School Dist. 214 exceeds the tax rate for the elementary district by several cents.

BETWEEN THEM, the two school districts account for more than 70 per cent of the property tax bill.

Dist. 59's tax rate increased by four cents this year, mainly due to an increase in the bonded interest fund, Supt. James Erviti said.

"I'm sure many people are saying it is because of the junior high referendum," he said, "but actually the increase is paying the schedule of bonds for schools built years ago."

In April voters approved a bond issue to build a fifth junior high school in Des Plaines. The $2.3 million in bonds for the building have not yet been sold.

Saturday's referendum is the first tax rate referendum since the district lost one in 1969. The vote that year on the education fund, the major tax fund of the district out of which teachers are paid and instructional programs are financed, was 2,246 "yes" and 2,441"no."

The rate increase would have passed except for one precinct, voting at High Ridge Knolls School in Des Plaines, which turned the measure down by more than a two to one margin.

DIST. 59 SCHOOLS

Arlington Heights: Juliette Low.

Des Plaines: Brentwood, Devonshire, Albert Einstein and High Ridge Knolls.

Elk Grove Village: Adm. Richard E. Byrd, Clearmont, Daniel Cook, Grove, Mark Hopkins, Lively, Ridge, Rupley, Salt Creek and Grant Wood.

Mount Prospect: Dempster, Forest View, Robert Frost, Holmes and John Jay.

SINCE THAT referendum, the district has added another precinct by dividing the Knolls precinct almost in half. For this referendum voters who were in the Knolls precinct in 1969 will vote at Knolls and at Albert Einstein School.

Before the defeat of the 1969 referendum, district officials indicated they would have to cut the budget for the 1970-71 school year.

After the referendum, the district cut more than $200,000, mainly in administrative and clerical salaries. In addition, the district's assessed value came in higher than anticipated and enrollment increases were lower than projected. Because of these things, Erviti has explained, the cuts were smaller than they might have been otherwise.

Erviti, who has been superintendent since July, 1970, recommended in September that the district hold a referendum to increase the tax rate this spring.

The idea was scrapped, however, and the district planned to get through the 1971-72 school year without a tax increase by having a "hold-the-line" budget and by increasing the district's borrowing position to the legal limit, Erviti said.

SATURDAY'S referendum became necessary following a Circuit Court ruling by Judge Walter Dahl which said corporate personal property tax is unconstitutional, he said.

Dist. 59 is harder hit by the ruling because it has no more borrowing power left and because of the large number of corporations which pay the tax in thee Centex Industrial Park and other industrial areas of the township.

Legal advice given the district has been that they will not be able to borrow against corporate personal property tax money for the coming year, Erviti said. A decision on the Dahl ruling is expected from the Illinois Supreme Court in July but the district's attorney expects the case to be taken to the U. S. Supreme Court, further delaying the available money, he added.

If a final decision on the Dahl case is not made or if it is upheld, the district will have to cut its 1971-72 operating budget by eight per cent, or by more than $600,000 Erviti said.

If, on the other hand, the referendum passes and the Dahl Decision is overturned. District officials have promised that the increased tax rate will not be levied for the 1971-72 budget year.

Try Again For Pact Accord

Members of the Dist. 57 school board and teacher bargaining teams will make another attempt Monday night to reach a 1971-72 contract agreement.

Board negotiators will bring a counter-proposal to the bargaining table at 7:30 p.m. behind closed doors at Lincoln Junior High School. The counter-proposal is in response to a second teacher proposal made Wednesday night by David Metzler, chairman of the Mount Prospect Education Association (MPEA).

The new MPEA proposal requests a six per cent salary increase plus the yearly raise included in the current salary schedule, reinstatement of personal leave, and more hospitalization insurance benefits. The MPEA is asking the district to pay the full 12-month cost for hospital and major medical insurance for teachers and their dependents. Currently the district pays the full cost for teachers and $90 toward the annual cost of dependents' coverage.

"THE MPEA IS offering a reduction to their earlier proposal, but they are still asking for a hefty amount," said Richard Zwieback, the school board's professional negotiator. The original MPEA proposal, made last February, had requested a 10 per cent increase plus the yearly salary raise. "But, totally, they are still talking about a 12 to 13 per cent increase," Zwieback said.

Zwieback said the average current yearly salary increase amounts to $380 per teacher. He said the additional 6 per cent requested by the MPEA means a minimum increase of $450 per teacher. "The requested increases could mean up to about $40,000 to the district," he said.

DIST. 57 SCHOOLS

Mount Prospect: Busse, Fairview, Gregory, Lincoln, Lions Park, Sunset Park and Westbrook.

Zwieback would not say what the board's counter-proposal would be, but said it will be "a reaction to the teacher's verbal proposal." The board's original proposal, presented in April, offers the current salary schedule and asks for the abolition of personal leave which allows teachers days off without having to give reason.

Metzler said the teachers are ready to reach an agreement as soon as possible. "If we wait until September it may cost the board more money if we find that our teachers will be lower on the salary scale than those in surrounding districts," Metzler said.

He said if the board comes up with its original proposal as a counter-proposal, he will ask for an impasse in negotiations. According to the procedural agreement between the board and the MPEA, an impasse could mean both sides would call in a mediator to help settle the agreement.

Court Delays Decision On Incorporation

Once again a decision from the Cook County Circuit Court on a proposal to incorporate the City of Prospect Heights has been postponed.

Wednesday the court continued a hearing to review objections to the incorporation proposal from June 15 to June 29. This is the third continuance since March.

The hearing on the objections was continued after Judge Harry Comerford failed to appear Wednesday for another hearing. This hearing was called to review a mbotion to strike one of the objections to the incorporation proposal. Attorney Donald Kreger, representing the Prospect Heights group, submitted the motion to the court. The hearing on the motion is continued to Tuesday.

The hearing on the objections, scheduled for June 29, may be continued a fourth time if any party appeals a ruling made at the first hearing.

At the first hearing Kreger will ask the court to strike all objections that contend Prospect Heights may not incorporate as a city without the consent of Mount Prospect, Wheeling, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights. The consent question is the main point of contention in the case. Because of a contradiction in state statutes it is not certain whether the objection of a neighboring municipality will block the incorporation. A portion of the statutes indicates that the petitioners must secure the consent of all municipalities within one mile of the proposed city boundaries.

Two of the villages concerned have filed objections to the incorporation proposal. They are Wheeling and Arlington Heights. Seven other objections, have also been filed by the River Trails Park District and private landowners.

"If the judge says we don't need the consent then the other objections will be considered at the second hearing," said Kreger. "If the judge doesn't rule in our favor then there is no point to holding a full hearing."

Other objections deal with questions of contiguity and population and area requirements.

Buses Leave For Virginia Beach Today

A convoy of buses will leave the Northwest suburbs tonight carrying almost 500 band members from two high schools to Virginia Beach, Va. to participate in a national band competition.

The bands participating is the competition are from Hersey and Wheeling high schools. The 190-piece Hersey marching band and the 174-piece Wheeling marching band will compete against 25 other bands from throughout the country in three days of competition sponsored by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce.

The band students have spent up to six hours a day during the past weeks rehearsing for the competition. They will be accompanied on the trip by parents, administrators, and teachers. The bands and chaperones will arrive in Virginia Beach late tomorrow.

SUNDAY, THE Wheeling group will tour the Norfolk, Va. naval base, while the Hersey band puts in an extra rehearsal. Both bands will devote Monday morning and afternoon to practice sessions.

The band competition is divided into four categories, Monday evening the bands will compete in the first two categories, a full military inspection and a march.

Tuesday the bands will be judged on their concert performances and Wednesday on their half-time show presentations.

Each of the four categories count toward a total score. The band with the highest cumulative total of points at the end of the competition is awarded the Grand Prize trophy plus a cash award of $1,200. In addition, the winner is invited back to Virginia Beach the following year as the Honor Band.

Trophies are also given to second and third place winners plus a special award to the outstanding drum major and outstanding drum majorette. The trophies will be presented at a final awards ceremony on Thursday.

FRIDAY THE BANDS will leave for Illinois, returning Saturday. The Hersey Instrumental Association, comprised of the band students' parents, raised $35,000 for the trip. The Wheeling organization provided $18,000 for transportation and lodging.

Racing As Usual At Track

by BARRY SIGALE

It will be racing as usual today at Arlington Park Race Track.

About 50 owners entered their race horses last night after threatening to boycott today's races in a dispute over the use of medication on horses.

The owners were persuaded to enter today's card by Edward "Ned" Bonnie, the Louisville attorney who has represented the men in the dispute. Bonnie told them they would lose any gains they have made on the issue, which has been the subject of several hearings before the Illinois Racing Board.

Jack Loome, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE), owners of Arlington and Washington parks, said injunction proceedings initiated before a judge in Chicago Thursday morning to prevent such a boycott, would be dropped today.

"We're the third party in this situation," Loome said shortly before the owners decided to enter tomorrow's races. "The strike is not against us. We're fighting something we didn't start."

The 7 p.m. filing time was about 10 hours later than usual. Nine races make up a full card. The first race begins at 2 p.m. and the last race at about 5:45.

The controversy concerns the use of drugs as pain killers which are administered to the horses before races. The principal drug under concern is Butazolidin, better known among horsemen as "Bute." The majority of horse owners at Arlington Park want controlled medication.

As one owner put it:

"A horse can run if he has no pain. If the horse has pain, he can't run. It's as simple as that. The drugs make him (the horse) faster no matter how you look at it."

Bonnie told the owners that they had better not boycott the track today because of some of the gains they have made for the use of controlled medication.

"All I can tell you," he told the owners who were gathered around the track office where horses are entered, "is that a boycott of tomorrow's races would hurt your chances. We're already hurt (because of the threat of a boycott). We're now in deep center field when we were running in from third base yesterday.

"I can't promise you anything but I am going to work on the problem. MacArthur (Alexander MacArthur, chairman of the Illinois Racing Board) told me he can't make me any promises. I'll try to get the job done.

"If you don't get back in there and enter I might as well go back to Louisville."

Bonnie is the same attorney who went to court several years ago when Dancer's Image, a Kentucky Derby winner, was disqualified because it was determined that medication was used on the horse.

A ruling in favor of the horse was made a couple of years later and he was declared the official winner.

Blomquist To Be Ordained

Alan Blomquist will be ordained a minister Sunday at South Community Baptist Church in Mount Prospect.

South Church members participating in the ceremony will be James French, chairman of the board of deacons; William Powell, moderator; the Rev. Edwin I. Stevens and the Rev. Paul Sandin.

Blomquist received his Master of Divinity degree with honors from McCormick Theological Seminary and his Master of Social Work degree from Loyola University this month. He was graduated from Prospect High School in 1963.

He and his wife Peggy and children, Rebecca and Christopher, will live in Chicago where Blomquist will work as a social worker for the state for the next two years.

Trinity Choirs To Present Concert

A choir concert of both sacred and secular music will be held at 8 p.m. Sunday at Trinity United Methodist Church, 606 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect.

"Life," a contemporary cantata, will be held by the Wesley Choir. The adult choir will sing several sacred songs and folk tunes. Tickets at $1 each or $2 per family will be sold at the door. A babysitter will be provided during the concert.

THEY'RE A TRIO — The Kramer sisters, with Margaret Kramer, a teacher at John Hersey High School on the right (or is it on the left? Or center?), had a get-together this week at her home in Arlington Heights. The sisters, all married with children, are all age 29, teachers and their lives have followed a very similar line.

What! Are There 3 Mrs. Kramers?

A trio of young women walked through the halls of John Hersey High School Wednesday amid exclamations of "it's three Mrs. Kramers" and "they look like the Lennon Sisters!"

One of the three, Mrs. Margaret Kramer, is a business teacher at the high school. Her two companions were her triplet sisters, Mrs. Marily Burkhardt and Mrs. Mary Davis. They visited Margaret after classes Wednesday in the first of their planned seminannual reunions. Margaret lives at 115 W. Burr Oak, Arlington Heights.

The three sisters, aged 29, have chosen the same career. Margaret's two sisters both teach in Iowa elementary schools.

The women say they are protective of their individuality, yet laughingly point out that their lives have followed a very similar line.

There is no other history of multiple births on the sister's family tree, according to Margaret. The three sisters grew up in Bloomington-Normal area of Illinois somewhat as celebrities.

After graduating from high school, the three sisters worked at the F. S. Services Co., which is affiliated with the Illinois Agriculture Service. When they were 20, the three women married men they met at the company, all within nine months of one another. The three couples had children and then the wives decided to go to college.

The sisters said that being triplets was both an advantage and a disadvantage "We always had a large field for dating and we were cheerleaders together. But people often thought of us as a unit and not as individuals," pointed out one.

If the sisters were to advise mothers who have had multiple births, they would say, "Keep the children's dientity. Treat them differently."

Church To Elect Parish Council

Sixteen representatives for the newly formed parish council at St. Raymond Catholic Church in Mount Prospect will be elected this weekend.

Parishioners will chose council members from a field of 40 candidates. Ballots have been mailed to voters and can be turned in by mail or delivered to the rectory. A box will be set up outside the church, 311 S. I-Oka Ave., Sunday for parishioners to cast their votes.

Two representatives from each of eight geographical districts will be elected to the decision-making council. The candidate with the largest number of votes in each district will serve on the council for two years. The other representative will serve for one year. In addition, the Rev. William Buhrfeind, pastor, one other parish priest and a member of the community of nuns will also serve as the council:

Lake Water Plan Stalled

by ROGER CAPETTINI

An apparent communications problem may be hampering the efforts of Northwest suburban communities to divert water from Lake Michigan.

Despite estimates that the useful life of local wells is about 10 years, the Des Plaines- Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect-Palatine (DAMP) water commission and the Illinois Division of Waterways are waiting for the other to make the next move.

The four-town commission has asked the staete for an allocation to permit the towns to divert 25.9 cubic feet per second of water from the lake.

DAMP, which plans to build water intake, transmission and filtration facilities, has been told by the state that it will get a share of the 3,200 cubic feet per second from the lake set aside for Illinois by a 1967 U.S. Supreme Court decision.

LAST SPRING, John C. Guillou, chief engineer, for the state agency, told DAMP it would get its fair share when the allocations were made in the fall. The official allocations were not posted, however, and according to DAMP commissioners, were delayed by Guillou until this spring.

DAMP officials say the commission cannot proceed with plans to build the pipeline to bring the water to the suburbs until the state makes a move.

DAMP chairman Robert F. Teepe of Mount Prospect, said yesterday that the commission cannot begin to sell bonds or start construction until it gets the allocation. "We need more than a verbal assurance," he said.

Contacted in Springfield Monday, Guillou said the state cannot make the allocation until the commission reaches a firm decision on its water needs. "They don't know the precise amount they need," he said. "We are reluctant to make an allocation and then have them not use it for a couple of years. Once it's allocated, no one else can use the water," he explained.

"WE'RE READY TO make the allocation whenever they wish to have it," Guillou added. "Once they really have to have an allocation, they can have it. There's no holdup here at all," he said.

Teepe said, "There seems to be a difference of opinion in his office. They said they would be posting the preliminary allocations in the spring, and now some of his people say it may be two years before any allocations are made."

The DAMP chairman continued, "Some of his people have said recently that they don't even know how much water they have to allocate."

TEEPE SAID he cannot understand any question arising over the need of the commission. "Our report to the state lays out the requirements of DAMP over a period of years."

He said the possibility of DAMP joining with the Elmhurst-Villa Park-Lombard (Tree Towns) water commission to bring the water to the respective areas should not have an effect on the posting of the allocations, because the total amounts needed by both commissions wil remain the same.

Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine now obtain their water supplies solely from municipal wells. Well life in the three suburbs has been estimated to anywhere from 11 to 15 years, if water usage continues to grow.

Des Plaines, which now buys about two thirds of its water from the City of Chicago, has indicated that it wants to remain part of DAMP and be included in the feasibility studies. Des Plaines' contract with Chicago expires in 1974.

Negotiators Reach Accord On 1971-72 Teacher Contract

Negotiators for Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 49 announced last night that they have reached agreement on a contract for 1971-72 school year.

The contract will be presented sometime today to the general membership of the Teachers Council,- which includes most of the 523 teachers in Dist. 59, Tom Dresser, head of the Council negotiation team, said.

Al Waltman, assistant superintendent of personnel and head of the negotiating team for the board of education, said a special board meeting will probably be called "as soon as possible" to ratify the contract.

Dresser and Waltman said they would with bold details of the agreement, which includes a salary schedule for teachers for the coming year, until the agreement is presented to the teachers and the board.

With the agreement, Dist. 59 becomes the first elementary district in the area to reach an agreement with its teachers.

High School Dist 211, which includes Palatine and Schaumburg townships, announced a contract settlement two weeks ago which included a 3.75 per cent raise in teachers' salaries.

Base pay for a beginning teacher in Dist. 59 is now $7,600. Negotiations for the 1971-72 contract began in February, immediately after a settlement was reached in this year's contract.

Negotiations on this year's contract broke down last fall in a dispute between the teachers and the board over class size in the district.

Both teachers and the board charged each other with bad faith and the Teachers Council staged a one-day strike in February.

Agreement on the contract was reached following the strike. Included in that contract was a no-strike clause which is set to expire with the 1970-71 contract on June 24.

The tax rate referendum being held tomorrow by Dist. 59 contains no extra money for teachers' salaries and will not affect the settlement, district officials have said. Last month the Teachers Council officially endorsed the referendum.

Edginton Leaving Park Position

by SANDRA J. BROWNING

Christopher Edginton

The volcano of enthusiasm and ideas which has been erupting in the Arlington Heights Park District for more than a year will leave his job today.

Christopher Edginton, recreation supervisor for the park district, will be leaving his position to become the director of parks and recreation in Wooster, Ohio. He will be the top administrator for the park system, which is part of the city's government.

The 25-year-old Edginton came to the park district in April, 1970, and said Arlington Heights is "the only community I've been in where people are interested enough to come to a board meeting and demand programs."

Eginton said he was leaving to take advantage of an opportunity for professional advancement. The town he is going to has a population of about 20,000 and has more park acreage than Arlington Heights, he said.

AS A RECREATION supervisor for the local park district, the agressive recreation supervisor has been responsible for the planning of the playground program, special activities, mobile recreation units to be used for the first time this summer, the park district teen center, after school programs and other activities.

The suddenly humble Edginton said the successful programs during his term with the park district were not "things that I did. It was the things that individuals did for me." He complimented many of his subordinate park district staff members who have helped in the planning of programs.

Looking at the park district after more than a year of working for it, Edginton said the district was at a point where "we should sit down and plan five years in advance and set priorities. The recreation department is going in 100 different directions."

Edginton said the park district will have to find new areas of revenue and it is at "a critical point and must therefore establish priorities."

SERVICES PROVIDED by the park district have to increase, he said, because "the community is demanding it. At present, we don't have the money to get the job done."

A graduate of San Jose College in California, Edginton earned a master's degree from the department of recreation at the University of Illinois. Eginton and his wife have a daughter and a son.

A going-away party for Edginton was held yesterday at Old Orchard Country Club and he was presented with a plaque for "service and loyalty" to the park district. The plaque was presented by members of the park and recreation staffs.

Edginton's resignation, made public after this week's meeting of the Arlington Heights Park Board, marks the fifth resignation from the recreation staff since Edginton started working for the park district about 14 months ago. Two of three recreation supervisors, two of four center directors and the only superintendent of recreation have quit the local park district since April, 1970.

Correction

An error appeared in yesterday's Herald article on the date set for the public hearing on the duties of a future environmental control commission in Arlington Heights.

The story stated the hearing will be June 29. According to the Arlington Heights village manager's office, the date is June 28.

The meeting, which was scheduled by the legal committee of the Arlington Heights Village Board, will begin at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd. The committee decided to hold the public hearing to allow residents to suggest duties for an environmental control commission.

Lift Restraining Order; Disannex Next

The lifting of a Circuit Court restraining order Wednesday will permit the Arlington Heights Village Board to disannex a tract of land so it can be annexed to Palatine.

The land in question is a tract just west of Rte. 53, north of Palatine Road and east of Wilke Road.

Attorneys for the owner of the property, Karl Reinke, obtained a restraining order Monday to prohibit any action by the Arlington Heights Village Board at its meeting that night. The board was scheduled to vote on a disannexation ordinance.

The board delayed action pending a circuit court hearing Wednesday. After the hearing, the restraining order was lifted, according to Jack Siegel, village attorney for Arlington Heights. The attorney said this will allow the village to pass the disannexation ordinance.

Siegel also said Reinke's attorney filed a petition to prevent any change from the present general business district zoning.

The property owner requested a resubdivision and variation to allow construction of a White Hen Pantry and a dry cleaning store from the Arlington Heights Plan Commission in April. The commission decided the property could be better served by Palatine and should be annexed to that village. The proposed site for the development was part of Arlington Heights before Rte 53 became a major highway.

The disannexation of the land was discussed last month by the Arlington Heights Village Board, but trustees delayed action because the property owner had not been notified of the pending action.

Doughnut Day Chief

Mrs. Marge Rannie, 3200 Salk Rd., Arlington Heights, will serve as doughnut day chairman today, helping sell paper doughnut tags on street corners to raise funds for the Salvation Army.

Potboilers

TRYING TO PICK a meeting night is always difficult for busy officials. After haggling over a date for about 10 minutes at a meeting this week, one man said he couldn't make a certain date because his son was in a graduation. Another man coolly replied, "So?"

THE APPROVAL of the Village Board's minutes is usually a routine matter, but Trustee Alice Harms had one point to make this week. The board agreed to Mrs. Harms' suggested change when she said, "Do we really want the billage government investiaged or the village government investigated or the vestigated?"

PROGRESS: As the Village Board was reviewing bids for the addition to the Municipal Building, Village Pres. Jack Walsh asked if the heating, ventilating and air conditioning contractor was the same firm as the one that did the work on the original building. When he was told "no," he said, "That's a step in the right direction."

GOOFED: A SMALL mistake slipped past a Herald reporter this week who wrote the Arlington High School graduation story. The article stated the processional and recessional music would be played by Edward Elgar. Actually, Elgar was the composer of the two pieces and has been dead for many years.

WHAT DID HE REALLY MEAN? During this week's meeting of the legal committee of the Arlington Heights Village Board, members were talking about the potential duties of an environmental control commission. Trustee Theodore Salinsky said, "I think we need to have a vehicle as a receptacle and depository for problems in the ecological field."

PUNNY: During the same legal committee meeting, Village Atty. Jack Siegel reported on the status of a high-phosphate detergent bill pending in the Illinois legislature. Siegel wasn't too optimistic about the bill because, "I hate to say it, but I think it'll get watered down."

IT WAS JUST A LOANER: Things got so hot and heavy yesterday at the Arlington Heights Police department that police chief L. W. Calderwood's police car had to be borrowed by one of the detectives for a half hour. It was a case of too many places to go with too few autos to get there with.

THE TIMES HAVE CHANGED: The Arlington Heights Park Board was discussing a possible procedure to limit the "citizens to be heard" portion of their agenda during a meeting this week. No procedure was adopted after board member Edward Condon said, "They should be free to come and shout from the rooftops. I hate to limit the free exchange when for so many years, nobody came. It's so good to see some unfamiliar faces here."

REVENUE HUNGRY: During Tuesday's Arlington Heights Park Board meeting, the installation of a footbridge across McDonald Creek in the northeast side of Camelot Park was discussed. As the talk about the cost of installation continued, board member Edward Condon suggested, "We can install it and charge a toll to get across."

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon lifted a 21-year-old ban on export of a long list of goods to Communist China, from automobiles and air conditioners to road-building equipment. He also ordered a surprise end to restrictions on wheat sales to the Russians. Officials, however, cautioned against expecting any dramitic upsurge in exports.

Fidel Castro retaliated for the conviction and stiff sentences given four Cuban fishermen in Key West by turning over to a revolutionary tribunal for trial five stranded Americans accused of illegally entering the country. The Americans, according to Radio Havana, are four persons from a yacht on a Caribbean cruise and a young man from Pennsylvania whose attempt to cross the Gulf of Mexico in a canoe foundered on Cuban shores.

The World

Egyptian President Anuar Sadat bitterly attacked the United States for its arms and economic aid to Israel, charging American "participation" in the Israeli occupation of captured territory and accusing Washington of being "Israel's partner in the aggression" against the Arab world.

Three Russions orbiting earth in the Salyut "laboratory" achieved a space first by sending weather reports from the manned space station. The Soviet News Agency Tass said the study of atmospheric formations and the earth's snow and ice packs are a part of Salyut's mission.

The War

The Vietnamese Communists snuffed out any hopes they might pledge to release American prisoners in return for a "reasonable" deadline for withdrawal of U.S. troops.

South Vietnamese forces fought in a stubborn defense of Fire Base 5 in the Central Highlands and in the prolonged campaign to break Communist strength in the A Shau Valley. The Saigon government also announced the successful completion of two other hard-fought campaigns in Cambodia along the Demilitarized Zone.

Nineteen U.S. servicemen were killed in action in Indochina last week in the lowest combat death toll in nearly six years. But the toll of wounded remained relatively high — 261 Americans wounded in action as compared with 229 the previous week.

The State

Eleven cars of the "City of New Orleans" passenger train, speeding through Southern Illinois corn fields, left the tracks at 85 m.p.h. in a deadly rail catastrophe killing at least 16 persons and injuring 99 near Salem in south central Illinois. The dead included the engineer and at least three children under two years old.

Former Gov. Otto Kerner has been invited to tesify before the federal grand jury investigating race track stock deals involving Illinois politicians, a Chicago newspaper reported.

THEY'RE A TRIO — The Kramer sisters, with Margaret Kramer, a teacher at John Hersey High School on the right (or is it on the left? Or center?), had a get-together this week at her home in Arlington Heights. The sisters, all married with children, are all age 29, teachers and their lives have followed a very similar line.

What! Are There 3 Mrs. Kramers?

A trio of young women walked through the halls of John Hersey High School Wednesday amid exclamations of "it's three Mrs. Kramers" and "they look like the Lennon Sisters!"

One of the three, Mrs. Margaret Kramer, is a business teacher at the high school. Her two companions were her triplet sisters, Mrs. Marlly Burkhardt and Mrs. Mary Davis. They visited Margaret after classes Wednesday in the first of their planned seminannual reunions. Margaret lives at 115 W. Burr Oak, Arlington Heights.

The three sisters, aged 29, have chosen the same career. Margaret's two sisters both teach in Iowa elementary schools.

The women say they are protective of their individuality, yet laughingly point out that their lives have followed a very similar line.

There is no other history of multiple births on the sister's family tree, according to Margaret. The three sisters grew up in Bloomington-Normal area of Illinois somewhat as celebrities.

After graduating from high school, the three sisters worked at the F. S. Services Co., which is affiliated with the Illinois Agriculture Service. When they were 20, the three women married men they met at the company, all within nine months of one another. The three couples had children and then the wives decided to go to college.

The sisters said that being triplets was both an advantage and a disadvantage "We always had a large field for dating and we were cheerleaders together. But people often thought of us as a unit and not as individuals," pointed out one.

If the sisters were to advise mothers who have had multiple births, they would say, "Keep the children's dientity. Treat them differently."

Free Street Theater Kicks-Off Free Concerts

An ensemble of 19 singers, dancers, actors and musicians from the Free Street Theater will kick off the series of free concerts sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District.

The first concert will be held at 8 p.m. June 28 at Camelot Park, Brighton Place and Suffield Drive.

The series of concerts, "Music Under the Stars," will be held at various parks each Monday from June 28 through Aug. 16. All concerts will begin at 8 p.m. and will be open to the public with no admission charge.

Many of the productions will be using the bandwagon from Elmhurst Park District. This mobile musical unit includes a stage and public address system.

The first concert will be presented by the Free Street Theater's Un-Grand Opera Company which will perform a new music drama, as yet untitled, which is based on the Feast of Fools. This production will be an opera in contemporary musical idioms.

THE FREE STREET Theater is one facet of the Illinois Art Council's project, "Arts to People." The theater is sponsored by the council in cooperation with the Goodman School of Drama and will tour the state throughout the summer.

The Free Street Theater performs in neighborhoods at the invitation of various community agencies and organizations. The troup travels with its own 40-foot mobile stage which they set up in parks, playgrounds, parking lots, shopping plazas and street intersections.

The July 5 concert will feature St. Charles' "Up With People" at Recreation Park, 500 E. Miner St.

On July 12, the Free Street Theater will present another performance in its repertory of productions. "The Rhythm of The City" will be performed at Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez Ave. The musical revue features songs, dances and dramatic sketches relating to urban life.

A HIGHLIGHT of the production is an audience participation segment in which the performing company enacts fairy tales as the stories are being narrated by volunteers from the audience.

The July 19 concert will include "Sing Out Palatine," a group formed during the "Up With People" movement. The performance will be given at Frontier Park, Kennicott Drive and Palatine Road.

A concert July 26 at Hasbrook Park, 333 W. Maude St., will feature the Arlingtones, a local division of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America (SPEBQSA).

The other concerts will be Aug. 2, Country Chords Chapter of Sweet Adelines at Recreation Park; Aug. 8, Elk Grove Festival Chorus at Pioneer Park; and Aug. 16, John Hersey High School band at Camelot Park.

Last year, all the free summer concerts were held at one park. The concert sites are being changed this year to increase participation and make the concerts more convenient to residents, according to Alicia Smith. Miss Smith, a recreation supervisor for the park district, was in charge of planning the free concert series.

Building, Fire Officials To Probe Track Stable Areas

The stable area of Arlington Park Race Track will be inspected by Arlington Heights building and fire officials in the near future.

The public health and safety committee of the Arlington Heights Village Board Wednesday directed village administrators to make the inspections in the "backstretch" area of the track to see which buildings might be problems.

The inspections will include the living quarters for track personnel, the number of residents and the sanitary facilities. The committee asked for counts on the number of barns and living quarters in the area because that area is "invisible. Nobody really knows what's back there," said Trustee Alice Harms.

Following last week's fire at the track, Mrs. Harms made an inspection of the area herself. At Monday night's meeting of the village board, Mrs. Harms said the village should inspect the area to find out about the living conditions. She said she wanted the various village departments to check to see if they meet the village's code for housing.

The matter was referred to the board's public health and safety committee which met Wednesday night. A report on the stable area is expected about the end of this month.

Open House Days At Ziegler Co.

Hours will be from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Frida and from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m Saturday.

Resident manager of the new office is Warren Coultas, who also manages the company's Chicago office at 135 S. LaSalle St. The northwest suburban office is the 25th in the national network of offices maintained by the Ziegler firm.

B. C. Ziegler and Co., which has its corporate offices in West Bend, Wis., specializes in the underwriting and distribution of institutional securities, principally hospital bonds. The company is also national distributor of three mutual funds: the Ziegler Fund, which seeks long-term growth of capital and income; the Ziegler Select Fund, which limits sale of its shares to tax-exempt institutions and which seeks long-term growth of capital; and the Newton Fund, which seeks long-term growth of capital.

Coultas said the new office is being opened so the company will be better able to serve investor customers in the area.

Charge Man With Train Theft

A Palatine man was arrested yesterday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and charged with the theft, and later wreck of a Chicago and North Western R.R. train.

Nicki Fanelli, 20, of Palatine was placed under arrest by the agents on the basis of a warrant issued by the U.S. District Court following an indictment handed down yesterday by the federal grand jury.

The train wreck occured when someone took control of a Chicago and North Western engine on March 18 and took it to Lake Geneva, Wis. where the train was found damaged. Chicago and North Western officials later estimated damage to their equipment at $300,000.

FANELLI WAS CHARGED yesterday with violations of federal train wreck statutes and interstate transportatin of stolen property.

According to Charles Bates, special agent in charge of the Chicago bureau of the FBI, Fanelli was arrested yesterday at the U.S. Army induction center in Chicago where he was in the process of enlisting in the Army.

Palatine police said yesterday they presently have a charge of unlawful use of weapons pending against Fanelli. The charge dates back to an incident in October, 1970.

Flurry Of Activity For Referendum

by WANDALYN RICE

All flurry of activity for and against the referendum being held tomorrow by Elk Grove Township Elementary School Dist. 59 is bringing the campaign to an end.

Polls will be open from noon until 7 p.m. at ten polling places. Voters will decide the fate of two proposals which would, if passed, increase the district's tax rate by 27 cents per $100 of assessed value — 21 cents will be in the education fund and six cents in the building fund.

Letters from the board of education to parents in the district are now in the mail urging them to vote "yes" and flyers urging defeat of the tax increases are being distributed throughout the township by Jack Roeser, head of the Concerned Taxpayers of Elk Grove Township, and his supporters.

The flyers, which charge the district with overspending and poor quality of education, appeared in Elk Grove Village on Wednesday.

Many of the budget figures in the flyer are either inaccurate or drawn from past budgets and not the budget for the current year, district officials have said.

Roeser said yesterday the campaign against the referendum is going "beautifully. We think we'll have the flyers delivered to about 9,000 homes."

Roeser said many individuals have called and offered their help and added, "We've got the muscle to get this thing through. We are finally getting to the point of a real taxpayers' revolt — a lot of people are really upset."

One of the causes of voter anger, he said, is the property tax bills which have been arriving at area homes this week. The long-delayed bills show hefty increases in many cases.

Ironically, Dist. 59 officials point out the increases are not due mainly to increases in the district's taxes, but are due to application of the state equalization factor and increased tax rates by other taxing bodies.

Dist. 59 public relations director Leah Cummins pointed out this week that for the first time in memory the tax rate for High School Dist. 214 exceeds the tax rate for the elementary district by several cents.

BETWEEN THEM, the two school districts account for more than 70 per cent of the property tax bill.

Dist. 59's tax rate increased by four cents this year, mainly due to an increase in the bonded interest fund, Supt. James Erviti said.

"I'm sure many people are saying it is because of the junior high referendum," he said, "but actually the increase is paying the schedule of bonds for schools built years ago."

In April voters approved a bond issue to build a fifth junior high school in Des Plaines. The $2 3 million in bonds for the building have not yet been sold.

DIST. 59 SCHOOLS

Arlington Heights: Juliette Low.

Des Plaines: Brentwood, Devonshire, Albert Einstein and High Ridge Knolls.

Elk Grove Village: Adm. Richard E. Byrd, Clearmont, Daniel Cook, Grove, Mark Hookins, Lively, Ridge, Rupley, Salt Creek and Grant Wood.

Mount Prospect: Dempster, Forest View, Robert Frost, Holmes and John Jay.

Saturday's referendum is the first tax rate referendum since the district lost one in 1969. The vote that year on the education fund, the major tax fund of the district out of which teachers are paid and instructional programs are financed, was 2,246 "yes" and 2,441 "no."

The rate increase would have passed except for one precinct, voting at High Ridge Knolls School in Des Plaines, which turned the measure down by more than a two to one margin.

SINCE THAT referendum, the district has added another precinct by dividing the Knolls precinct almost in half. For this referendum voters who were in the Knolls precinct in 1969 will vote at Knolls and at Albert Einstein School.

Before the defeat of the 1969 referendum, district officials indicated they would have to cut the budget for the 1970-71 school year.

After the referendum, the district cut more than $200,000, mainly in administrative and clerical salaries. In addition, the district's assessed value came in higher than anticipated and enrollment increases were lower than projected. Because of these things, Erviti has explained, the cuts were smaller than they might have been otherwise.

Erviti, who has been superintendent since July, 1970, recommended in September that the district hold a referendum to increase the tax rate this spring.

The idea was scrapped, however, and the district planned to get through the 1971-72 school year without a tax increase by having a "hold-the-line" budget and by increasing the district's borrowing position to the legal limit, Ervitti said.

SATURDAY'S referendum became necessary following a Circuit Court ruling by Judge Walter Dahl which said corporate personal property tax is unconstitutional, he said.

Dist. 59 is harder hit by the ruling because it has no more borrowing power left and because of the large number of corporations which pay the tax in thee Centex Industrial Park and other industrial areas of the township.

Legal advice given the district has been that they will not be able to borrow against corporate personal property tax money for the coming year, Erviti said. A decision on the Dahl ruling is expected from the Illinois Supreme Court in July but the district's attorney expects the case to be taken to the U. S. Supreme Court, further delaying the available money, he added.

If a final decision on the Dahl case is not made or if it is upheld, the district will have to cut its 1971-72 operating budget by eight per cent, or by more than $600,000 Erviti said.

If, on the other hand, the referendum passes and the Dahl Decision is overturned. District officials have promised that the increased tax rate will not be levied for the 1971-72 budget year.

BETWEEN THEM, the two school districts account for more than 70 per cent of the property tax bill.

Dist. 59's tax rate increased by four cents this year, mainly due to an increase in the bonded interest fund, Supt. James Ervitl said.

"I'm sure many people are saying it is because of the junior high referendum," he said, "but actually the increase is paying the schedule of bonds for schools built years ago."

In April voters approved a bond issue to build a fifth junior high school in Des Plaines. The $2.3 million in bonds for the building have not yet been sold.

Saturday's referendum is the first tax rate referendum since the district lost one in 1969. The vote that year on the education fund, the major tax fund of the district out of which teachers are paid and instructional programs are financed, was 2,246 "yes" and 2,441"no."

The rate increase would have passed except for one precinct, voting at High Ridge Knolls School in Des Plaines, which turned the measure down by more than a two to one margin.

SINCE THAT referendum, the district has added another precinct by dividing the Knolls precinct almost in half. For this referendum voters who were in the Knolls precinct in 1969 will vote at Knolls and at Albert Einstein School.

Before the defeat of the 1969 referendum, district officials indicated they would have to cut the budget for the 1970-71 school year.

After the referendum, the district cut more than $200,000, mainly in administrative and clerical salaries. In addition, the district's assessed value came in higher than anticipated and enrollment increases were lower than projected. Because of these things, Erviti has explained, the cuts were smaller than they might have been otherwise.

Erviti, who has been superintendent since July, 1970, recommended in September that the district hold a referendum to increase the tax rate this spring.

The idea was scrapped, however, and the district planned to get through the 1971-72 school year without a tax increase by having a "hold-the-line" budget and by increasing the district's borrowing position to the legal limit, Ervitti said.

SATURDAY'S referendum became necessary following a Circuit Court ruling by Judge Walter Dahl which said corporate personal property tax is unconstitutional, he said.

Dist. 59 is harder hit by the ruling because it has no more borrowing power left and because of the large number of corporations which pay the tax in thee Centex Industrial Park and other industrial areas of the township.

Legal advice given the district has been that they will not be able to borrow against corporate personal property tax money for the coming year, Erviti said. A decision on the Dahl ruling is expected from the Illinois Supreme Court in July but the district's attorney expects the case to be taken to the U. S. Supreme Court, further delaying the available money, he added.

If a final decision on the Dahl case is not made or if it is upheld, the district will have to cut its 1971-72 operating budget by eight per cent, or by more than $600,000 Erviti said.

If, on the other hand, the referendum passes and the Dahl Decision is overturned. District officials have promised that the increased tax rate will not be levied for the 1971-72 budget year.

A Herald Editorial

Vote 'Yes' In Referendum Tomorrow

Voters in Elk Grove Township Elementary School Dist. 59 will go to the polls Saturday to decide the fate of two tax rate increases — one for 21 cents per $100 assessed valuation in the education fund and the other for 6 cents per $100 in the building fund.

The Herald urges them to vote "yes" on both proposals. In that way they can rescue the district from a financial crisis over which it has had no control.

The rate increases will raise the taxes on a house assessed at $10,000 by $27 a year, a prospect distasteful to any homeowner caught in the trap of spiraling taxes.

However, if the referendum is defeated, the quality of education for children in Dist. 59 will depend wholly on the whim of the Illinois Supreme Court.

The district's present financial problems are the result of the decision handed down in March by Circuit Court Judge Walter Dahl that held corporate personal property tax unconstitutional.

That ruling and a second, conflicting ruling are now going to the Supreme Court for decision. If the Dahl ruling is upheld Dist. 59 must have the new money provided by the referendum or educational and maintenance budgets must be cut by eight and 19 per cent respectively.

Before the Dahl decision upset the district's budget plans, district officials had managed to plan a "hold the line" budget which would maintain educational services in the district while staying within available income — no small feat in times of inflation.

In order to do this, district officials not only planned no new programs for next year, but planned to increase the district's borrowing position to the legal limit.

If the district is now forced to cut the budget, it must begin eliminating classroom teachers, increasing class size and diminishing the quality of education offered.

Dist. 59 voters can look at the effect of such cuts in their neighboring district, Arlington Heights Dist. 25. After sufferig a referendum defeat in March, Dist. 25 has eliminated 10 per cent of the staff for next year and will be increasing class sizes. Also, the instrumental music program has been eliminated.

To avoid such budgetary bloodshed in Dist. 59, voters should approve the referendum.

If the Dahl decision is overturned, the board of education has pledged not to levy the new tax rate and voters should expect them to keep that promise.

Voters should not cast the fate of education in the district to the course. The referendum is the only way to give the district officials a way to preserve educational quality if the Dahl decision is upheld.

COUNSELING IS ONE of the major functions of the modern high school. In many cases, counseling is simply not the answer to severe behavior problems which occur in school. Such agencies as the Community Counseling Center in Des Plaines provide much-needed family counseling for severe problems.

Schools See Value Of Counsel Center

by TOM WELLMAN

If you want to find out just how valuable is the Des Plaines Community Counseling Center, talk to the school officials who work directly with children.

Talk to the counselors, the social workers and the psychologists. They are the ones who face everyday the students who are discipline problems, the students who just can't seem to cope with the stresses of elementary or high school education.

Day by day, month by month, they are the men and women best acquainted with the services offered by the center, operated by the Salvation Army.

To a man, they realize the center is valuable for handling certain kinds of behavior problems which appear in elementary and high schools.

AL D'AGATA, a social worker at Prospect High School, uses the center as an agency which can handle cases that best benefit by family counseling.

D'Agata described a typical case, a freshman girl, whose mother was working, while the father was divorced. The mother had little time to give to the family, D'Agata said, and the girl had run away from home several times.

D'Agata said it was one of a dozen cases which his department referred to the center last year, and the number is increasing.

He stressed the center "is certainly needed," and that it has the unique ability of working, through family therapy, to aid children who have multiple behavior problems.

Unlike other clinics in the area, the center encourages family participation, he said.

Clarence Feiereisel, director of pupil personnel services at Prospect High said the center is one of several agencies — such as the Northwest Mental Health Clinic and Forest Hospital — which will take referrals from the school district.

A PARTICULARLY important aspect of the center is that it places no emphasis on the family's ability to pay, reports Feiereisel.

"Our most crying need is for community services in our own community," reports Dr. Jeanne McCarthy, school psychologist for Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates Dist. 54.

She estimates that the ten social workers, guidance counselors in both elementary and junior high schools, have made perhaps as many as 100 referrals to the center in the past year.

The center is valuable partly because counseling centers just aren't available. The Northwest Mental Health Clinic is one possibility, but its emphasis is too often only on diagnosis, not treatment, she said.

A special benefit from the center is that it can provide service beyond the normal working hours. "Our biggest problem is that our staff works from 8 to 4," said Dr. McCarthy.

But fathers are not home during the day, so Dist. 54 can't counsel with them. Thus, the Community Counseling Center has the ability to set up evening sessions to work with families.

"PEOPLE CAN'T afford private therapy," she declared, and asserted that a private psychiatrist is "just a little bit ridiculous" for parents of disturbed children.

However, school officials realize parents are not going to dash into family therapy to help their children. D'Agata said, "Many people can use the center, but many won't use it."

Dist. 214, however, is moving towards a greater emphasis on the kind of family counseling which the Community Counseling Center offers.

The district has hired a woman to work with school psychologists and social workers to "sharpen up their skills, and to pass those skills along to other people," in family counseling, D'Agata added.

But districts seem to prefer to avoid family counseling, and rely on the skills available in such agencies as the Community Counseling Center.

DR. McCARTHY said Dist. 54's job is "not to straighten out the marriage" which causes problems for children, but she acknowledges the schools get the spin-off from family problems.

'Big Top' Coming To Holy Family

Although there will not be a "big top" at Holy Family Hospital this afternoon, a circus atmosphere is expected to prevail, especially when the "ponderous performing pachyderm" steps to the center ring.

Kelly's performing elephant is just one of 14 acts on tap for the three-day running of the Royal International Circus on the hospital grounds beginning today.

The circus is being sponsored by the more than 600 employes of the hospital to raise funds for future hospital expansion and to celebrate the completion of a decade of service.

The open-air circus will be held west of the hospital today, tomorrow and Sunday. The two-hour shows will begin at 2 p.m., and 8 p.m. today and tomorrow, with shows set for 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday.

In addition to the elephant act, the circus will include acrobatic bears; a high aerial motorcycle act; three juggling unicyclists; clown acts; and the Royal Bengal Jungle Killers, a group of eight fighting tigers.

ALSO SCHEDULED are: Charmaine's Playmates, performing dogs, ponies and a monkey; "The Great Arturo," an Austrian high-wire acrobat; and "Lothar," and his "famous one-finger stand." Ringmaster Bud Carlell will double as a rope and whip artist.

TICKETS, PRICED at $2 per person, can be purchased at the hopsital, Golf Mill State Bank, Osco Drugs at Randhurst, Dominick's in the Mount Prospect Plaza, and at the Des Plaines National Bank. Monday has been reserved as a rain date for the circus. More than 2,500 seats are available.

Circus ticket revenue, plus other business, individual and community gifts, will be used to finance the hospital's new coronary-intensive care unit as the first phase of the hospital's long-range expansion program.

Plans for the hospital, which was opened June 12, 1961, call for the addition of at least 16 intensive care coronary beds in addition to the hospital building plant. Expansion plans also include an addition for an auditorium, additional office space and a larger medical library.

RENOVATION OF Two-South and Three-South nursing service and patient care facilities are also planned, according to Sister M. Amata, administrator.

Assisting in the operation of the circus will be members of the hospital Lay Advisory board, senior auxiliary and the "Cheeri-Aides," teenagers who volunteer their services to many departments in the 236-bed hospital.

George Planic, administrative assistant and chairman-coordinator of the circus program, said employes suggested the circus "as an ideal community-family event to celebrate the hospital's progress and provide funds for still greater expansion in the years ahead."

'Stuck' With Tree Bill

Des Plaines police started searching for two men and a young boy yesterday after a Des Plaines man was left "stuck" with tar on his trees and $130 less in his wallet.

According to police, it all started when the man, John Logan of 405 Bellaire Dr., phoned a local tree service company to have two trees removed from his property.

Logan's daughter reportedly told police a red pickup truck, with a tar tank hitched to the rear, pulled up to the house Monday. When Logan asked the two men in the truck if they were from the tree service, they said they were, and examined the two trees.

THE TWO MEN, who were accompanied by the boy, then reportedly told Logan they would have to spray the trees with tar to make them easier to saw.

After spraying the trees, and collecting $130 from Logan, the men said they would return Wednesday to complete the job.

Tuesday night, however, the real tree service employes arrived to do the work, only to find the trees covered with tar.

When the tar sprayers failed to appear Wednesday, police were notiifed.

FBI Charges Man With Train Theft

A Palatine man was arrested yesterday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and charged with the theft, and later wreck of a Chicago and North Western R.R. train.

Nicki Fanelli, 20, of Palatine was placed under arrest by the agents on the basis of a warrant issued by the U.S. District Court following an indictment handed down yesterday by the federal grand jury.

The train wreck occured when someone took control of a Chicago and North Western engine on March 18 and took it to Lake Geneva, Wis. where the train was found damaged. Chicago and North Western officials later estimated damage to their equipment at $300,000.

FANELLI WAS CHARGED yesterday with violations of federal train wreck statutes and interstate transportatin of stolen property.

According to Charles Bates, special agent in charge of the Chicago bureau of the FBI, Fanelli was arrested yesterday at the U.S. Army induction center in Chicago where he was in the process of enlisting in the Army.

Palatine police said yesterday they presently have a charge of unlawful use of weapons pending against Fanelli. The charge dates back to an incident in October, 1970

Mental Health Tax Bill Is Passed

The Illinois House of Representatives has passed a bill sponsored by Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, to allow townships to tax for mental health services without passing a tax referendum.

The bill, which would become law only after receiving approval from the State Senate and Gov. Richard Ogilvie, would allow townships, including Elk Grove Township, where a mental health tax referendum recently failed, to tax for mental health services.

State Senate action on the bill is expected within a few weeks, according to an aide of Juckett who also is a member of the board of directors of the Maine Township Mental Health association, 1032 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Until a court decision in 1969, townships could provide funds for mental health services from a commission they received for collecting taxes

AFTER COLLECTION commission were declared unconstitutional, township's began to levy taxes, but a levy for mental health services was not considered legal by tax experts, according to a Juckett aide.

When the Maine Township association asked the township government to include them in the township levy, the association officials were told a tax referendum would be needed, according to Bud Ziehn, Maine Township supervisor.

At the time a court-ordered freeze stopped funds to the Maine Township association, it had been receiving about $45,000 a year in township funds.

In February, 1970, the state gave the association an $18,000 emergency grant, and later a $75,000 state grant was made for 1970-71, according to William Hall, association business manager.

The association has applied for a $100,000 grant from the state for the 1971-72 fiscal year, to pay for part of its budget. The rest would come from local contributions, he said.

THE ASSOCIATION needs more money to expand its services, Hall said. It now has a full-time director, its caseload has grown by 50 per cent in one year to 135 patients a month, and more staff members are needed, he has said

The bill would allow the town board of auditors to levy taxes for "mental health services, including services for the alcoholic, the drug addicted and the mentally retarded, for residents of the township," according to a statement from Juckett.

The funds would go to mental health agencies, which have operated for more than one year, and which have the approval of the State Department of Mental Healh.

Juckett feels the mental health agencies should be funded locally, and not through the states.

"My bill will permit the townships to reinstate their policy of providing for the mental health services needed by local residents. It will permit local mental health and mental retardation associations to acquire the local funding they so desperately need and want," according to Juckett.

Lieutenant Among Traffic Graduates

A Des Plaines police lieutenant is scheduled to be one of 100 policemen to be graduated tomorrow from a nine-month traffic police administration program at Northwestern University.

The lieutenant, August Schwiesow, will be graduated from the university's Traffic Institute's Traffic Police Administration Program in the largest graduating class in the 35-year history of the institute.

Schwiesow, a life-long resident of Des Plaines, is the first member of the city force to attend the course in management studies. He joined the department in 1956 and was promoted to his present rank in 1968.

At a dinner scheduled tonight to honor the graduates, Schwiesow is expected to receive the gold Traffic Institute key, symbolizing completion of the course, from James M. Slavin, institute director.

Claims School Tax Increase Unneeded

Dear Sir:

School Dist. 59 is asking for a tax increase at an election Saturday. We believe they don't need nor deserve it. For years Dist. 59 has exceeded all neighboring districts in per pupil costs. They have chosen to ignore all warnings about rising costs and taxpayer resentment about paying them. Every year their costs increase well beyond the cost of living. Seventy one per cent of our tax bill goes for schools.

In our district the tax had risen over 10 per cent a year the last two years. Ten years of 10 per cent increases turns an $800 tax into a $2,072 tax. This has happened without passing a referendum. Where will it end if they give us a tax increase every year as the superintendent and board have said they will try to do?

If you read the detailed budget, you'll see education has become big business. The budget has more compartments than a beehive. The largest category is for salaries for the administrators and teachers. The average teacher makes $10,000 a year in this district, for fewer hours and fewer months than most of us work. Other salaries range up to $32,000. Perhaps this is why the Teachers Association is conducting a telephone campaign to get out their partisan vote and has officially endorsed the tax increase.

There are 528 teachers, enough for a class size of only 20 pupils if evenly distributed They are supplemented by 234 non-certified employes full time, and many more part time and volunteers. Since 81 per cent of the education budget is for teacher's salaries they are expanding the costliest budget item in pushing for higher salaries, shorter hours, and smaller classes.

The Coleman report (largest and most authoritative yet) shows statistically that more money and small classes do not help student achievement. District 59's own records show their poor achievement compared to the large efficient classes in the parochial school which are at the other extreme in size and cost from theirs. Doesn't an expenditure of $31,000 per classroom of 28 students sound a little expensive for a grammar school? That's the figure you get by dividing their entire budget by the number of students. It is obvious that this system is running more for the welfare of the professionals than of the students if that group has high pay, short hours, and the students don't get as good an education as do those in poorer systems.

The district bases its tax need on the Dahl decision regarding corporate property taxes. Other districts have taken the advice that this loss of tax money is not permanent. The legislature is sure to deal with the problem if the courts don't. Your tax increase from this referendum will be permanent, so District 59 would then get a double boost, and be able to continue as the biggest spending district around.

Vote "no" Saturday, June 12, between noon and 7 p.m.

Better be there, the professionals will be.

Concerned Taxpayer of Elk Grove Township

Urges Casting Of 'Yes' Votes In Referendum

I have just received and read a flyer drom a disappointed candidate for the Dist 59 School Board (1970).

Rejected by the voters, this man has appointed himself to decide what is fiscally prudent for the school district and what is educationally wise for my children. His own children, I understand, have not attended Dist. 59 schools in recent years This means he has a personal interest only in denying other people's children the opportunities his own must have had if they attended our schools prior to the forced economies of the past two or three years.

I resent the blatant effort of this man to exercise power without responsibility.

I took the trouble to investigate the facts which are alleged in the flyer attributed to Mr. Roeser. Some of them are accurate, some are misleading and some are outright misrepresentation.

The people wisely rejected this man's leadership once at the polls. I urge them to do the same again. I intend to vote "yes" for District 59's financial health and the educational welfare of my children.

Negotiators Reach Accord Teacher Contract On 1971-72

Negotiators for Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 49 announced last night that they have reached agreement on a contract for 1971-72 school year.

The contract will be presented sometime today to the general membership of the Teachers Council, which includes most of the 523 teachers in Dist. 59, Tom Dresser, head of the Council negotiation team, said.

Al Waltman, assistant superintendent of personnel and head of the negotiating team for the board of education, said a special board meeting will probably be called "as soon as possible" to ratify the contract.

Dresser and Waltman said they would with hold details of the agreement, which includes a salary schedule for teachers for the coming year, until the agreement is presented to the teachers and the board.

With the agreement, Dist. 59 becomes the first elementary district in the area to reach an agreement with its teachers.

High School Dist 211, which includes Palatine and Schaumburg townships, announced a contract settlement two weeks ago which included a 3.75 per cent raise in teachers' salaries.

Base pay for a beginning teacher in Dist. 59 is now $7,600. Negotiations for the 1971-72 contract began in February, immediately after a settlement was reached in this year's contract.

Negotiations on this year's contract broke down last fall in a dispute between the teachers and the board over class size in the district.

Both teachers and the board charged each other with bad faith and the Teachers Council staged a one-day strike in February.

Agreement on the contract was reached following the strike. Included in that contract was a no-strike clause which is set to expire with the 1970-71 contract on June 24.

The tax rate referendum being held tomorrow by Dist. 59 contains no extra money for teachers' salaries and will not affect the settlement, district officials have said. Last month the Teachers Council officially endorsed the referendum.

Area Business Conference Set

Northwest suburban businessmen have been invited to a Business Development Conference from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Friday, June 25, at the Holiday Inn of Elk Grove Village, 1000 Busse Road.

The conference has been arranged by Rep. Philip M. Crane (R-13th), in cooperation with the United States Department of Commerce and several local chambers of commerce.

Representatives of five government agencies will speak at the conference.

Michael V. Simon, chief of the Domestic Trade Division in the Chicago field office of the Department of Commerce, will explain how the department may aid individual businesses. Lorne S. Kuffel, small business specialist of the Defense Contract Administration, will discuss contracting opportunities with the Department of Defense.

Discussing programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development will be George J. Vavoulis, regional administrator for HUD. Benjamin M. Copenhaver, regional director of business affairs, for the General Services Administration in Chicago, will explain selling to his agency. The deputy director of the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development, Donald L. Schilke, will explain the operations of that department.

Crane will address the participants at a luncheon after the conference.

The Elk Grove Village Association of Industry and Commerce will host the conference, cosponsored by chambers of commerce of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling.

Persons wishing to attend should contact James R. Gibson, executive secretary of the Elk Grove Village association.

Art Fair Sets Record

While temperature records were being broken last weekend, so was the participation record for the annual Mount Prospect Plaza art fair last Saturday and Sunday.

Altogether, 130 artists from the Midwest exhibited their work. It is the largest art fair yet hosted at the shopping plaza. An extensive selection of media was represented.

Awards were presented Sunday, the second and final day of the art fair. Ribbons, cash purchase prices plus numerous art supplies were awarded by the Mount Prospect Plaza Merchants Association.

Mildred Hamrin of Arlington Heights took a first place in oils. Palanda Graves, also of Arlington Heights, took second and Robert Blatliaez of Glen Ellyn took third. An honorable mention in oils went to Millie Warnick of Cauaga, Ind.

IN WATERCOLORS Glen Tammen of Park Ridge took first place; Donald Vanderleest of Racine, Wis., second; and Bernice Bay of Chicago, third. Honorable mention went to Ralph Furmanski of Des Plaines.

Gary Scott of Skokie took first place in sculpture. Second place went to Ed Jirasek of Arlington Heights, and Dick Erickson of Palatine came in third. Honorable mention was given to B. Smith of Mount Prospect.

Artisans receiving awards for their crafts were Stanley Jesunas of Evergreen Park, who took first place. Dorothy Holby of Elmhurst took second place,

Arlington Park Theatre

July Premiere Preparations

The new Arlington Park Theatre is in its final stage of construction in preparation for the July 1 opening.

Joan Fontaine and Ray Milland will star together in the premiere production, at the theater, "Relatively Speaking," a British comedy.

Already busy with rehearsals in New York, the two former Academy Award winners will arrive in Arlington Heights this Monday.

Douglas Seale is directing the Alan Ayckbourn play which will run through Aug. 22. He is the only director who has directed at all three Stratfordks: England, Canada and Connecticut.

From 1958 to 1960 he was associate director of the Old Vic. Off-Broadway Seale directed a revival of "The Importance of Being Earnest."

THIS SEASON SEALE, who is co-producing director at the Goodman Theatre of Chicago, directed "Lady Audley's Secret." There are rumors that David Merrick is interested in bringing that production to New York.

"Ticket sales are excellent," said David Lonn, one of two producers of the Arlington Park Theatre. Charles Booth is his partner.

While initial support is expected to be drawn from the Northwest suburban area, theatergoers from the entire Chicago area are showing interest in the new theater, according to Lonn.

"We expect to be sold out the entire run," he added. There is already an option to extend the play an additional two weeks if necessary.

THE ARENA-TYPE theater will seat 723 persons. No member of the audience is more than 23 feet from the edge of the stage.

" 'Relatively Speaking' is a comedy of errors," explained Lonn. "It is a very funny well constructed play which ran two years in London."

Ayckbourn's current play, "How the Other Half Loves," is now on Broadway with Phil Silvers.

A greater emphasis will be placed on comedy and comedy drama at Arlington Park Theatre rather than experimental or contemporary works. Lonn is most concerned with entertaining his audience.

"WE DON'T WANT people going out arguing over the meaning of what they've just seen," he said.

Future plays are still being discussed. While other big name stars have been contacted, no announcement has been made as to what play will follow the run of "Relatively Speaking."

"The important thing right now is getting the theater opened properly and developing an audience," continued Lonn.

However, long term plans for the theater do include hosting fashion shows, concerts and special programs during the day.

Further ideas include a children's theater and a special apprenticeship program to allow young talent to come in and learn.

THE NEW ARLINGTON Park Theatre is contiguous to the Arlington Park Towers Hotel and immediately west of the Arlington Park Race Track. Telephone reservations are now being accepted, 392-6800.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

The million plus readers of Rodale Publications were shocked to learn of J. I. Rodale's death Monday.

The founder of the organic gardening movement, Mr. Rodale expired while taping the Dick Cavett TV show.

Mr. Rodale pioneered the non-chemical farming and gardening approach in the 1940s. He was undaunted by ignorant skeptics anxious to attack the method without benefit of their own experience.

Events of the last few years have changed a lot of minds. Today organic gardening comes on strong again, this time with a greater impact because of increased public awareness of environmental problems.

All of us owe a debt of gratitude to J. I. Rodale, who left a sensitivity to soil as a lasting legacy.

HOW DOES YOUR garden grow? With aphids and ants, spittle bugs, and mealy bugs, borers and tent caterpilars, mites and moths, cottony scale and inchworms?

These are the worst problems this season. The spring cankerworms (also called inchworms, measuring worms) are so bad that area children are holding impromptu contests to see who can collect the most. I saw one child who had a bucket brimming full of the inchworms.

The total impact of the inchworm problem hit home when I went for a walk in the forest preserve earlier in the week. I saw many, many of the creepy crawlers dangling from spindly threads in the air, dropping off on my clothes.

I thought I heard the sound of rain when it wasn't raining. It finally dawned on me the sound was literally millions of inchworms eating their way through the foliage. It was an eerie and totally revolting experience.

IF WE DON'T GET the inchworms' natural predators, the ladybugs, released now in quantity, the inchworms will defoliate many, many trees this season. Tree Tanglefoot bands prevent the worms from crawling up the trunks.

If you are a homeowner, use these two suggestions as precautionary measures if you are fortunate enough to have escaped inchworm invasion thus far this season.

The pathetic thing about using insecticides is just that most people are uninformed as to their use and application.

The other day I walked up to a man who was using a spray in an area where it is banned.

"What's that you're using, sir?" I asked him.

"It's cucumber spray. If you don't spray cucumbers when they come up, the bugs will get them," he said.

"WHERE DID YOU hear that?" I asked.

"I don't know. Somebody told me," he responded.

"Have you ever tried onions, garlic or marigolds between the hills?" I offered.

"No, but I heard that was no good," he answered.

"What's the spray you're using?" I asked.

"I don't know. Just a spray," he said.

"Yes, but WHAT'S IN THE SPRAY?" I demanded.

"I don't know. I don't have time to talk. I just do what they tell me."

Dear Dorothy: A porcelain pot was left on a hot electric burner and some of the porcelain adhered solidly to the burner ring. Is there a way to get it off?—Mrs. J. C. Gidel.

No. Some of it might wear off, but that's it. It doesn't look good, but it won't affect the burner's efficiency.

Dear Dorothy: Overheard two young mothers on the bus complaining that their babies were allergic to plastic or rubber panties — and wondering what to do about it. It has been my experience that most mothers don't change the baby's diaper as often when these panties are worn, and with the airtight panty on, the moisture couldn't help but aggravate the tender skin of the infant. That may not be the answer for all babies, but I believe that if diapers were changed more often, there would be less of this talk about the baby being allergic to the protective panties.—Ida G.

Boxing Dead? Elk Grove Teenager Builds Ring, Hopes To Form Club

Larry Mlynczak

DO YOU REMEMBER when you used to sit anxiously on Friday nights in front of the television waiting for the magic words

"This is Don Dunphy in Madison Square Garden for tonight's fight between . . . "

Ah, yes

Of course for most of us, we never did get into a ring with the gloves on and discover how difficult boxing actually is

Because of never getting into the actual battle, one can continue to dream that you could possibly be standing over a fallen Joe Frazier as the referee started the count After all, Joe Frazier looks small, even when standing next to Johnny Carson on TV And Ali proved that Frazier is so EEEASY to hit

But watching a boxing match on television or at ringside is an all together different story than climbing through the ropes and going at it toe-to-toe with another guy.

Wednesday I had the opportunity to climb into the ring and box a couple of rounds with Dan Connelly, an amateur fighter in Elk Grove who is featured by Herald sports writer Jim Cook on this page

As of this date I have not gone looking for Connelly for a rematch. I've had enough

I did not go into his ring as a complete novice since I did have a little experience from my days as a kid in the West Palm Beach Park District boxing program But I soon discovered that I was a better boxer and in much better condition as a 12-year-old than I am now.

I now know how Archie Moore must have felt when he fought the young Cassius Clay when Moore was 46 or 48 or 52 years old — whatever age he was telling folks at the time. Moore was an old, tired, washed-up fighter when he fought Clay. And so was I when I went against Connelly — despite the fact I am less than half of Moore's age.

My entire strategy was based on what I told Connelly as soon as we put on the gloves — "Let's take it easy."

We tapped gloves a couple of times as we danced around the ring — he in a remarkably fluid style for such an inexperienced fighter and I in a remarkably cloddy style along the same lines as Dick Stuart fielding a ground ball.

Now immediately I was worried. Footwork used to be my main asset in my short career But my problems were just beginning

He threw his first jab and I caught it on my right glove just like you're supposed to. But, somehow, as his jab peppered against my right hand, my own glove slammed me in the jaw.

He threw another jab. And again my own glove popped against my jaw And again. And again. I figured I was going to be the first fighter in the history of the game to be knocked out without the other guy landing a punch.

After I finally solved the problem of knocking out my own self, I started getting a little fancy and began throwing punches of my own. Unfortunately, Connelly is six-feet-one and I am five-feet-nine After taking three jabs on the tab of the head while landing maybe one punch on his chest for four different exchanges, I knew that Muhammad Ali would have a tougher time fighting Wilt Chamberlain than anyone would expect

After only three or four minutes of sparring, the Archie Moore weariness set in The arms became too heavy to lift, the legs refused to move and my chest was heaving as I gasped for air. I was one tired boxer.

It was just about this time that Connelly dropped his right hand to come in for a punch to my midsection.

Wop!

I tagged him.

Right under the chin.

And down he went

I still don't know who was more stunned by this event. I'm sure my look of disbelief matched his.

He wasn't hurt by any means because he had fallen due more to a slip than to the power of my left hand.

But he came up a bit surprised and a bit angry. And right then and there I ended the round. You learn that from experience I didn't want an angry and conditioned Dan Connelly coming after this tired out of shape sports writer.

Between rounds I talked extremely fast to him — I wanted him to know that I was very VERY sorry that I hit him and no hard feelings, okay?

Thankfully, he took it easy with me in the second go-round and we just tapped gloves a few more times. But suddenly at one point of our session, he landed a hard right hand right on the button. My knees buckled and my head blurred but I stayed on my feet and still retained enough sense to yell out, "That's it, I'm done!"

And thus concluded another — and the final — chapter of my boxing carrer.

That's right, I'm hanging up my gloves

And that should make Joe Frazier breathe a little easier.

by JIM COOK

When most of his classmates are on their way home from school, Elk Grove High junior Dan Connelly is busy trying to pick a fight.

Dan is hardly "the village bully" at only six-feet and 165 pounds, but instead, is hoping to rejuvenate the so-called "dying sport of boxing"

Chicago rekindled interest in the recreation by opening its doors to enthusiasts through park district programs. To non-eligible suburbanites, though, boxing remained relatively foreign with an infrequent televised bout supplying the lone source of association with the sport.

Until now, anyway.

Young Dan inherited a vein of boxing blood from his grandfather who fought professionally, from his dad who went unbeaten in armed forces competition, and from a close neighbor who bagged an Olympic gold medal for Germany, the Canadian middleweight crown and later served as a sparring partner for Sugar Ray Robinson.

The versatile Grenadier athlete, who plays football and has just earned his insignia as a member of the baseball team, took matters into his own hands and literally laid the groundwork to relieve his inhibitions.

Over three months ago, Dan dreamed of having a boxing ring right in his own backyard. With a little inspiration, a dash of improvisation and a lot of hard work, the dream became reality.

Dan conquered the high cost of materials for his regulation 20x20-foot arena by salvaging some of the scrap lumber cast off at one of the construction sites in the area. The "ropes" circumscribing the square are rubber hoses while the "canvas" consists of discarded carpeting. Dan even restored an old tarpaulin to protect the ring from the elements.

"About the only thing we had to pay for were the nails, and even they were expensive," the history maor explained. "My dad is getting us some turn-buckles, so we're in pretty good shape."

Instead of the curdling blood bath that so often stereotypes a boxing ring, Dan was quick to interject his own philosophy. "My purpose isn't to try to hurt anybody out there, but to try to outmaneuver them. Even if you don't land (a punch), you still get satisfaction from out-guessing them."

Dan, a great fan of Muhammad Ali and Sugar Ray, has been waiting for the ring's completion date for some time now. "I've been working out regularly — running about five miles a day, doing sit-ups, neck bridges, skipping rope and sparring with anyone who wants to."

With brothers in seventh and eighth grade, he usually doesn't have to look far for competition. "My dad and grandfather have been trying to teach us some of the fundamentals. That's the first step."

To a career?

"No," he said. "I'd like to fight in the armed forces like my dad did, but not as a career."

For now, Dan would be happy just to initiate a club for other interested boxers. "I took karate lessons for two and one-half months at the park district and I'd like to get them interested in boxing."

Once the 16-year-old sets his sights on doing something, it usually gets done. If he's after a boxing program, he just may get one.

I, for one, am not about to argue with him.

THE BEST IN Sports

HOW DO CARDS DO IT?

Dear Sirs

The Paddock Cup continues collecting dust in the same old trophy case. Arlington is to be congratulated for winning it for the fourth straight year. (Editor's note: Paddock Publications awards the Cup for overall superiority in varsity sports in the Mid-Suburban Legue)

My question is: How does the same school keep doing it year after year? What is it about Arlington that consistently produces the best teams, particularly in tennis, swimming and football?

After four yers in a row, it can't be coincidence. It seems that other schools in the league draw from the same general area, with about the same social structure, same kinds of family backgrounds, same opportunities to learn athletics and same fine coaching.

So why is Arlington always the best? Is it psychological or some sort of mystique? Does the sight of the big "A" cause other teams to tighten up and perform below their capacity in the big contests? I thought your staff might have some opinions on this.

Name Withheld by Request

First of all, swimming is not a recognized sport in the league and does not count in the Paddock Cup standings.

We doubt that other teams are "psyched out" by Arlington. The biggest factors in their superiority seem to be pride and tradition now, believing in themselves with extreme confidence, coaching that goes beyond just fundamentals, and some outstanding sports programs in Arlington Heights for pre-high schoolers.

Just look at the way tennis players are developed, starting with very ambitious park district programs and a coordination with the park district and high school. Other towns have park district programs in several sports, but not all as well-organized or extensive. It takes co-operation down the line to develop any strong program.

Just a slight edge each year in other sports makes a dig difference when final Cup standings are added up. — Larry Everhart.

DISLIKES TOURNEY

Dear Sirs·

As stated in Larry Everhart's column last week, a new procedure in Ninth District American Legion junior baseball will be to include only five teams instead of eight in the post-season tournament to determine which team advances to the County playoffs.

Though this is better than the ridiculous system in past years of including all eight teams in the league tournament, I still feel it is wrong to choose a County representative by a tourney. This is quite rare, as most other legion leagues in the Chicago area and elsewhere simply send the first-place winner from the regular season to the county playoffs.

I feel the same should be the case in the Ninth District. The schedule has been expanded to 21 games this season and any team which can finish first over that many games deserves to advance automatically, instead of having to survive games with mediocre fourth and fifth-place teams who should not have the chance in the first place.

Legion player (name withheld)

Sorry, but I agree with the system as it stands. I feel it sends a more worthy representative to County play. In many cases there may be a fifth-place team that hits its stride near the end of the regular schedule and by tourney time is the best team in the league. In such a case it should not be deprived the chance to stay alive. The first-place team should have to prove that it is still the best at the end of the season. — Larry Everhart

RAH-RAH ANNOUNCERS

Dear Sirs:

The word is out about Chicago's rah-rah announcers Did you see the article in the latest Sporting News? Stan Fischler writes a column talking about the network television coverage of the Stanley Cup finals.

He talks about Phil Esposito as a color man, how some people didn't think Esposito added any information about the game we didn't already know, and then adds, " . . . but when compared to the Black Hawks' radio announcer Harvey Wittenberg, whose color account of the Chicago-Montreal series was piped over WNBC-New York, Phil was superb.

"Wittenberg was guilty of a brand of rah-rah reporting that should have gone out with the dirigible."

Harry Dennington
Mount Prospect

Wittenberg was indeed talking like a Chicago fan, which was inappropriate for a New York broadcast. But it's not surprising for Chicago's broadcasters. Actually, Harvey is one of the least offensive. — Bob Frisk.

ROLLER-COASTER RIDE

Dear Sirs

So the roller-coaster Cubs are doing it to their fans again. Win a few, lose a few, rarely gain any ground They build up hopes one day and let you down the next It's a .500 ball club and a .500 ball club frustrates you 81 times every season. It's not worth the frustration. Not year after year.

Bring on professional football. Even if the Bears don't win, the sport itself is a lot more interesting. And we don't have to suffer more than once a week.

Stanley Bobak
Wheeling

If you were smart, you would have jumped off the stalled bandwagon two years ago and moved to Baltimore or New York. Nobody likes a loser, especially a consistent one. Apparently, with 1971 attendance figures on an even keel with last year's million and one-half pace, Cub fans have finally accepted the live-a-little, die-a-little, consolation atmosphere. As far as the Bears are concerned — I haven't even gone swimming yet this summer. Slow down, will you? — Jim Cook.

Teachers To Remember Bitter End To Harper Talks

by TOM WELLMAN

A News Analysis

The 1971-72 salary negotiations at Harper College in Palatine won't be remembered by faculty members, administrators or board members for the size of the salary hike.

As teachers have observed in the wake of the settlement, announced May 27, salary increases in the end were not the issue.

What will be recalled, especially by the faculty, will be the bitter conclusion of the 1971-72 talks, a conclusion which Martin Ryan, president of the Faculty Senate, derounced last Thursday as a violation of "decency and good faith."

To a majority of board members and administrators, the board okayed a settlement because there was simply no more time—in their minds— to bargain. Besides, they assert talks had been stalemated by "backward progress" by the Faculty Senate negotiating team.

To many of the teachers at the four-year-old community college, "decency" would have been to allow the Senate and faculty to act on the package.

FINALLY. TO A reporter covering the story, the entire situation is a mass of faculty charges, quiet countercharges and the inevitable confusion which follows two months of closed door negotiations.

Two particular issues — "good faith" and "unionism" — are the issues which will be remembered much longer than the monetary settlement. They are issues which relate to the overall state of health of the college's faculty.

"Good faith" was one of the many points Ryan hurled at the board last Thursday. He said an inherent part of the negotiations process has been violated when the faculty was not allowed to vote on the package approved by the board.

Board member Jessalyn Nicklas, chairman of the board's team, quietly replied the board had no other choice but to approve the package, as no time was left for further negotiations.

In private, board members and administrators added the Faculty Senate team had shown "bad faith" on several occasions during the talks.

RYAN FURTHER charged that a letter, advising faculty members to return signed contracts by June 4 or the teachers would be considered unemployed, had "all the scared bravado of a twelve year old on the brink of puberty."

Such charges — as well as a charge that President Robert Lahti told Ryan that negotiations could not go beyond the end of school — reflect the mood of members of the Faculty and the Faculty Senate.

Communications in the past two years between the Senate and the board has been reasonably open. However, especially last year, as tenure and grievance procedures were developed, some faculty members were upset about what they felt was a "deceptiveness" from the board and administration.

"Unionism" is the second concern. State officials and others assert they don't want a union, but they state that this year's negotiations may bring one closer to Harper.

ADMINISTRATORS ARGUE that a union—and union contracts—lurked in the background during negotiations. It is clear college officials fear a union.

Whether a union would be desirable for faculty members is a much-debated point. Several years ago, the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) and the Illinois Education Assn. (IEA) talked to Harper teachers. There was little interest at that time in affiliation.

However, affiliation and unionization is the national trend. As Newsweek points out this week, community colleges, lacking entrenched academic status, are likely to face increased collective bargaining and unionization.

And Harper administrators fear the community will suffer financially if the college is locked into agreements with AFT or NEA-IEA. Thus, they fear unionization or affiliation.

The college's faculty, however, is passive, not militan, further, the job market for college professors is bleak, and there's little serious interest at this point in activism. The faculty's refusal to mount a fierce battle against college officials in the wake of the latest dispute is a sign of that passivity.

BUT PASSIVITY does not equal unconcern. By and large the Harper faculty is troubled and concerned about certain aspects of Harper life.

This winter, the Herald interviewed three faculty members, one of whom is a member of the Faculty Senate. All three indicated Harper is a first-rate community college, and they find it generally a progressive institution.

But the three were sharply critical of top-level administration and the board. They asserted that unilateral, insensitive actions typified many moves by both board and administration.

This year's settlement only encourages the discontent which exists at Harper The faculty — perhaps mainly the more active, concerned members — thus feels alienated.

There's a trent in higher education to include faculty on all levels in governing and leading colleges. But Harper, through its emphasis on management techniques, has excluded the general faculty from having meaningful power at the college, many teachers feel.

AN INDICATION OF the discontent is the turnover in division heads. This year three have resigned, and the same number resigned in the preceding year. Some resignations mirror the discontent.

When teachers return to the regular session this fall, they will gain an average 6.83 per cent salary increase. Promotion in rank will mean an automatic 10 per cent hike, and medical and hospitalization benefits will climb, with the college paying the bill.

Statistics provided by the college's administration reveal the settlement is indeed generous. In comparison to profiles prepared by several state and national educational groups, the total increase—8.565 per cent in the budget—is agreed by teachers to be generous.

The board members generally feel the settlement is fair. But many faculty members won't remember the money; they'll remember what they believe is a breach in "decency" by the board.

Fox River Line Doesn't Need Amtrak

The Fox River Line doesn't need Amtrak to keep passenger trains operating.

The 1.5 mile electric short-line thrives on passenger business and started its annual operation Memorial Day weekend, running some of America's oldest and most colorful trolleys and electric inter-urban cars from its terminal and museum at South Elgin.

Located on Rte. 31, west of the Fox River, the Fox River line follows the right-of-way of the Aurora, Elgin & Fox River Electric line, built in 1896.

One of the line's most popular attractions is a unique open-air streetcar, typical of those used around 1910. This car is the last of its type operating in the Midwest.

The line's equipment also includes "Roarin' Elgin" No. 316. Typical of a more luxurious era, the car has leaded glass windows and inlaid wooden interior.

Other attractions are America's oldest inter-urban car still in existence — Chicago, Aurora and Elgin Car 20, built in 1902; a 1910 work car constructed by J. G. Brill Co.; a dining-tavern-lounge car used in the 1920's by the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee; and a two-truck, open air trolley from Brazil, built in 1913 and used until 1962.

The museum is open Sundays and holidays, 11 a.m. to dusk. Trolley rides (20 minutes) cost 60 cents for adults and 30 cents for children. The trolleys, which seat 50, are available Saturdays for charter.

AN OPEN-AIR street car built in 1909 still carries passengers on Sundays and holidays during the summer for the Fox River Line. Besides short rides on the trolley, there's a museum with other historic rail cars.

High School Costs Up

High school education will cost suburban taxpayers a little more this year.

In High School Dists. 211 and 214, the 1970 tax rates have increased.

Dist. 211 taxpayers will pay about 3½-cents more per $100 assessed valuation, Dist. 214, 20-cents more.

School officials in Dist. 211 attribute the increase to a 2-cent hike in the Education Fund rate, and need to over-levy slightly in the Bond and Interest, and Rent Funds to make up deficits.

"In past years, we have levied for the exact amount. Since no one has 100 per cent tax collections, these funds have been slightly behind. We hope to catch them up this year," James Slater, Dist. 211 business manager, said.

A final breakdown of Dist. 211's tax rates by fund is not available pending county clerk office decision.

Dist. 211's total rate will increase from $2.70 to $2.73 per $100 assessed valuation.

Taxpayers in Dist. 214 will feel an 8 per cent increase, compared to 12 per cent last year.

The district's 1970 tax rate is $2.47 per $100 assessed valuation. Last year it was $2.27.

All funds but two have increased this year. The Transportation Fund rate has decreased from 8-cents to 3-cents and the Working Cash Fund, levied at its maximum, is 5-cents.

Largest rate increase is in the Bond and Interest Fund, the Building Fund and the Education Fund, from which

by RALPH NOVAK

The preliminaries are over, the choir is silent, the mood is right and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, dressed in black, pink and red floral-patterned shirt and gray vest suit, strides slowly to the lectern in the middle of the stage at Dr. King's Workshop.

He stands for a moment, looking at the audience-congregation, two-thirds black, that has come this Saturday morning to the weekly Operation Breadbasket meeting, a combination revival-political rally-business conference. The crowd quiets and looks at him expectantly.

"I am somebody, he says softly and they echo, "I am somebody."

"I AM somebody," he says softly, and they return, "I am somebody."

"I am SOMEBODY," he says and they answer, "I am SOMEBODY."

"I AM SOMEBODY," he says and the response roars back at him, "I AM SOMEBODY."

Jackson has brought his people together and made them more than the sum of their parts. It is his specialty.

AT 29, JESSE Jackson is heir apparent to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. as the leader of America's blacks. As national director of the economic action arm of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), Operation Breadbasket, he technically ranks below the stolid Dr. Ralph Abernathy, SCLC president, in the civil rights chain of command.

But Jackson's drive and charisma are pushing him to the forefront of the intellectually militant wing of the black power movement. It was he who called together most of the nation's elected black officials for a recent weekend meeting here that led to a serious and potentially significant call for formation of a third national political party.

"There is only one man who could have gathered all of these leaders here," said Cleveland Mayor Carl Stokes, one of the officials who attended. "That man is Jesse Jackson."

Jackson explained his role in a subsequent interview:

"I think of myself as being in the prophetic tradition, not in the political tradition. I saw that, since Dr. King died, no black leader has had the authority necessary to turn ideas into facts of history. Nobody has been in a position to coordinate things. So I sent out some telegrams and the people came."

Jackson has refused to become involved in post-meeting speculation about who the third party's candidate would be, other than to say it won't be him.

"It can be Stokes or John Conyers (a congressman from Detroit) or Percy Sutton (Manhattan Borough president); it doesn't matter," he says. "What's important is that the idea of a black man running for president is loose in the universe now. What's important is that we establish that there is no reason for a man not to run for president just because he's black."

THOUGH THE history of third parties in America is not an encouraging one for political mavericks he is more than serious about making an impact in next year's elections.

"We want to represent all the people who are locked out of the political process: not just the blacks, but the youth of this country and the women," Jackson says.

The dramatic increase in the number of black elected public officials — there are more than 1,000 now — encourages Jackson.

"We're in a time of economic and political change, and the two are so interwoven that you have to work on both of them at the same time," he sais. "Politics administers the economic order and determines the priorities of where money is spent. Up to now, our economic interests have been stifled by a lack of political power."

REV. JESSE JACKSON

Jackson's Breadbasket program in Chicago has worked toward both economic and political ends. The economic drive has been highlighted by boycotts designed to improve the blacks' employment situation and the political drive by Jackson's campaign to run for mayor against Richard J. Daley in this spring's election.

The boycotts have been successful but Jackson never even got on the mayoral ballot because of an Illinois law that requires independent candidates to obtain 10 times as many signatures on nomination petitions as regular party candidates. Jackson tried unsuccessfully to have the law declared unconstitutional and took it all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, which ruled against him.

"That whole idea of me running for mayor was designed to educate people to the political scandal that exists," he said, "and that decision told you something about the Supreme Court."

Born in Greenville, S.C., Jackson was an outstanding athlete and attended the University of Illinois for two years on a football scholarship before he decided he was being taken advantage of and transferred to North Carolina A&T at Greensboro, N.C., where he began his civil rights career.

Now he has become the dominant force in Chicago's black community and a dominant force in the national black community.

Charge Youth With Auto Theft

A 17-year-old Des Plaines youth was arrested and charged with stealing an automobile Wednesday evening after he was involved in a minor accident near Axehead Lake, Touhy and River roads, Des Plaines.

Arrested was Wayne William Daszek, 2221 Sprucewood Dr.

Des Plaines police said the car involved in the accident in a parking lot near the lake was reported stolen earlier from a parking lot at Oakton and Lee streets. The car, was reported stolen by Virginia Banks, of 1828 Webster Ln.

Daszek was reportedly apprehended by an off-duty Chicago policeman when Daszek and two other youths in the car allegedly began running after the accident. The other two youths escaped, according to police.

Daszek was turned over to forest preserve police, who notified Des Plaines police.

The youth was later released on $2,500 bond, awaiting a June 29 court date in Niles.

Education Advisors Named

Two area residents have been appointed to serve on a northern Cook and Lake County advisory board by Supt. of Public Instruction Michael Bakalis.

Jan Bone of Palatine and Judith Bradish of Schaumburg are two of 17 citizens serving on the council, one of 12 set up statewide.

Establishment of the citizen advisory councils fulfills a campaign pledge to involve Illinois citizens in the educational decision-making process, Bakalis said.

"Education can no longer be the domain of educators. It must be a joint venture. I would want these councils to provide me with the thoughts, feelings, and needs of their area so that I can develop plans designed to meet their particular needs," he said.

The Northern Lake-Cook County Advisory Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Highland Park Holiday Inn and Lake-Cook Road and Edens.

"I would also ask that these councils serve as a sounding board to listen to our programs and to present to me their thoughts as these programs pertain to their area," Bakalis continued. He will chair the Monday meeting and present his thoughts to the council on its function in the educational system.

Members of the Northern Cook-Lake County Council includes residents of Chicago, Lincolnwood, Skokie, Harwood Heights, Crystal Lake, Waukegan, Barrington, Evanston, Deerfield, Winnetka and Wilmette.

Harper Signup Not Limited

Summer school registration at Harper College in Palatine has not been limited to students now in the Northwest suburbs.

A college spokesman Wednesday reported heavy telephone registration early this week, including phone calls from students currently located in California and Canada.

He said the calls were from students who planned to be back at Harper for the start of classes next week.

TODAY IS THE final day of registration for credit courses. Students whose last names begin with the following letter should register at the following times: Mi-Mz, 9 a.m.; N, 9:30; O, 10; P, 10:30; Q-R, 11; S-Si, 11:30; Si-Sz, 1 p.m.; T, 1:30; U-V, 2; W-X-Y-Z, 2:30, and those unable to meet the schedule, at 3.

Registration for noncredit courses is under way and will continue until Friday, June 25. Students may register from 4 to 9 p.m. in Room 213, Building A.

A variety of graduate and senior level extension courses is offered by Harper this summer in conjunction with Northern Illinois University and Ball State University.

All Northern offerings are three-hour courses and the tuition is $30 a semester hour, while the Ball State offerings are four-hour courses and the tuition is $20 a quarter hour.

Tuition charges for regular, credit courses are $10 per semester hour. A $5 student activity fee is payable at the time of registration. Students registering for the first time pay a nonrefundable $10 application fee.

The Palatine community college is at Algonquin and Roselle roads. Further information can be obtained by calling the admissions office, 359-4200.

House OKs Health Unit Bill

Legislation sponsored by Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, to establish a seven-member Health Facilities Authority for Illinois was passed this week by the House of Representatives by a vote of 134-0.

The bill would create an authority with power to issue revenue bonds for the construction of hospital facilities which could then be leased to public or nonprofit private health organizations. The authority would also be empowered to loan money to such organizations for construction of health facilities.

According to Mrs. Chapman, the authority's power to issue long-term, low-interest bonds could reduce by approximately half the interest rates required for hospitals to borrow money for construction of new facilities.

She said one hospital administrator estimated the per-patient cost of interest could be reduced from $9 to $5 per day through the use of revenue bonds. Revenue bonds, said Mrs. Chapman, would also make possible new hospital construction at no cost to the taxpayer.

A similar bill sponsored by Mrs. Chapman was approved two years ago by both houses of the legislature, but was vetoed by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie. The governor indicated in a recent health message to the General Assembly, however, he would now approve the measure, Mrs. Chapman said.

Final Vows Made

Brother Thomas Plunkett, C.S.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Plunkett Sr., formerly of 960 Beau Drive, Des Plaines and now of Lakeview, Ark., made his final vows as a Holy Cross Brother in Ceremonies at Moreau Seminary, Notre Dame, recently. He is food service manager at the Seminary.

Clerk Reports 9 Per Cent Rise In Assessed Valuation

Des Plaines city officials received reports this week from the Cook County Clerk's office which show a 9 per cent raise in the assessed evaluation of property in the city.

The reports also show a rise in the total tax rates for Maine and Elk Grove townships.

The City of Des Plaines received notice that its 1970 assessed valuation is $295,542,519, nine per cent over its 1969 valuation of $270,899,158, according to Duane Blietz, city comptroller.

The property assessment is higher, Blietz said, because of new industrial development, new buildings in downtown Des Plaines, and state adjustments in assessment standards.

The city received checks this week totalling $3,659.99, representing the first revenue to the city from the 1970 property taxes. The city expects to receive more than $2 million this year, Blietz said.

Blietz also announced at the Monday night city council meeting that the tax rate for Des Plaines property in Maine Township had risen from the 1969 rate of $68.68 per $1,0000 of assessed valuation to $72.94. A homeowner whose property has been assessed at $10,000 would pay $729.40 in taxes.

Of the $72.94 per $1000 assessed valuation, the city will receive 9.9 per cent, or $7.22. In 1969, the city received 8 per cent or 5.50 in taxes per $1000 in assessed valuton.

The 1971 Des Plaines budget was $8.6 million, up 16 per cent over the 1970 budget, reflecting city employe salary raises and increased costs.

The higher township tax rate also reflects several new tax levies, created as a result of recent court decisions. These are levies for township government, its road and bridge and general assistance funds. They represent 1.2 per cent of the total tax rate, or about 86 cents per $1000 assessed valuation.

Des Plaines School Dist. 62 will receive 35.9 per cent of the local tax revenues, and it has a tax rate of $26.22 per $1000 assessed valuation.

Other large tax rates in Maine are from Maine Township High School Dist. 207, which receives 34.1 per cent, with a tax rate of $24.84 per $1000 assessed valuation.

The Des Plaines park district will receive 4 per cent, or $7.22 per $1000 assessed valuation.

The tax rate in the portion of Des Plaines in Elk Grove Township went up from the 1969 rate of $66.92 per $1000 assessed valuation to $72.16.

Of the $72.16, the city's $7.22 share is about 10 per cent of the total compared to 8.2 per cent in 1969.

School Dist. 59 will receive 33.9 per cent of the tax revenues, and it has a tax rate of 24.48 per $1000 of assessed valuation.

High School Dist. 214 will receive 34.3 per cent of tax revenues,and it has a tax rate of $24.74.

Also added was a tax levy for Elk Grove Township and for Elk Grove general assistance of about 62 cents per $1000 assessed valuation.

Schlickman Philosophical About Panel's Success

by ROBERT LAHEY

When Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, assumed the role which would put him in the middle of the controversial "parochiaid" issue, he faced a couple of major challenges.

One was to calm the emotions aroused by the proposal to give public money to private — particularly parochial — schools. The other was to avoid pitfalls that would produce legislation — if any — which would be struck down by the Supreme Court is an almost certain legal test.

But in the beginning, Schlickman said, he wasn't sure there would be any legislative proposal.

"At the outset," he said, "I was not a proponent of public aid to nonpublic schools."

He got into the issue when private school aid was first proposed in the General Assembly in the spring of 1969. Schlickman countered with a bill to establish the Elementary and Secondary Nonpublic Schools Study Commission, to determine first if there should be an aid program.

The legislature accepted his bill and tabled the other legilation. On Aug. 15, 1969, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie appointed Schlickman to the chairmanship of the commission, the traditional role for the principal sponsor.

As a first step to giving the commission a posture of impartiality, Schlickman asked Sen. Harris Fawell, R-Naperville, a leading opponent of parochiaid, to serve as vice chairman. "I felt it was important to provide prominence. to his position," Schlickman explained.

To cover all points of view, the 14-member commission agreed to conduct a series of public hearings, retain education experts to study the question, and employ legal experts on the constitutional questions.

THE COMMISSION quickly enlisted legal experts from the University of Chicago and Loyola University. "I felt it was important that we also have a representative from a public school," said Schlickman. So he obtained the services of a University of Illinois law professor.

Then came another concession to the opposition viewpoint. Though the commission had agreed on three constitutional advisers, Fawell wanted to seek out one expert opposed to the aid question "both as policy and as law."

So the chairman agreed to retain Byron Miller, an attorney active in the American Civil Liberties Union.

Midway in his study of reports by the educational researchers from the University of Chicago, Schlickman said, he began to lean in favor of supplying aid to nonpublic schools.

"Toward the end, I found that my primary concern was becoming not whether we should have a program, but what kind it should be."

It is a tribute to the objectivity of the commissioners, said Schlickman that all underwent some degree of change in their opinions. At the beginning, most were ready to accept the original legislation, which would have provided limited tution grants for students in nonpublic schools.

But when it came time to draft legislation, the majority felt they needed to establish "a new direction" for education.

Though Fawell did not share that view, he was ready to accept auxiliary services, such as providing textbooks and "loaning" teachers to nonpublic schools, according to Schlickman.

BUT THE MAJORITY said Schlickman, felt "we should establish the right of parents to choose the kind of education they wanted for their children and should recognize the contribution of the nonpublic schools."

The principal bill, with an appropriation of $20.5 million, to establish grants of $60 to parents of elementary school children and $90 for secondary students, was approved 11 to 2 by the commission.

Another, providing grants of actual cost of like education in public schools for families with incomes under $3,000, was favored by all but Fawell. The third, to establish a board to encourage innovative programs between public and private schools, won unanimous approval.

The commission then went after support of legislators before introducing the bills—and emerged with enough names as sponsors to ensure passage in the House and to give them a running start in the Senate.

Ninety names appeared on the bills introduced in the House, more than needed for passage in the 177-member body. There were from 26 to 28 sponsors in the Senate, where 30 votes are needed for passage.

The package was approved by the Senate by votes of 34-23, 31-26 and 34-21. Identical legislation breezed through the House on a vote of 119-56.

A COURT TEST of the legislation is likely after it receives Gov. Ogilvie's signature and Schlickman is optimistic about the outcome.

He pointed out that a recent series of decisions has indicated that the U. S. Supreme Court will allow some aid to parochial schools, if it is "properly structured." Two theories of law which have won court favor, he said are the "child benefit theory" and the "purchase of services" theory.

Under the first, the court may accept the aid plan if the primary benefit is to the parent as a taxpayer and not to the private school system. Under the second the state may be allowed to "purchase" the educational service of a private school if the cost is not greater than if the state would provide the service.

Schlickman is philosophical about both the success of the commission and about being the central figure is a politically sticky issue. Also the chairman of study commissions on municipal planning and zoning, he notes that "I have personally lost some support on all three issues."

The greatest satisfaction in the school study, he said, has been remarks by both opponents and proponents that his efforts were fair to both. "I have probably picked up some mixed opposition," he said, "but you have to feel that you have also acquired some respect."

Explorer Scout Meets The President, Humphrey, Lovell

Jim Doescher's trip to Washington, D.C. included President Nixon, former Vice President Hubert Humphrey, astronaut James Lovell, and U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-10.

Jim, 16, of 2119 Chase, Des Plaines, was one of seven Northwest suburban Explorer Scouts who attended the National Explorer President's Conference last week in Washington.

More than 2,000 Explorer Scouts spent three days meeting with representatives and electing youth officers for the 330,000 member national youth organization.

THE FIRST EVENT was a reception on the White House lawn, Jim told the Herald.

President Nixon praised the scouts for their leadership and said this is the "age of youth," according to Jim.

Nixon looked a lot "more alive," Jim said, than he does on television. "He's a man I've always wanted to meet. He seemed good natured, and his speech made sense," Jim said.

The scouts stayed at one of Washington's largest hotels, the Sheraton Park, in the Northwest quadrant of the city.

After a buffet supper, the Scouts met to nominate vice presidents, who would represent them in the elections of an Explorer president.

The next day, Scouts from each state met with their representatives. That's when Rep. Crane spoke to the scouts, Jim said.

That night, the scouts were addressed by Humphrey and Lovell.

The next day, some scouts went sightseeing at the Capitol, the Smithsonian Institute, and the Supreme Cout.

The largest event was a convention in which vice presidents from various regions in the United States were elected. This event was handled like a national political convention, Jim said.

THE HOUSE MINORITY Leader, Gerald Ford, R-Mich., presided over the convention.

Scouts put on their own variety show, as a final event, Jim said.

Jim has been a Scout for four years, and is a member of Explorer Post 13. Conrad Henrich, 2356 Scott, is the post advisor. The Explorer post specializes in learning about automobile mechanics, Jim said.

Jim is a student at Maine West High School, 1755 S. Wolf, Des Plaines. He attended Thacker School and Iroquois Junior High, 1836 E. Touhy.

He has two brothers, Tim, 13 and Billy, 5, and a sister, Kim, 10. His parents are Wilmer and Joyce Doescher.

NEC Unit Drawing Up Hiring Policy

A three-man committee of the Northwest Education Cooperative (NEC) is to draw up an area-wide policy on conflict-of-interest in hiring personnel.

Richard Schlott, the NEC's representative from Arlington Heights Dist. 25, announced Saturday the committee would meet shortly to develop a policy.

He explained the committee would consider the employment of board-related persons, and he said he expected a "hard-nosed" policy to be developed.

Schlott explained the committee had been approved at the May 8 meeting of the NEC governing board, two weeks before the Herald disclosed three members of the High School Dist. 214 board had wives employed in that district.

"Our only specific charge was to consider hiring policies as a general area," Schlott said. Other members of the committee are Clark Robinson, representing Dist. 26, and John Wightman, executive director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO).

On Wednesday, May 26, the Herald revealed that three board members in Dist. 214 — Jack Costello, Joseph Schiffhaur and Jack Matthews — bad wives employed in the district as instructional assistants.

Employment of the women in the district is not illegal, according to attorneys for the state and county superintendents and the district.

Allyn Franke, attorney for Dist. 214, reported an Illinois Attorney General's opinion states that, when a district employs a woman, she is hired as an individual and not as part of a husband-wife "team."

Thus, there're no legal grounds to fire the wife of a board member, Franke reported.

The three board members said they did not regard the situation as illegal or unethical, and they said they would not vote on salary matters involving their wives.

Dist. 214 has no policy forbidding such employment. However, Dist. 211, which serves Palatine and Schaumburg Twps., has the following policy: "No relative of a member of the board may be employed by the school."

Harper College in Palatine has a policy which prohibits any relative of a board member from being considered for any teaching, administrative or classified staff position unless all other sources of personnel have been exploited and no other reasonably qualified candidates are available.

A Dash Of Tom Sawyer In Jamaica

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Rutherford Shirley is the captain of a bamboo raft.

He'll tell his passengers he's a good captain and within a few minutes they're convinced.

Armed with only a long bamboo pole, Rutherford pilots the raft it took him days to build through the rapids of the Martha Brae River with ease and finesse.

Shirley is a 26-year-old Jamaican who looks like he's about 19. He's one of dozens of "captains" who maneuver their crude, but effective craft down the river a few miles outside Montego Bay.

Rafting on the Martha Brae is one of the newest tourist attractions set up by the Jamaica Tourist Board. The hour-long float through the jungle-like surroundings is near perfect solitude — broken only by Rutherford's running commentary on the trees, plants, birds and legends of the "country" area of the sundrenched Caribbean isle.

THERE'S NOTHING really special about Shirley. He's just like every other Jamaican. But that's what makes him special. It's also what makes Jamaica a special place to visit.

"My name is Rutherford Shirley and I'll be your captain on this trip," he tells his two passengers, their faces painfully red from a little too much Jamaica sun.

THEY'RE BOTH A little embarrassed at first because they didn't quite understand him. Obviously accustomed to the slight language barrier, he repeats himself and his lips tighten as the smile stretches across his face.

Shortly after he poles the long raft from its dock Rutherford turns again to the lounging couple. "We're coming to some rapids now, but don't be afraid, I'm a good captain."

The Americans break into laughter then pull it up short. They're delighted by the friendly and boyish nature of this Tom Sawyerish character and disarmed by the heavy English Cockney flavor of his speech, but they don't want him to think they're laughing at him.

THEIR CONCERN evaporates quickly however as their captain jokes and laughs with them, grinning the whole time, while his arm and back muscles draw tight against the long pole sticking in the muddy river bottom.

The slight looking, yet extremely stable craft drifts slowly over the deep, placid section of river and Rutherford turns again to the passengers who by this time feel as though they've known him for years.

"I hope you've enjoyed the trip. How long will you be able to stay with us in Jamaica?" His glistening teeth disappear instantly when he hears they are leaving in the morning before he tries to talk them into staying a little longer.

MEETING FRIENDS on the dock, conversation centers on the trip first, but quickly turns to Shirley as the couple tells their friends of their wonderful captain. They're surprised only momentarily when they find the other "captain" was equally friendly. "I guess they're all like that," they agree.

And that's pretty much true.

Young boys retrace their steps to lead tourists to the downtown Crafts Market. Taxicab drivers give guided tours on even the shortest runs. And teenagers on the street greet tourists, asking if they're having a good time.

A good many of the Jamiaican people are impoverished and probably wouldn't turn down a reward for going out of their way. They might even ask for it.

But for weeks after returning to the Chicago area, tourists find themselves daydreaming during quiet moments of beautiful and exciting Jamaica and especially the wonderful inhabitants of the island.

Vacant Homes Are Target Of Thieves

Thieves took advantage of vacant homes in Des Plaines this week to raid an apartment and a rear yard, stealing $188 in cash and merchandise.

Burglars apparently removed a screen to gain entry to a Des Plaines apartment Tuesday and escaped with about $63 in cash.

Grace Tellefsen, of 2091 Ash St., told police she was away from her apartment from 7 p.m., to 9:30 p.m., when the burglary occurred.

Robert Amling, 924 Jeanette Ave., told police he was attending a wedding when thieves stole a tent from the rear yard of his home. Amling, who said he was away from 2:30 p.m., to 11:30 p.m., valued the tent at $125.

On Dean's List

Lynn Spicer of Des Plaines has been named to the Hanover College dean's list for the fall term.

A total of 149 students made the dean's list, with a grade point average of 3.5 or better for the term. A straight-A average is 4.0.

Assessed Valuation Up 9%

Des Plaines city officials received reports this week from the Cook County clerk's office which show a nine per cent rise in the assessed valuation of property in the city.

The reports also show a rise in the tax rates for Maine and Elk Grove townships.

The City of Des Plaines received notice that its 1970 assessed valuation is $295,542,519, or nine per cent over its 1969 valuation of $270,899,158, according to Duane Blietz, city comptroller.

The property assessment is higher, Blietz said, because of new industrial development, new buildings in downtown Des Plaines, and statewide adjustments in assessment standards.

THE CITY RECEIVED checks this week for $3,[illegible], representing the first revenue from 1970 taxes. The city expects to receive more than $2 million from property taxes this year, Blietz said.

Blietz also announced at the Monday night city council meeting that the tax rate for Des Plaines property in Maine Township had risen from the 1969 rate of $68.68 per $1,000 of assessed evaluation to $72.94. A homeowner whose property had been assessed at $10,000 would thus pay $729.40 in taxes, he said.

Of the $72.94 per $1,000 asessed valuation, the city would receive 9.9 per cent or $7.22. In 1969, the city received 8 per cent or $5.50 in tax funds for $1,000 in assessed valuation.

The 1971 Des Plaines budget was $8.6 million, up 16 per cent over the 1970 budget, reflecting city employe salary raises and increased cost.

THE HIGHER Maine Township tax rate in the city also reflects new tax levies from Maine Township, for its town, road and bridge and general assistance funds, levied this year for the first time because of recent court decisions cutting off former revenue sources.

Des Plaines School Dist. 62 will receive 35.9 per cent of tax revenues, with a tax rate of $26.22 per $1,000 assessed evaluation.

Other large tax rates in Maine are from Maine Township High School Dist. 207, which receives 34.1 per cent, with a tax rate of $24.84 per $1,000 assessed evaluation.

The tax rate in the city's section of Elk Grove Township jumped from the 1969 rate of $66.92 per $1,000 assessed valuation to $72.16.

Of the $72.16, the city's $7.22 share represents 10 per cent, compared to 1969 when the city received 8.2 per cent.

School Dist. 59 will receive 33.9 per cent of tax revenues, with a tax rate of $24.48 per $1,000 of assessed evaluation. High School Dist. 214 gets 34.3 per cent of the township taxes and has a tax rate of $24.74.

Also added was a tax levy for the township and for Elk Grove general assistance amounting to 62 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation.
